58% OK X-movie arrests: poll

by RUTH MUGALIAN

A 58 per cent majority of Rolling Meadows residents believes police were right in arresting the manager of the Meadows Theatre for showing the X-rated movie "Cinderella," a survey conducted by The Daily Herald shows.

The arrest and confiscation of the film were the first test of a Northwest suburban obscenity ordinance since the 1973 Supreme Court ruling that community standards should be considered when determining what is obscene.

In a random telephone survey taken last week, reporters asked 414 residents if they approved of police confiscating the film and arresting theater manager Bill Farber and owner Stanley Kohlberg for allegedly violating the city's obscenity ordinance Sept. 30.

FIFTY-EIGHT per cent of those called — 243 persons — said they approved of the police action. Twenty-eight per cent or 117 persons disapproved. Fourteen per cent or 54 persons had no opinion.

Farber and Kohlberg will appear in court today to answer charges that they violated the city's four-month-old obscenity law. The law was passed in June after a widespread campaign to ban pornography from the city.

Kohlberg and Farber are the first persons to have been arrested for breaking the law.

Many residents who approved of the city's action said they are concerned about the influence of adult movies on children. Most of those who disapproved said they didn't attend X-rated movies but believed an individual should have the choice of seeing them.

Comments such as "If people don't like them, they don't have to go" and "If people want to see it, they'll go some place else to see it," were made by those who disapproved of the police action. Those who approved said "They should be stopped if there's a chance of kids being let in" and "There are so many children in Rolling Meadows."

CHARLENE SCHMIDT, who said she approved of the action, said she dislikes driving past the theater at 3265 Kirchoff Rd. with her 1-year-old child.

"How am I going to explain to him that he can't see these childrens' movies because they're turning them into X-rated movies?" she asked.

Mrs. Schmidt said her son is too young to ask that type of question, but she said, "I think about that a lot, about what kind of world he's growing up in."

But Elsie Tipsword, who said she disapproved of arresting the manager, said, "You see more on the street than you see in those movies."

Mrs. Tipsword, who has adult children, said she never would have let them see such movies when they were young but said she likes all kinds of movies and would like see "Cinderella."

Rosemary Ganatos has 13 children and she said she wouldn't let the younger ones see an X-rated movie. She said she also would not chose to see one. But she doesn't believe the police should get involved.

Sordid 'Affairs' has township officials looking for a way out

by PAT DOYLE

The lease said it is a business for designing signs. Nobody said anything about prostitution.

But it wasn't long before the landlords and police realized that the 24-hour business called "Affairs," 2407 E. Oakton St., Elk Grove Township, is designed for something other than making signs. They're going to court today with hopes they can stop it.

For the police, it's the latest chapter in a continuing war against a handful of alleged sex peddlers. For the landlords, it's a chance to put an end to an embarrassing situation.

A HEARING on charges of prostitution will be held at 1 p.m. in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court. A half hour later, an eviction action brought by the landlords will be heard in the Evanston branch of Circuit Court.

The advertisements for Affairs call it a "sketching facility" with a "warm comfortable environment" with attractive girls. A man sitting behind a counter at Affairs told reporters that it is a "male membership club" costing participants as much as $80 a day. When asked what kind of "affairs" the operation offers, the man said, "That's between you and the young lady."

Cook County Sheriff's Police decided to check it out for themselves Sept. 23. They arrested Brenda Smith, 26, of Chicago, for prostitution, and Jack Michaels, 34, of Schiller Park, on charges of operating a house of prostitution.

Affairs, however, still is in business.

Although the business has been brazenly advertised with electric signs, handbills, newspaper advertisements and calling cards for more than a month, the men who run Affairs are far less visible.

POLICE AND others say they are not small-time operators but experienced professionals with a slick operation. "They have some connections," said Sgt. Clark Buckendahl of the sheriff's police vice squad.

Their set-up was sophisticated enough to fool real estate agents whose job it is to find tenants for the building. The experience is an embarrassment for William Kunkel & Co., Des Plaines.

The agent for Kunkel who handled the deal did not want to talk about it.

"Obviously, he's upset about the whole thing," said Frank Kotnaur, sales manager for the firms' commercial department. "It makes us look like fools, and we don't like it."

Two men asked for the space for a sign design company they said they were going to establish there.

THEY PROVIDED three references — one from a bank and two from sign products suppliers. The references were checked out by the Realtors, who found that the applicants had a good reputation.

Not long after the space was rented Sept. 1, electric signs advertising "Affairs" went up, and Kunkel and Co. realized they had been fooled. They told the owners of the building, Jack Skaathan and Robert Nogan, who sent notices to Affairs asking them to stop. They didn't, so the owners sent them a summons of the eviction hearing.

The name "George Demir" is listed in the suit as the defendant and owner of Affairs. There is a Chicago address listed, with a telephone number.

A man answering the phone there identified himself as Demir, but began speaking in a foreign language when questioned by a reporter about Affairs. He then hung up the phone.

"WE'RE SURE there is no Mr. Demir," said Buckendahl. "We know who the people are behind it." He said Demir is an alias, but wouldn't say

Men's club back in business

The Club Renaissance, which was closed Friday night following a raid by the Cook County vice squad, was open for business again Sunday.

The entire staff of the private men's club, Rand Road west of Hicks in Palatine Township, was taken to the Cook County sheriff's headquarters in Maywood after the raid, but only two were charged.

Thomas Dunn, 44, of 8609 Golf Rd., near Des Plaines, a doorman at the club, was charged with being the keeper of a house of prostitution.

Patricia Rogers, 24, of 177 W. Freemont, Chicago was charged with prostitution.

Both are free on $1,000 bond and are scheduled to appear Nov. 21 in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

The club advertises itself as an exclusive men's club offering a young lady's company in return for a fee of $20 for 30 minutes and a $20 to $65 tip.

Dist. 21 achievement test scores up

by DIANE GRANAT

Scores on standardized achievement tests given to students in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 continue to climb compared to past years, still remaining well above national averages.

Results from the Iowa Test of Basic Skills administered to 4,500 third - through eighth-grade students last May show students performing at or above their own grade levels in all subjects tested.

These findings were presented Thursday to the Dist. 21 Board of Education. Parents will receive their own child's test scores during parent-teacher conferences Nov. 9 and 10.

STUDENTS WERE tested in five major area: vocabulary, reading, language skills, work-study skills and math. Each grade level showed improvement in most subjects compared to last year, with the exception of the third grade, where scores dipped slightly.

The district's composite test scores by grade ranged from a low of the 64th percentile for sith graders to a high of the 92nd percentile for third graders.

This means that in general, Dist. 21 sixth graders scored better than 64 per cent of other sixth graders taking the test nationwide.

"We are very happy with the scores this year," said Marjorie Beu, assistant superintendent for instruction. "But that doesn't mean we're not going to try to to do better. We've made a lot of progress in the past two or three years and we want to continue it."

Miss Beu said the district has paid much attention to test scores in the past few years and the steadily rising scores are a result of the district's effort to strengthen areas that show up poorly on the tests.

EDUCATORS SAY the performance of third graders may be better than older children because there is a heavier emphasis on basic skills, such as reading, in the primary grades. In the upper grades the emphasis shifts to higher content in the curriculum and these subjects are not well-reflected in the standardized tests.

But while Dist. 21's third-graders stayed in the 92nd percentile from 1976 to 1977 in their composite scores, they showed some slippage in specific subjects, particularly math, reading

Bomb foes disrupt church service

WASHINGTIN (UPI) — Six demonstrators protesting the neutron bomb Sunday interrupted church services attended by President Carter, who later described them as "fine young people" and said they had his sympathy.

District of Columbia police arrested five of the six on charges of disturbing a religious gathering. Police initially said all were arrested, but later said charges were not pressed against one of the protestors, former Catholic nun and antiwar activist Elizabeth McAlister.

The President, after arriving back at the White House, told reporters the protesters "are all fine people" and that he sympathized with their concern.

THE DISTURBANCE at the 175-year-old First Baptist Church of Washington, which Carter attends regularly, occurred shortly before the start of the sermon.

Ladon Sheats of Baltimore rose and began reading a statement which said, "Christians cannot love their enemies and still threaten them with nuclear death." The statement said the United States produced the atom bomb "and now President Carter is seriously considering deploying the neutron bomb," a weapon designed to kill people within a small area without causing widespread property damage.

As he read, a church usher rushed to him, grabbed the statement and placed his own hand over Sheats' mouth.

As he was being pulled from the pew, Miss McAlister rose in a different section of the church and continued the statement until she was silenced. The scene was repeated until all six demonstrators took their turn and were stopped from speaking.

The President and First Lady Rosalynn Carter sat stiffly and stared straight ahead from their sixth-row pew, never turning to look at the demonstrators.

THEY ARE fine young people and I agree with their purpose to eliminate nuclear weapons," said Carter, who last week asked the advice of NATO allies on whether the bomb should be included in the alliance's arsenal.

"The Secret Service didn't think I was in danger and neither did I," he said.

As the demonstrators were removed, several of them sat down at the front and side exits to the church and were taken away by police. One refused to walk and was carried.

Sheats said just before being arrested that the protestors will "put our bodies in front of them (the bombs) before they are built."

THE DEMONSTRATORS were spread out in the church about 10 pews behind the Carters.

Miss McAlister, who lives in Baltimore, said the demonstrators were representing the "Atlantic Life Community" which she described as "people committed to nonviolent resistance."

She identified the other participants, besides Sheats, as Jim McNeil and Rosemary Maquire of Baltimore; Paul Hood, Boston, and Mary Lyons, Simsbury, Conn.

She said that after Sheats was "pulled down and pushed into the aisle," she stood up and continued the reading.

"At that point, an usher came into the pew, pulled the piece of paper out of my hand, pushed me down in the seat and kept me pinned in there," Miss McAlister said.

"CHRISTIANS threatened by the nuclear sword will die by the nuclear sword. So the Lord warns us," said one of the protestors.

It was the third time in three weeks the demonstrators appeared at the church but the first time Carter had been present for them.

The congregation, which included the Liberian ambassador to the United States, sat in shocked silence throughout the incident.

Once it was over, Pastor Charles Trentham began the sermon without making a reference to the protest.

As the Carters departed, a small group chanted and carried a red and black sign that read: "Neutron Bomb: Who will assume moral responsibility?"

Art thief exits gallery undetected

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — A. thief yanked a $13,000 painting off the wall at an exhibit and escaped by walking calmly with it through a crowd of hundreds of unsuspecting art lovers and special security guards, police said Sunday.

"That was a very brazen act," said an Oakland Museum official of the theft of the painting by well-known artist Robert Deibenkorn during an exhibition of his work.

Officials said the thief apparently concealed the 10-by-13-inch oil painting "Scissors and Lemon" under his leather coat and boldly walked out of the museum accompanied by a man and woman who had attended the exhibit opening with him Friday night.

POLICE, WHO reported Sunday that the thief was still at large, said they were informed that the painting, an oil on masonite, was valued at up to $13,000, but the publicity-shy artist declined to discuss the incident. The painting's owner was not disclosed.

Diebenkorn and his wife Phyllis, of Santa Monica, Calif., had come to Oakland for the exhibition of 150 paintings by the artist, most of which are large, with widths and heights of several feet.

The museum official said there were hundreds, possibly a thousand, persons in the exhibit hall, "some standing right behind the thief," when the painting was taken.

Uniformed security guards had been posted at the entrances and around the hall for the major exhibit, and between 20 and 30 museum staff members were also present.

POLICE SAID they believe the escaping trio drove away in a van. They said the thief had hair growing down over his collar and that the woman who accompanied him had long, dark hair.

The Oakland exhibition by the former Berkeley, Calif., artist was the last stop on a tour that included displays of his work at galleries in New York City, Washington, D.C., Los Angeles, Cincinnati and Buffalo, N.Y.

13-year-old beating victim doing OK: dad

A 13-year-old Buffalo Grove youth who was beaten unconscious Thursday has been released from Northwest Community Hospital and is doing well, the victim's father said Sunday.

Police charged Michael A. Lerner, 35, of 1132 Whitehall Dr., Buffalo Grove, a lawyer, with beating Michael Smole, 765 Grove Dr.

Lerner is scheduled to appear for a hearing on the charge at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Authorities said Smole, a student at Cooper Junior High School, suffered a black eye, swollen lip and multiple bruises in the attack.

Police said Lerner attacked Smole as the youth was walking near Longfellow School, 501 N. Arlington Heights Rd., after a neighbor's son told him he had been hit by Smole.

Lerner struck the youth in the stomach and the head, according to police. After the attack, Smole ran back to Longfellow and collapsed.

The youth's father, Ralph Smole, said he had no idea what prompted the attack. Lerner would not comment Sunday on his motive.

Man hospitalized after auto accident

A Des Plaines man was injured Sunday in a two-car accident at the corner of Lee Street and Spruce Avenue in Des Plaines Sunday afternoon.

Domingo Cabral, 18, of 1358 Prospect Ave., Des Plaines, apparently lost control of his vehicle and was struck by a car driven by Guenter Becker, 1091 W. Grant Dr., Des Plaines, police said.

Becker and his wife were treated at Holy Family Hospital and released.

A hospital spokesman said a concussion had been ruled out, but the extent of Cabral's injuries had not yet been determined.

Glass, Graham legislative extremes: poll

by DIANE GRANAT

One was praised as "a lonely voice of moderation on social issues."

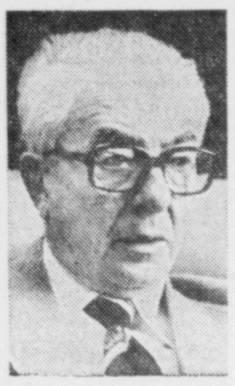
The other was chided for opposing job bills for blacks and for alleged improper dealings with a local industry.

They are the best and the worst the Northwest suburbs have contributed to the Illinois Senate, according to a poll to be published in the November issue of Chicago Magazine.

THE ORCHIDS went to Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, while Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, received the onions.

Each man joined nine other state legislators on a list of the 10 best and the 10 worst members of the Illinois General Assembly. Selecting the "winners" was a panel of five reporters, five lobbyists, five state employes and five legislators.

Along with Glass on the top 10 list was Rep. Harold A. Katz, D-Glencoe. Both men represent portions of Arlington Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.



Sen. John Graham

The legislators apparently were singled out on the basis of their leadership, intelligence, effectiveness, humaneness and wit.

Glass, a seven-year member of the legislature currently seeking the Republican nomination for state treasurer in 1978, Sunday said he is "very honored and pleased" with his selection.

THE POLLSTERS described Glass as "a lonely voice of moderation on social issues."

But Glass said, "On any given issue I haven't really felt lonely." The 46-year-old assistant minority leader in the Senate said there have been splits within his party but the only issue on which he felt alone was his opposition to capital punishment.

As far as the respect given to his "Voice of moderation," Glass simply said, "I would hope it's a voice that represents my constituency."

He agreed he has taken a moderate line on certain social rights issues.

Glass was on the campaign trail Sunday in DuPage and Will counties and he said he hopes this recognition will aid him in his race for the state treasurer nomination. "I naturally want all the support I can get," the Northfield resident said.

WHILE GLASS flourished in the poll his colleague in the Senate, John Graham, did less well.

The magazine criticized Graham because he "fought against several job expansion laws for blacks" and "received several questionable payments from Motorola while chairman of the industrial affairs committee."

Graham, 65, could not be reached for comment Sunday.

A member of the Senate for 19 years, Graham came under fire earlier this year when it was revealed he was paid $300 a month for 12 years by Motorola, Inc., to serve as business adviser to a political club organized by the company.

A staunch supporter of pro-business legislation, Graham in February said he was not involved in directing state business to the company, nor did he lobby for legislation to benefit the company. During the period from 1964 to 1976 he was paid more than $43,000 from Motorola.

GRAHAM, WHO represents Hanover Park, Barrington, and portions of Palatine and Rolling Meadows, plans to seek election to a 10th term next year.

Other Northwest suburban residents serving with Graham in the legislature said the low rating given to the Barrington senator was unjustified.

Rep. Richard A. Mugalian, D-Palatine, said the reasons cited by the magazine for Graham's poor standing were not sufficient. "A vote on any one bill certainly is not enough to earn the ranking," he said.

Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, disagreed that Graham has been opposed to bills to create jobs for blacks. "He believes you should let everybody work for what they get, rather than be given everything," Regner said.

ON THE question of Graham's connections with Motorola, Regner said, "I thought that was all cleared up last year."

Regner said he gives little credence to polls that classify legislators. This one, he said, "most probably" had a leaning toward liberals.

Others rated among the best legislators were Represntatives Susan Catania, R-Chicago; Michael Holewinski, D-Chicago; Michael J. Madigan, D-Chicago; Robert E. Mann, D-Chicago; and Arthur A. Telcser, R-Chicago.

Bradley M. Glass

Senators Dawn Clark Netsch, D-Chicago; Philip J. Rock, D- Oak Park; and Harold Washington, D-Chicago, also made the list.

Congress panel takes on energy package next

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The battle plan for what President Carter calls "the moral equivalent of war," the energy crisis, goes before a House-Senate conference committee Tuesday.

Conferees will take up the first of four non-tax portions of energy legislation passed in very different forms by the House and Senate.

The task will be relatively easy at the start and get harder as the days go on. Conferees will start on the energy conservation legislation, which cleared both houses without too great a struggle.

After that, the conflicts must be dealt with in sometimes vastly differing plans for industrial fuel conversion to coal, reform of utilities' rates, natural gas pricing controls and the energy tax program.

THE CONFEREES' work dominates Congress' schedule for the week, but there are other big issues getting attention.

Beginning Wednesday, the House Ethics Committee will have open hearings for the first time since it started its investigation of covert South Korean lobbying in Congress.

The initial witnesses are expected to be Koreans, with no member of Congress scheduled to testify.

A new effort will be made to restore budget money for the B1 bomber by putting $1.4 billion in the supplemental appropriations bill set to come up in the House Wednesday.

The House is also expected to vote Thursday on the big Social Security reform measure aimed at saving the benefits fund from running dry within the next year.

A CONFERENCE agreement on raising the minimum wage to $3.35 by 1981 may come up for a House vote by mid-week.

The Senate scheduled mostly minor things in order to be ready to act promptly on energy legislation returned by the conferees.

In that area, the House and Senate bills on coal conversion and energy conservation differed, but not markedly.

The bills that passed both houses on natural gas pricing and utility rate reform, however, are completely different.

The House adopted Carter's plan of extending federal controls on natural gas prices while leting prices increase substantiaily.

The Senate bill would phase out controls in a few years. Carter has said he would veto that.

The House passed a utility reform bill that would force utilities to charge lower rates for household electricity consumed in off-peark hours. The Senate passed a bill that essentially makes federal officials participants in state rate cases, to push for rate-making approaches that conserve energy.

Administration pushing for consumer agency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Carter administration plans to make one last try before Congress adjourns to win approval for controversial legislation creating an agency to protect the consumer's rights.

Esther Peterson, Carter's consumer adviser, and backers in the House have re-written the stalled proposal in such a way that they claim every objection by members of Congress, and some raised by big business, have been met.

Even the name is different.

What has been referred to throughout the past decade as the "Consumer Protection Agency," "Consumer Advocacy Agency" and "Agency for Consumer Protection" is now being called the "Office of Consumer Representation."

THE SUBSTITUTE legislation, which backers hope to introduce this week, eliminates some of the more controversial proposed powers and combines creation of the agency with a plan to abolish 26 existing federal consumer programs.

The shift and other cutbacks would pay the agency's budget and leave $5 million savings, backers say.

The biggest change is that the agency would have no power to make businesses report to it or answer written questionnaires about their practices. Another is that the agency would have no more power than any ordinary business to ask a court to review a regulatory agency decision.

"Before, the agency had a bit of an edge," Mrs. Peterson said.

"AND THAT WAS one of the things they (the critics) used to blow up . . . Now (the agency) would be exactly the same as General Motors or any of them. There's no additional power. We've stripped that. It's really an equality basis."

The agency has long been a pet project of Ralph Nader, who contends consumers need a representative who can intervene early in regulatory agency deliberations when pocketbook, safety, health and other decisions are being made.

Backers claim such an agency would counterbalance the corporate lawyers and lobbyists who have little trouble getting their voices heard.

ROOKIE OFFICER Adela M. Rivera, 23, has changed roles and uniforms for a new career with the Detroit Police Department. Rivera used to earn up to $100 a performance in her former profession a Della the Belly Dancer who held audiences spellbound at the Playboy Club and other Detroit-area night spots. Now she has opted for job security, a steady paycheck and part-time study at the University of Michigan where she is working toward a law degree. Regarding her future career as a police officer, left, Rivera muses: "Won't it be interesting if I have to answer a call some place where I used to dance?"

• Running backwards with a huge peanut balloon between his legs and making a giant peanut butter sandwich, Billy Carter gave it everything he had during the first "U.S. Peanut Olympics," at the Kings Island Amusement Center in Ohio. Attired in an orange sweatshirt, blue jeans and sneakers, President Carter's younger brother laughed and joked as he led his team of Cincinnati-area radio disc jockeys through several tongue-in-cheek athletic events, all related in some way to peanuts. Asked about the White House reaction to his public image and activities, Carter said: "The White House doesn't try to restrict me. I don't think the White House even claims to know me anymore."

• Pope Paul VI closed official observances of his 80th birthday Sunday by celebrating a mass and said he must be ready for the "imminent judgment of God" since death "is not far off for us." It was the latest in a series of references by the Pope to death in recent months. Despite such talk, the Vatican has said the pontiff is in relatively good health for a man of his age and work habits. The Vatican has denied repeated rumors the Pope plans to step down as leader of the world's estimated 700 million Roman Catholics.

• Joan Blondell, 65, is back in Hollywood working as a wise cracking waitress in the movie version of "Grease." Asked how she liked Hollywood as it is today, she replied: "I had a funny feeling when I first returned here from the East Coast. It was like bumping into an old sweetheart and findiing you still had a thing going for him."

• Kristin Moe, a 16-year-old high school student from Santa Ana, Calif., won the 18th annual Miss American Teen-Ager Pageant early Sunday. Miss Moe, an honor student at Foothill High School, won a $3,000 cash scholarship and a $1,000 wardrobe, along with other prizes.

The young couple departed as newlyweds from St. Edmund's Church in Oak Park and set off for a short reception ride on the Loop elevated line, two 50-year-old CTA cars. The pair greeted guests aboard and listened while a friend pointed out sites along the Lake Street Line and around the Loop. Kane grew up near the "L station in Oak Park and Miss Datu grew up near an "L" station on the Howard line. The bride and groom are both former CTA employes. The pair is heading to San Francisco where they want to ride the cable cars.

Castro gets warm welcome from Jamaican leaders

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — Cuban leader Fidel Castro got a 21-gun salute and a warm welcome from leftist Prime Minister Michael Manley Sunday as he arrived aboard a Cuban navy ship for a five-day state visit.

Extremely tight security prevailed as the Jose Marti docked at the downtown Victoria Pier following a secrecy-shrouded voyage from Cuba. The dock area was cordoned off and military sharpshooters were on the rooftops of adjacent buildings.

Manley said the precautions were necessary because of a possible attempt on Castro's life by militant Cuban exiles.

WEARING HIS customery green fatigue uniform and military cap, the bearded Cuban leader was greeted first as he came down the gangway at 3 p.m. EDT by Gov. Gen. Florizel Glasspole and then by Manley.

Castro was accompanied by a group of top Cuban officials, including members of his cabinet.

Members of the diplomatic corps, including U.S. Ambassador Frederick Irving, were on hand for the arrival, marking Castro's first visit to Jamaica.

Manley later awarded Castro the Order of Jamaica, the Caribbean island nation's highest honor for foreigners.

Government broadcasts and advertisements hailed Castro as "a scholar, soldier, patriot, revoluntionary leader and statesman." Manley said before Castro arrived that he considered the Cuban leader to be "one of the greatest leaders of the 20th century."

CASTRO'S VISIT underlined the rift between Manley's Jamaican Peoples party and the opposition Jamaican Labor party, which branded the Cuban leader as "a Communist dictator" and boycotted his visit as "an insult" to the Jamaican people.

Castro's activities through Friday remained an official secret except for a scheduled government rally today at the northern resort city of Montego Bay celebrating Jamaica's "Hero's Day."

In nearby Haiti, U.S. diplomats accompanying Assistant Sec. of State Terence Todman on a Caribbean tour watched the Castro visit with interest. They said they saw no threat to the Carter administration's policy of cautious and gradual normalization of relations between Washington and Havana.

CASTRO'S VISIT to Jamaica has been planned for two years, but it was repeatedly postponed due to political disruptions in Jamaica.

The Labor party, angered by Manley's last-minute disclosure of Castro's trip — it was announced only Friday night — said it would boycott the Cuban leader during his stay.

The Laborites were irked because their party leader, Edward Seaga, was in Europe attending a UNESCO meeting. They said in a statement the visit was "an insult to the democratic process and people of Jamaica when it is well known that a majority of the people feel a deep abhorrence and profound distrust of Communism in any form."

They criticized Manley because "when preservation of human rights was on the mind of everyone ,the Jamaican people are being asked to welcome a man who on his own admission has up to 3,000 political prisoners in custody."

ERA clashes dominate meeting on women's year

Clashes between pro and anti-Equal Rights Amendment forces dominated a Chicago regional conference on the International Women's Year Saturday at the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle Campus.

Much of the controversy at the meeting, sponsored by the Illinois Coordinating Committee on International Women's Year, centered on the opponent's attempts to reopen discussion of resolutions passed at the state IWY meeting in Normal last June.

Coordinator Pat Trowbridge of the Illinois IWY Citizens Review Committee, a group opposed to the IWY conference, attempted to open debate on the ERA and conference itself, but her motion was turned down 193-120. Nevertheless, women and men wearing "Stop ERA" buttons continued to protest throughout the meeting, which cochairwoman Virginia Hayter said was geared to "implementation and strategy" for adoption of existing resolutions.

MOST OF THE opponents protested IWY resolutions supporting passage of the ERA and abortion, but they also objected to "un-democratic tactics" at both the Normal and Chicago conferences.

"This is the first time I've ever attended a women's conference, and I'm disgusted by the fact that it's totally one-sided," said one woman.

"The IWY resolutions just don't reflect what most Illinois women want," said Vivian Adams, a delegate to the national IWY conference and one of a small group of women picketimg outside the IWY meeting. "The workshops are closed and our opinions don't count."

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, chairwoman of the ERA workshop, said the protesters were "not interested in the resolutions — they're just using parliamentary procedure to disrupt the meeting. These resolutions were already passed in Normal, and the purpose of the meeting wasn't to sponsor a pro-con discussion of the ERA."

The 58 delegates elected in Normal will take the state-sponsored resolutions to the National IWY conference, to be held in Houston in November. National recommendations on women's issues will then be passed on to Congress and President Carter.

While ERA opponents gathered at the IWY meeting, about 1,000 women marched down State Street Saturday afternoon in an Alice Paul Memorial March and Rally for ratification of the ERA in Illinois. Ms. Paul was the original author of the ERA.

5 killed as stolen car crashes head-on

A stolen Cadillac traveling more than 100 miles an hour struck another car head-on on a South Side thoroughfare early Sunday, killing five persons and injuring seven others. The stolen car was eastbound when the driver lost control and it careened into a westbound lane of 87th Street, police said. The luxury car had been stolen in suburban Oak Lawn Oct. 10, police said. Killed were Sam Jefferson, 35, Allen Bradley, 18, Kenneth Lovett, 16, Tanya Shores, 16, all residents of the South Side of Chicago, and another young woman who was not immediately identified.

Bradley was the driver of the stolen car, police said, and six other persons were in it. Jefferson was driving the other car, with his wife and three other persons as passengers. All the passengers in Jefferson's car were thrown from the auto by the impact of the crash, and five of the seven persons in the stolen car were also thrown from it, police said. Bradley and Lovett were pronounced dead on arrival at South Chicago hospital. Miss Shores died several hours later at South Chicago. Jefferson was pronounced dead on arrival at Jackson Park Hospital. Most of the seven injured were in fair condition at area hospitals.

Trigona 'war chest' at $1 million

Anthony R. Martin-Trigona, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, said Sunday he will spend up to $1 million of his own money to unseat Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill. "I have established a $1 million war chest from personal resources," Martin-Trigona said. "At least through the primary, I have decided not to accept any contributions from others so as to simplify campaign accounting and to avoid conflicts of interest." He released copies of Federal Election Commission receipts and expenditures forms, with his committee listed as the Illinois Democratic Campaign Committee.

"I would like to run without big expenditures of money," Martin-Trigona said. "But Percy's campaign coffers are being larded by corporate lobbyists, multinational oil company executives, big businessmen, bankers and LaSalle Street lawyers." "Substantially all of our expenditures are going for broadcast advertising," Martin-Tricona said. He has declined to say precisely where his "personal resources" come from.

Harvey fire kills 2 brothers

Fire in a Harvey home Sunday killed two young brothers and injured their mother and sister. Floyd Wiebrenner, 3, and his brother, Steven, 2, were pronounced dead at Ingalls Hospital after the blaze. The boys' mother, Kathy, 21, and their 3-month-old sister, Tori Michelle, suffered burns in the fire. They were taken to the burn unit at Loyola Hospital, Maywood.

These are the viewing habits of Rolling Meadows officials who passed the city's anti-obscenity ordinance.

to use more discretion with their children," she said. Banning X-rated movies in Rolling Meadows will not keep residents from seeing them, she believes.

"People have cars. If they want to see them they'll go somewhere else," she added.

Donna Ramirez said her friends tell her she's square and "not up with the morals of today." But she says she doesn't care.

"To me 'Cinderella' was the little girl with the prince who lost her slipper," she said. "I guess that's not what this is."

Mrs. Ramirez said she believes the manager deserved to be arrested and hopes the city will close the Meadows Theatre.

"THEY SHOULDN'T be showing stuff like that to kids," she said. "We live in Rolling Meadows and we have to go to Woodfield or Golf Mill to see a movie."

Ald. Lorraine Godawa, 3rd, who led the city's campaign for an obscenity ordinance, said she was not surprised by the results of the survey.

"I figured it would turn out that way," she said. "We talked to so many people before who were against it."

Mrs. Godawa last May organized a petition drive with the city's four churches and collected about 1,500 signatures of residents who wanted the city to pass an obscenity law.

She said she will be in court today, but she said she really has little more to say or do in the matter.

"I'll be there because I'm very concerned about it," she said. "But it's in the hands of the attorneys."

POLICE CHIEF Lewis Case, who arrived at the theater as his detectives were arresting Farber, said he has not received negative comments on the action.

"I've gotten some positive," he said. "But I wouldn't want to talk about that because it's probably from my friends."

Case said he looks on the arrest and confiscation simply as a matter of the police doing their jobs.

"We enforced the law as it's written on the books. We just did our job and made the arrest as good as we could," he said.

But resident Ralph Simek believes the law shouldn't be on the books.

"I think it's the most ridiculous thing I ever heard of," he said. "I don't think the city or any other government body has a right to tell me or my neighbor or anyone else what they have a right to see. I've never been to an X-rated movie, but that's not the point."

AS FOR CHILDREN, Simek said what's important is "they way they're brought up in the home. They have to make their own decisions."

Some resients who participated in the survey had mixed feelings about the issue. While they believed the police were right to enforce the law, they didn't necessarily believe in the law.

"I feel that people should abide by the law," said Carolyn Williams, who said she disapproved of the action. "But I don't approve of the law."

'Affairs' has people embarrassed for whom.

The vice squad officer says they are the same cast that ran a house of prostitution called Fantasy Travel Club in Leyden Township.

Kotnaur said the operators of Affairs know what they're doing. "From what I understand, they have very good legal counsel," he said.

He and Buckendahl both believe that the eviction proceedings and prostitution arrests will combine to put Affairs out of business for good.

comprehension and work-study skills. Other grade levels showed gains in these subjects.

Miss Beu said the drop in third-grade scores is part of a nationwide pattern and "nobody seems to know why it is."

Dist. 21 also uses its test scores to determine whether students are performing as well as would normally be expected considering their intelligence level.

FOR THE PAST two years the district has found that children with average intelligence are achieving less than their ability would predict, while students with high intelligence are performing up to district expectations.

Average intelligence is defined as an Intelligence Quotient between 90 and 110, above average in an IQ between 111 and 120, and the highest category is students with an IQ above 121.

The national IQ norm is 100, but in Dist. 21 the average IQ is between 111 and 113.

Although students in the 90 to 110 and 111 to 120 IQ ranges were generatly three to four months behind where they theoretically should be, Miss Beu said, "Most experts tell us that they are within a normal range."

STUDENTS WITH IQs above 121, however, generally scored at the level the district predicted for their ability, with the exception of seventh and eighth graders who also were a few months behind expectations.

Miss Beu said when the district first analyzed scores according to intelligence "it showed we were not meeting the needs of our academically gifted students. This shows we've made progress." Of the 4,500 students tested, 1,135 had IQ's above 121.

In another analysis of the scores Dist. 21 charted the progress of each of last year's classes to see how much progress students made in one year.

Students moving from fourth to fifth grade, fifth to sixth, sixth to seventh and seventh to eighth grade all advanced at least one full school year, with the exception of children with IQ's below 89, who generally made less than a year of progress.

Children going from third to fourth grade, however, made smaller gains, growing between five and nine months — all below the expected 10-month gain in a school year.

"The problem we have here is a linkage problem from the primary grade reading program to the intermediate grade reading program," Miss Beu said. She said there is less emphasis on reading skills in fourth grade, which could explain the slower growth on tests.

Arlington homecoming today

Arlington High School's week-long homecoming celebration kicks off today with a 7:30 p.m. powderpuff football game pitting junior girls against senior girls.

The candidates for the school's homecoming king and queen will be presented in an assembly at 10:05 a.m. Tuesday.

Queen candidates include Nancy Drain, Sue Parlee, Kitty Leonard, Linda Scanlon and Gaye Slensby. Candidates for king are Eric Barns, Tom Andersen, Bill Glader, Jeff Brockway and Chuck Swanson.

A taffy pull is the featured event of noon hour activities, Tuesday with a "Name That Tune Contest" to be held at the same time Wednesday.

Thursday is dress-up day. Freshmen will wear ties, sophomores will don long underwear, juniors will strut in their pajamas and seniors will wear wigs.

Friday is color day and features a king and queen coronation at 1:25 p.m., followed by a parade at 2 p.m. and a football game against teams from Palatine High School at 6 and 8 p.m.

The festivities end Saturday with a homecoming dance in Grace gym from 8 to 11 p.m. Tickets are $5 per couple to dance to the music of Rhythm Inc.

Taxicab fare increases proposed

Fare increases for the two taxicab companies operating in Arlington Heights have been recommended by the village board's finance committee.

If approved by the village board today, the Arlington City Cab Co. will be allowed to charge 70 cents for the first one-seventh mile and 10 cents for each additional one-eighth mile, which is $1.39 for the first mile and 80 cents for each additional mile.

The committee's recommendation would allow the Arlington Best Cab Co. to charge 75 cents for the first one-fifth mile and 25 cents for each additional one-third mile, which is $1.35 for the first mile and 75 cents for each additional mile.

Both companies now are allowed to charge 70 cents for the first one-seventh mile with the first mile costing $1.30 and each additional mile costing 70 cents.

The different rate structures were recommended because Chuck Kolls, owner of Arlington Best Cab Co., has decided not to participate in the village's subsidized transportation program for senior citizens. Under the program, the village pays $1 for each ride taken by a senior citizen with the rider paying 50 cents.

The last taxicab fare increases were approved by the village two years ago.

Israel breaks off talks with Lebanon

Israel has broken off talks with the Lebanese army on the fragile cease-fire in southern Lebanon until Palestinian guerrillas stop violating the U.S.-mediated agreement, a defense ministry source said Sunday. Defense Minister Ezer Weizman reportedly told U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis last Thursday that Israel "will consider itself free from all the commitments it undertook following the (cease-fire) agreement" if Palestinian attacks continue.The Israeli radio said the worst violations of the Sept. 26 cease-fire took place Saturday, when Israeli-supported Christian militiamen and Palestinian-leftist guerrillas exchanged small arms and artillery fire.

A military spokesman refused to comment on the fighting, but said quiet returned to the area Sunday. The defense ministry source said Israel "is willing to resume talks with the Lebanese army once quiet returns to the region. But it's absurd to continue talks as long as there are violations."

Diplomats see no harm to yachters

American diplomats in Thailand said Sunday they doubted any harm would come to three Americans whose 39-foot yacht was fired on and rammed in the South China Sea and taken under tow to Saigon by the Vietnamese navy. Vietnam has not responded to State Department inquiries about the fate of the sailors, who were last heard from Friday when radio messages from the yacht Brillig said the three were "all OK" and being towed to Saigon. The three Americans — Cornelia Ann "Cricket" Dellenbaugh, 28 of Vero Beach, Fla.; Charles Affel, 301 of Philadelphia; and LeLand Dickerman, in his late 20s, of Flagstaff, Ariz. — reported by radio Wednesday that unidentified craft fired on and rammed their yacht.

Their last signal came Friday evening when a voice identified as that of Miss Dellenbaugh was heard by airline pilots saying, "We are all OK," and said they were being towed by Vietnamese navy ships to Saigon, now known as Ho Chi Minh City. Vietnamese radio stations have not reported the seizure of the Brillig and there was no news from the State Department regarding Washington's inquiries about the three.

U.S., Soviets draw closer: Pravda

The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda said Sunday the Soviet Union and the United States have drawn closer together on key issues and are "on the road" to a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty. At the same time, however, the official government daily Izvestia charged the Carter administration's reorganization of the U.S. Information Agency was "an attempt to widen the ideological and psychological warfare" against the Soviet bloc. On the treaty talks, Pravda said:

"As a result of the Soviet-U.S. meeting in Washington the positions have recently drawn closer on a number of key issues of this most important problem. It is possible to say that the two powers have embarked on the road leading to an agreement." Pravda quoted President Carter as saying that there had been considerable progress in the SALT negotiations but not all the problems had been solved.

Launch of satellites postponed

The national space agency Sunday postponed the launch of a pair of satellites into far-reaching orbits to give scientists a better understandiing of how the sun controls Earth's space environment. The launch, scheduled for Wednesday, was postponed until Friday at least for replacement of an internal measuring unit used in the guidance system, a NASA spokesman said. It was not connected with the earlier explosion of a Delta rocket identical to the one which will loft the satellites into space.

The two satellites, one built by the United States and the other by the European Space Agency, will swing in and out of the immense envelope of magnetic forces that surrounds the Earth to carry out measurements that single spacecraft could not make. They will carry instruments 10 times more sensitive than those previously flown.

Plug pulled on House TV coverage?

The plan to open House proceedings to live TV and radio coverage in January may have fallen victim to growing congressional resentment against internal ethics reforms. Speaker Thomas O'Neill had endorsed the broadcast coverage idea, and it appeared the Rules Committee would routinely approve of an implementing resolution. That was until last Wednesday, when the House, in a surprise backlash against ethics reforms, killed the latest reform proposal of its Commission on Administrative Review.

That did not involve broadcast coverage, but it suggested a House majority is fed up with reforms that some members feel have been foisted upon them by unfair media converage of congressional scandals. And the next day, the rules panel sent the radio-TV resolution to a subcommittee for "study" — a move that usually amounts to killing a proposal. "After what happened to the (commission reform) proposal, we're moving slowly on things that are considered to be in the way of reform," O'Neill said after the rules decision.

Israel now seen as a 'Goliath'

A former Pentagon intelligence official reports Israel has become so strong it might be able to crush Arab enemies before the West could intervene, thereby threatening America's "strategic interests" in the Mideast. "Israeli military power grew from a 'David' to a 'goliath' between 1948 and 1977," said Anthony Cordesman in the latest edition of Armed Forces Journal, an unofficial monthly publication on military affairs, Cordesman, who has served as secretary of the Defense Intelligence Board and as assistant deputy defense secretary, said America, to protect its own interests, should consider new limits on arms deliveries to Israel.

'No Smoking Day' proposed by U.S. official

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surgeon General Julius Richmond has proposed a "National Don't Smoke Day" on which no cigarets would be sold or smoked in the United States.

He said the government also could issue a new surgeon general's smoking report as "a media event which would go far in publicizing the health-damaging effects of smoking."

The last such report was issued 12 years ago.

RICHMOND SUMMARIZED the "preliminary suggestions" of a federal task force in an "action memorandum" to Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, a former smoker. UPI obtained a copy of the memo from Agriculture Department sources.

"The issue is how tightly the government can circumscribe the choices of its citizens," wrote Richmond, who is also HEW's assistant secretary for health.

The memo offered such other antismoking suggestions as:

• Giving government employes time off from work to break their smoking habits.

• Government encouragement of private suits against tobacco companies by individuals injured as a result of smoking.

• Ending all price support programs for tobacco farmers, and giving welfare benefits, such as food stamps and Medicaid, to farmers hurt by the action.

• Increasing federal excise taxes on cigarets.

• A HEW request for Justice Department ruling on whether nicotine can be federally controlled as "an addictive and dependence-producing substance."

HEW official Eileen Shanahan said Califano has seen the memo and considers most of the proposals "still alive" and possibly worth inclusion in any HEW antismoking plan that might be drafted.

But she said Califano wrote, "no, no, a thousand times NO," next to the suggestion the government encourage and support suits by private individuals against tobacco companies.

He also vetoed the proposed phaseout of tobacco price supports, with the comment, "How do we take care of the small farmers?"

Suggestions still under consideration, she said, include the "Don't Smoke Day," the new Surgeon General's report, increased federal excise taxes and HEW encouragement of time off for government workers in smoking cessation programs.

POLICE IN NAGASAKI, Japan, with guns at the ready, charge bus hijacked by two ultra-left radicals Saturday night. The hijack drama ended with the rescue of 16 hostages. One hijacker was killed.

Police kill 1 bus hijacker and free all 16 hostages

TOKYO (UPI) — Riot police shot and killed one of two Japanese hijackers of an express bus and freed all 16 hostages unharmed Sunday. The surviving hijacker was wounded and captured in the assault mounted in the glare of searchlights and in front of television cameras.

The end to the 16-hour drama at Nagasaki, 900 miles southwest of Tokyo, came at 4:33 a.m. when 40 policemen wearing bulletproof jackets rushed the bus from all four sides.

The two hijackers first claimed they were members of Japan's ultra-leftist Red Army and threatened to blow up the bus unless police complied with their request to talk to Justice Minister Mitsuo Setoyama and two other men.

BUT KOICHI Kawashita, 39, told police that he and his dead accomplice, Hisayuki Kawasaki, 31, were not associated with the Red Army, whose members seized a Japan Air Lines DC-8 over India Sept. 28 and got $6 million ransom for the release of hostages.

Kawashita said he and Kawasaki, who was fatally shot in the five-minute gunbattle, were unemployed.

He quoted Kawasaki as saying: "the Red Army robbed money in the hijacking of the JAL plane. I want to make money in the same way."

Kawashita said Kawasaki approached him with the idea of getting 370 million yen ($1.4 million) ransom from the owner of the express bus and said he had pistols and explosives.

THE HIJACKERS seized the bus near Nagasaki railroad station Saturday and ordered the driver to park it in a service station.

Two hundred riot police sealed off the area while the hijackers, their faces covered by white masks, demanded that Setoyama, another politician and a noted Japanese political commentator be brought to the scene to talk to them.

Police rejected the demand.

The gun battle lasted five minutes.

Kawasaki was shot through the neck and died at a hospital less than half an hour later. Kawashita suffered slight injuries.

It was the fourth and most serious bus hijacking incident in Japan. In the others, the hijackers gave up quickly and there were no injuries.

ONE OF TWO masked hijckers hands policeman a note after seizing bus in Nagasaki, Japan.

A LITTLE girl, 4, is passed out the window of the bus by her mother. The girl was released in exchange for a kettle and tea cups.

Hijacked jet takes off for unknown destination

KUWAIT (UPI) — Four hijackers forced a commandeered Lufthansa jetliner with 87 hostages aboard to take off from Aden in South Yemen early Monday on a flight to an undisclosed destination, Kuwaiti authorities said.

Authorities in the control tower at Kuwait International Airport said the hijacked jet took off from Aden at about 5 a.m. (8 p.m. EDT). Although its destinationn was not immediately known, Kuwaiti authorities said they believed the plane may be enroute there and "all necessary precautions are being taken."

Last month, a Japan Air Lines Plane hijacked by Japanese Red Army guerrillas landed in Kuwait to refuel before flying to Damascus.

AIRPORT AUTHORITIES said Kuwait's Minister for Defense and Interior was at the airport to direct operations should the plane attempt to land there.

Earlier, the Arab and West German hijackers forced the plane to land on unpaved ground in South Yemen even though officials closed the Aden airport.

"All of the 87 hostages are inside the aircraft and all are reported safe," the Iraqi News Agency reported from Aden.

Radio Baghdad said Yemeni commandos surrounded the jet, which was running dangerously low on fuel, immediately after its risky off-runway landing in the remote leftist state.

A CALIFORNIA woman with a heart condition and her 5-year-old son were among the 82 passengers and five crew members held captive aboard the West German jet since midday Thursday.

South Yemen's director of civil aviation said the airport was closed and the terrorists were ordered to stay away because "Aden categorically forbids the landing of any hijacked plane at its airport." But the gunmen made the pilot bring the twin-engine down anyway on a stretch of unpaved ground, the Middle East News Agency reported.

The Boeing 737 jet was flying at more than 110 miles per hour when it touched down in Aden, which is at the southern tip of the Arabian Peninsula.

South Yemeni authorities said they would only refuel the plane on condition that it leaves the airport, according to the Aden correspondent of the Iraqi News Agency.

SOUTH YEMEN'S Prime Minister Ali Mohammed Nasser reportedly came to the airport to negotiate with the hijackers.

Practically all communications between South Yemen and the outside world were cut off on Sunday. The French Foreign Ministry said at early evening that its embassy in Aden reported "no new developments at the moment," indicating the hostages were still alive.

The hijackers, allied to guerrillas in West Germany who kidnapped industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer six weeks ago, have won none of their demands — freedom for 13 radicals in German and Turkish prisons and a $15.5 million ransom.

The two men and two women terrorists declared a series of deadlines for German authorities to submit to their terms, threatening alternately to blow up the Lufthansa Boeing 737 with plastic explosives or start shooting the hostages one by one.

The terrorists took no action when officials refused to release any prisoners in Germany or Turkey, but declared: "We hold the German government as well as (Chancellor) Helmut Schmidt responsible for what will happen to the hostages."

Joan Little 'depressed' before prison escape

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Joan Little, her chances of parole lessening following allegations of prison infractions, was "depressed" and "desperate" before she excaped from prison, her attorney said Sunday.

Miss Little, a 23-year-old black woman who made international headlines during a 1975 trial on charges of killing her white jailer, escaped from the North Carolina Correctional Center for Women Saturday.

Jerry Paul, who successfully defended her on the murder charge, said Miss Little telephoned him Friday and insisted she had to see him.

"I TALKED TO her Friday. She was depressed," Paul said. "But I didn't expect the escape. I planned to see her."

Miss Little, serving a 7-to-10 year sentence for breaking and entering, comes up for parole next month but has been punished because of recent infractions in the work release program.

Paul said she was depressed "about a lot of things" following the allegations made against her. He refused to elaborate.

Paul, who remained by his telephone Sunday hoping Miss Little would call, said she was "desperate" to see him Friday, and he had promised to visit her soon.

Miss Little was discovered missing at 6:30 p.m. Saturday during a nightly inmate count. Officials said she might have just walked away from the unit or could have scaled the fence.

They also said one of her friends, whom they would not identify, had been released earlier in the day and the escape might be connected.

Schaumburg Mattress Factory

HOW TO SHOP FOR A MATTRESS

1. Pay attention to all the radio and TV ads by the big name manufacturers. Each one will tell you what famous medical group or orthopedic society or surgical committee designed that particular mattress.
2. Go to a retail store and find the famous Bleepy "This A Pedic" or the Blurpo "Bumpy Rest" and poke it with your fingers. Use all four fingers because you can't really tell how it feels by poking with just two fingers.
3. By all means do not lie down on it because you might be a little embarrassed to have people see you lying on a mattress in a real store. Besides, that way you can get a bigger surprise the first time you try to sleep on it. Anyway, if it's one of those Pedic kinds, the salesman would probably just as soon you wouldn't find out how hard it really is.
4. Don't act shocked when the salesman tells you the King size set is only $500.00. After all, the super deluxe model is only $50.00 or $100.00 or more.
5. Before you make a final decision, go to the Schaumburg Mattress Factory. We have a small showroom in the front of the factory, and we want our customers to lie down on our comfortable mattresses. And if you just happen to doze off for awhile, we won't even bother you — until closing time of course.

Pounds slide away

Clients entranced with success

by PAT GERLACH

Ann Baker slipped off her sandals. Smiling, she settled back in the reclining chair and closed her eyes.

She was already 36 pounds lighter than the first day she visited the sunny, plant-filled room seven weeks ago.

In a waiting room outside, Greg Loesch and Jean Manella swapped stories about how great it is to be free of the urge to light one cigaret after another.

Mrs. Manella also talked proudly of having had two teeth extracted last week without pain killers.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Baker was "floating" as Arthur Bey told her to relax each part of her body "as the clear, sweet anesthesia flows into your lungs."

Bey's face was intent as he watched his client. Talking into his tape recorder, he steadily lowered and slowed his voice as he coached Mrs. Baker "deeper and deeper" into a trance.

The 30-year-old clinical hypnotist later would walk Mrs. Baker through an imaginary field where, in a clear pool, she would see herself "as the woman you want to be."

Bey also would describe her new eating plan. "After just a few bites you will feel absolutely stuffed and satisfied as if you have just had a huge Thanksgiving dinner and couldn't eat another bite."

Mrs. Baker shook her head and grimaced at the word "candy," which Bey said would "nauseate and disgust" her.

Her mouth puckered and twisted when the hypnotist said potato chips are "sickeningly salty, pasty and bland and will always leave the taste of globules of fat in your mouth."

Since Bey opened his clinical hypnosis office in Schaumburg 10 months ago, he said he's had a high degree of success with weight loss clients.

And he knows the problem first hand. In fact, it was Bey's loss of 100 pounds during six months of hypnosis that turned him away from a restaurant management career and prompted him to enroll in a two-year program at Denver's American College of Clinical Hypnosis.

"The very first time I was hypnotized I released a lot of tension and it's been a different life since then," Bey said.

But his work is not limited to weight control.

Bey's clients range from persons having marital or sexual problems to students who want to improve their grades to those who want to do a better job at work.

And the hypnotist talks of successes being achieved in breast enlargement, though he has not yet gone into that specialty.

He boasts of quick accomplishments with people like Loesch and Mrs. Manella who conquered their smoking habit in less that five days of treatment.

"I go around bragging about what happened to me," said the 27-year-old Loesch, who works for a Barrington real estate developer whom Bey is treating for weight loss.

When Loesch came to Bey in January he was smoking more than two packs a day.

"I never touched a cigaret after the first session and by the end of the third day I had absolutely lost all desire to smoke," he said.

Loesch said he believes Bey's $275 five-day smoking program is well worth the money.

"I think about all the money I'm going to save this year because of it," he said.

Mrs. Manella said she took a lot of flak from her family when she decided to see Bey.

"They were giving it to me not only about the expense but because I had tried every way possible to quit (smoking) and they didn't believe this would work either," she said.

But it did work for her. So well in fact, that after the third day Bey decided to attack Mrs. Manella's fear of "needles and dentists."

That worked, too. She proudly tells of the recent tooth extraction without anesthetic.

"I put myself under by playing Art's tape after I sat down in the dental chair."

Ironically, it was Mrs. Manella's dentist who referred her to Bey "because he kept complaining about how horribly dirty my teeth were from the tobacco."

Loesch, Mrs. Manella and Mrs. Baker describe the state of trance as a floating, light feeling. They awake totally rested. To Loesch it is "feeling that I am in and out of contact with the world at the same time."

But Mrs. Baker admits she was skeptical. "The first time I wasn't positive I had been under because I wasn't stretched out stiff between two chairs," she said.

Bey said he believes anyone can be hypnotized, but some subjects are "easier" than others.

"A person has to have the desire to do something against his own will while hypnotized.

"Hypnotists are not unscrupulous people who make others their complete slaves while in a trance," he said.

And weight loss clients' physical conditions are "checked out" with their physicians before Bey will begin treatment.

"I have had the experience of some very surprised doctors contacting me when their patients have come in for a check up minus 30 or so pounds," he said.

Bey's ultimate hope is to convince Schaumburg Township government to provide some financial assistance for a psychotherapy program he would like to offer to persons with limited income.

"My idea is to make the service available to people on a sliding fee scale," he said.

THESE TWO SWANS which have graced South Twin Lake since last winter, will be moving to their original and proper home in Westbury soon. Dubbed "Sam" and "Sally" by neighbors who fed them last winter, the birds were part of Hoffman Estates Pres. Virginia Hayter's dream for an ecology center in Westbury. "I just call them 'my pretties'," Mrs. Hayter said.

Frosty feathered friends

Shuttled swans still out in the cold

by THEA GRENDAHL

Sam and Sally Swan have been shuttled about Hoffman Estates for a year and have yet to find a permanent home or be part of the dream that first brought them to the village.

They will be making their fifth move soon, back to the retention lake in Westbury that was their original village home.

They could use a warm reception. The swans survived last winter's bitter weather only because neighbors at Twin Lakes Park's south pond, where they have lived since last November, took the time to help two beautiful, but not so bright, birds.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter had a dream of a community project for Westbury residents, focused on one of the retention lakes in the subdivision, "the biggest thing up there."

SHE ENVISIONED turning the lake into an ecology center, "getting it back to natural balances," stocking it with fish, crayfish and clams, planting greenery under the water and around the banks, and topping the oasis with a pair of beautiful swans.

Officials of Allister Construction Co., Westbury's developer, thought the idea was a good one. When they asked what they could do to help, Mrs. Hayter said they could buy the swans.

Ralph Allen, environmental adviser for the park district, also liked the idea and advised the park district to get swans for south Twin Lake.

So the two pairs of swans were settled in the Westbury lake last fall where they were to spend the winter together.

But when the pond began to freeze early last winter the swans didn't know how to keep part of the lake from freezing.

"SWANS ARE KIND of exclusive birds and not too bright, it turns out, not as bright as your ordinary, common ducks," explained Daniel Lurey, then president of the environmental commission, which helped the project.

The ducks at south Twin Lake managed to keep part of that lake open all winter, he said, so the swans were moved south for the winter.

The cold, bitter weather still took its toll. Lurey found one of the park district's swans frozen to death. Its grief-stricken mate disappeared soon after.

And while the ducks kept the lake open for the two remaining swans, they also claimed the swans' share of food.

LAST NOVEMBER the two swans wandered south, across Harper Lane to Joseph Duhamel's home.

"They would come and they would camp out here," Ruth Duhamel said. She and her son, John, started feeding them bread, popcorn and corn.

Soon the concerned Duhamels were following the swans to the lake to make sure they were fed. Armed with a 10-gallon bucket of corn, one would divert about 150 ducks while the other would hand-feed the swans.

In February the park district rescued Sam and Sally from the cold and took them to the Vogelei barn, where a spare stall was their home for the next month.

For a while a team of neighbors took turns feeding the swans. The environmental commission was paying John Duhamel $1 a day to feed them, but Mrs. Hayter didn't want to spend taxpayer's money.

"IT GOT TO be such a mess that I said, 'Look, I'll feed the swans'," she said. Mrs. Hayter stops by the lake on her way to village hall in the mornings and on her way home at night.

Although the feeding trips to Westbury would be out of her way, Mrs. Hayter thinks it's time for the swans to go back where they belong.

Lurey and Environmental Comr. John Rausch are building an aerator to keep part of the Westbury retention lake from freezing. They also will move one of the two swanhouses they built to the site north of the Northwest Tollway.

Mrs. Duhamel is relieved that she won't be responsible for the swans like she was last winter, but is concerned that they won't be fed "unless someone is as crazy as we were."

"I think I'd like to see them over on our lake so I can keep my eye on them," she said.

LUREY, LIKE Mrs. Duhamel, still worries about the birds.

"They can't fend for themselves like the ducks do. We really need citizen participation to feed the swans and to keep a watchful eye on them. They're pretty defenseless on land," he said, explaining that the top-heavy birds are slow waddlers and easy prey for dogs.

Mrs. Hayter hopes the swans will generate enough curiosity that their new neighbors will befriend them this winer and maybe move them to other projects next spring.

"Hopefully if people see them up there they'll say 'why are they here?' and we can get the whole thing started."

Inventors find pot of gold in solving energy crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One day it's a man who drives here from Fort Smith, Ark., in a car that runs on alcohol. He gets about four miles to the fifth.

Another day it's a couple who drives from Nyack, N.Y., in a home-made car that uses footpower to supplement its one-cylinder engine.

These are the new prospectors — inventors who have heard thar's gold in that thar energy crisis.

AND INDEED there is: The government is underwriting projects of all manner and description to stimulate development of new fuel-saving equipment and energy sources.

Fairly typical was a recent U.S. Agriculture Dept. award of a $149,250 contract to Cornell University for research on a wind-powered churn.

So the basement workbench Edisons are arriving in an ever increasing stream, looking for federal grants.

Probably the best indicator of what is happening is the Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office, published weekly at $6.60 per copy, which lists and briefly describes everything which patents were granted the previous seven days.

THE 400-PAGE Gazette of Oct. 4, for example, includes 1,199 patents, of which 602 were in the "general and mechanical" category — a catchall for Yankee ingenuity.

Included among these brainstorms were:

- A pill box in which you can carry not only your tranquillizers but the water to wash them down with;
- A buddy system popcorn package that fits across two theater seats and enables movie-goers to share the buttery contents without passing the box back and forth;
- A "bowel movement energizer system," the description of which is vague.

But many new patents also reflect energy crisis motivation.

Alex W. Wormser of Marblehead, Mass., has contributed an apparatus for burning pulverized coal. Eugene Peter Schellens, Essex, Conn., offers a new type of wood-burning stove.

There are also plans for an "environmentally heated and cooled building," a "solar energy augmented water heating system" and many other implements for coping with the fuel shortage.

AND THIS IS just a single week's outpouring.

Nor is the conservation field being neglected.

One ingenious innovation in the recycling field was dreamed up by Robert Friedenthal of Boxboro, Mass.

It is a "reusable karate striking board."

No longer need students of the martial arts discard the lumber, bricks and cinder blocks they smash to smithereens with bare hands.

Thanks to Friedenthal, the building material once destroyed in karate demonstrations can now be channeled into the housing industry.

What a nightmare! We spent $3½ million on a new library and no one used it!

Vote 'no' on library plan

The Indian Trails Library District is in desperate need of a new library building.

However, the building proposal being presented to voters Saturday in a $3.5 million bond referendum has too many flaws to provide the answer. Voters should reject this proposal to encourage something better.

The Indian Trails library, which serves most of Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, is presently located in a converted church building at 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling. The shelves are so crowded that librarians will have to start removing books from the shelves in order to add new books to the collection.

Indian Trails officials have done a good job with limited facilities in providing for library needs in the area. The library has been handicapped not only by limited space but by the fact it must serve two very different communities — Wheeling and Buffalo Grove — from one relatively inaccessable site.

In an attempt to deal with their space problem, the library officials have come up with a plan for a $3.5 million library to be built on five acres of land at 300 S. Schoenbeck Rd., Wheeling. The new library will have space, officials say, to accommodate library needs through 1995.

The proposal has two fatal flaws.

First, the proposed site for the library, south and west of the existing building, will not solve the problem of accessibility. If the library is built there, residents of the rapidly growing parts of Buffalo Grove, in particular will have no better access than they have now — and will likely take easier routes to the Arlington Heights library rather than patronizing their own.

In addition, the design for the new library goes well beyond what is needed for a basic library program. It will include a 366-seat auditorium of doubtful value when located so close to Wheeling High School. While the community needs a larger library, it would make more sense to build the new library in stages, rather than jumping into such a large facility all at once.

If the library bond referendum is defeated, library officials should not retreat into a defensive position and decide merely to "make do" with obviously inadequate facilities. Instead, the library board should make a concerted effort to locate a site for the new library more accessible to larger numbers of residents or to plan for eventual construction of two, smaller libraries — one in Wheeling and the other in Buffalo Grove

Because the present plans will not meet the needs of the district's residents we must, with regret, recommend a no vote on this referendum. We hope to be able to recommend a yes in a future referendum.

Bakalis welcome to governor's race

We welcome State Comptroller Michael Bakalis' entry into the race for Illinois governor with the expectation that the campaign will be a lively debate of the issues.

It would have been a mistake for the Democrats to give incumbent Gov. Jim Thompson a pass by putting up a strawman to run a half-hearted campaign.

Bakalis, by temperament and past performance, is not such a candidate, and the people of Illinois should be in store for some political fireworks.

For a time, it looked as though no one was anxious to challenge the apparently popular incumbent governor. First, Secretary of State Alan Dixon said he would not run, then former Gov. Dan Walker took himself out of speculation as the Democratic candidate.

It seemed that Thompson might walk back to Springfield.

But, it is important that this year he have a real campaign on his hands. The way he handles it may give us some new insight into a governor who is riding a wave of personal popularity in a party hard up for new leadership.

Former Secretary of State Mike Howlett's 1976 campaign was old-fashioned and ineffectual. Howlett was out of tune with time and out of step with the office he was seeking; to no one's surprise, Thompson rolled over him.

But the 1978 campaign can have the stuff for which the people of Illinois long. We appreciate Bakalis' willingness to walk in where other Democrats have feared to tread.

As an involved and concerned citizen and a subscriber to the Mount Prospect-Prospect Heights Daily Herald, I find myself questioning The Daily Herald's policy regarding executive sessions of elected boards and the paper's apparent concern solely with the legality of these sessions. While I totally agree that these secret meetings, if illegal, must certainly be brought to the attention not only of the public, but also of the appropriate legal authorities, I, also, believe that some restraint must be exercised based on the individual circumstances. For example the recent "Rob Roy Strategy" executive session of the Prospect Heights City Council, if not truly a legal meeting, had to fall into the category of unforeseen problems when our state legislators adopted the Open Meetings Act. Yet The Daily Herald, in my opinion, blew the entire meeting totally out of perspective when revealing the illegality of the meeting.

I must, also, question this policy for another reason. After the September 19, Prospect Heights City Council meeting, at which the council expressed their disagreement with The Daily Herald's opinion of the illegality of the "Rob Roy Strategy" session, the council went into executive session to discuss the mayor's candidates for appointment to the vacant aldermanic position. While this seems to be a valid legal reason for an executive session, I question the appropriateness of the council meeting behind closed doors to discuss the candidates for appointment to what is normally an elective position. Yet as far as The Daily Herald was concerned it only rated a passing mention.

Do you believe that the candidates and their qualifications should be discussed behind closed doors? Knowing The Daily Herald's normal policy I doubt very much if you do believe that.

Prior to that executive session, I believe, it was indicated that there were four candidates for the appointment, yet last Friday only two names were announced. What happened to the other two candidates Why were they eliminated? Did they withdraw their names from consideration or were they, for some unknown reason, eliminated at the suggestion of the council members? Knowing the members of the council as I do I doubt that there is any reason but the persons withdrawal for the elimination of the two candidates but the principal involved is still the same, should there have been an executive session?

I believe that your newspaper has a responsibility to your readers and the community to not only question the legality of these sessions but also to question the ethics of those meetings, especially in a matter such as the appointment of an alderman, or the review of an appointee's qualifications.

I, personally, believe that there never should have been an executive session for that purpose and further I feel that the city council should have actively sought the residents' opinions on the candidates. Unfortunately, except for a single article in The Daily Herald and the single coffee last Saturday afternoon, very little information has been made available to the residents about their new alderman, whoever it may be.

If there was to be an election to fill this position would this little information be available? Certainly not! It would almost seem that we, the residents of Prospect Heights, are being denied all possible information on the candidates, and, from appearances The Daily Herald thinks that the situation need not be corrected.

Perhaps I am being somewhat harsh, if so, I apologize, but shouldn't The Daily Herald be paying particular attention to this new city and its actions? Based on what has just occurred can we expect the same type action, or inaction as the case may be, when the mayor is ready to appoint a new treasurer?

Crane praised

Add my "Hear, Hear," to Brian Cavanagh's letter supporting Representative Philip Crane. I did not read William Anderson's letter, to which Mr. Cavanagh replied, because we were on vacation, viewing many of the scenic spots of the Southwest, before our President gives them away!

Personally, I have had quite a bit of correspondence with Representative Crane and he truly represents the working taxpayer. He is heading up a committee to limit the amount of taxes that can be taken by our government, which is a plan long overdue. He also is connected with "Young Americans for Freedom," which reaches the young people.

I have been writing to my representatives to voice my objection to the Panama Canal giveaway. Crane sends out questionaires to get the opinions of those he represents. The answer I got from Senator Percy was, that although the vast majority of his correspondence is against the Panama Canal being turned over to the Panamanians, he was still going to vote for giving it to them. We prefer having a representative that represents us!

It seems to me we have far too many politicians in our government and too few statesmen, such as Phil Crane!

Worthy of note

I would like to at this time say a large thank you to the people who stopped to lend a hand after an accident in which I was involved Oct. 8.

First there was a young woman, Mary Krenz, who not only went out of her way to get the police but came back to be of any assistance she could. She was with other young women whose names I didn't get but who were equally kind. I really appreciated their help since it was such a cold windy day and they had small children with them.

Also a young man stopped in order to assist. He helped tie our bumper and offered to make sure we got home alright. I never got his name in all the excitement but I want to thank him for his kind help and concern.

'Library should have new books'

I have been following the recent debate about the library referendum in Mount Prospect with interest, although I thought it didn't affect me since I live in Arlington Heights.

Now I find that assumption is not true. It does affect me. On Saturday, October 1, Mount Prospect citizens defeated by three to one the referendum that would have bought more books for their library.

On October 6, I opened my Daily Herald to find that the Arlington Heights Library, through the North Suburban Library System, is lending the largest number of its books (outside of Arlington residents) to residents of Mount Prospect. It seems that the taxpayers of Arlington are cheerfully paying for the books that Mount Prospect residents refused to buy.

Arlington Heights has a total collection of 214,436 books. It borrowed 11,973 books from other libraries and loaned 90,149 books from July 1976 to June 1977.

Mount Prospect has 89,698 books. It borrowed 27,668 books from Arlington Heights and borrowed a total of 42,663 books from all libraries in the North Suburban Library System, while only loaning 8,516 books in same time period.

From the October 6 Daily Herald: "Libraries officials attribute the imbalance to Mount Prospect's deficient book collection and say there is little sign of relief for Arlington Heights by its neighbors to the west in the immediate future."

Richard Ranseen, who wrote to Fence Post a week or so before the referendum, complained that "no library is expected to compete with a book store." He seems to have no concept of what a library should be. Yes, I do expect my library to have all the books that any good book store would have, and many others. Included in a good library are all of the classics, not just the best sellers; many hard to find, out-of-print books; foreign and special interest material on many subjects (books and magazines); Illinois and the United States Supreme Court decisions, as well as commentaries on them; etc. etc. My library has these and fills the needs of its citizens. Mount Prospect's library obviously doesn't.

Muhammed Ali continues to fight beyond his time

Jim Bishop

When you dwell for a moment on the interminble love affair Muhammad Ali has been carrying on with himself, it is incredible to learn that he found time for women. Dr. Ferdi Pacheco assures me that Ali almost destroyed his body with three years of unremitting sex.

It is one heck of a body to destroy, and if Ali must bend it out of shape, I don't know of a better way ad nauseum. Dr. Pacheco should know. He has written a book, "Fight Doctor," which recounts the inside story of his years in Cassius Clay's corner.

I know Ferdie. And I believe him. Everyone knows that the heavyweight champion has been married several times and is still paying for those wedding bells. Sometimes, just thinking about it makes him mad enough to fight.

AND SOMETIMES, when the tongues of Ali and Howard Cosell duel, I get mad enough to fight. The champ has an indefatigable larynx. He can talk the hind legs off a pigeon.

Dr. Ferdie says that Ali had bad hands for a long time. The doc shot him between the knuckles with novocaine shortly before each battle. This worried the Muslims in Chicago. An hour before the first Frazier fight, the doctor was ready with his needle.

Ali looked downcast. "Well," he said, "the boys from Chicago say no one knows what you are putting in my hands. You're white and you don't get paid, so they may be able to buy you off and then you put some dope in my hands." The result of this friendly showdown was that Dr. Pacheco went on the champ's payroll.

Ferdie has a medical office in a poor section of Miami. He should move out, but he won't. His second quirk is that he is mad about boxing. He has worked in the corner of seven champions. And some washed-up bums. The doctor has never submitted a bill to any of them.

THE MAN WHO remained at Muhammad Ali's side through the good days and the bad is Angelo Dundee, easily the best manager of the past two decades. When millions were calling Ali a draft dodger, it was Dundee who soothed his spirits and brought him back up the ladder to fame and especially fortune.

The champ may have a more outstanding record in bed than in the ring, but he has never forgiven himself for his lack of education. He hungers to know. He reads slowly and painfully. In a hotel room, he tries to write his thoughts on pads.

His religious feelings are genuine. Almost everything he does is by instinct rather than by rationalization. When he told me, some years ago, that he was "too pretty to be hurt" in the ring, he was serious. At one time his reaction to a thrown punch was so fast that he was an almost impossible target.

Today, time and the layoffs have slowed him. He can be hit. He has been punished for the scornful lowering of hands and arms. Frazier rocked him. So did Young. Earnie Shavers might have put him away but he was slow to capitalize on his devastating punches.

ALI IS AWARE that fight fans pay a lot of money to see him destroyed. For him, this is a melancholy situation because the champ wants to be loved. His mental and emotional level may be about age 12.

As Ferdie states, the champ doesn't hold conversations. They are monologues. He fears being caught in a dialogue where he might not understand the question. Instead, he recites his childish jingles, shouts his threats and inundates his admirers with inanities.

He was blessed with a six-million-dollar body and the neurological reflexes of a king cobra. The only boxer I ever saw who could match his automatic grace in the ring was Benny Leonard.

And yet, when the sportswriters compose those rainy-day-what-if columns, I am reminded that I saw four fighters who, in their prime, could catch Muhammad Ali in 15 rounds and kill him.

I SAW JACK DEMPSEY knock out Luis Angel Firpo in two rounds. I saw Joe Louis beaten by Schmeling and saw him come back to put the German away in one round. I saw Rocky Marciano, who should have hung his left arm in the dressing room, take severe beatings and drop his man with one awkward overhand right.

And Harry Greb. He could beat anyone of any weight and he was never more than a middleweight. Greb could box. Greb could punch. He had to die before they found out he had a glass eye.

Ali has more millions than all of them earned. Unfortunately, he is weak at arithmetic. This keeps him fighting beyond his time . . .

Bernstein's article on CIA-press teaches nation more than history

Charles B. Seib

The press has emerged from still another exposure of its escapades in the spy business with nothing more than a few scratches. Unlike scandals involving public officials, those involving the press are self-limiting: There is a flurry of superficial attention followed by benign neglect.

The latest examination of coziness between the CIA and the press was, as usual, not in the "serious" hard news press. It appeared in Rolling Stone, a magazine devoted mostly to rock music.

The author was Carl Bernstein of Watergate fame, no longer a Washington Post reporter but a free-lancer. It was a long article — about 12,000 words — and it contained an attention-getting estimate of the number of journalists who have played ball and more with the CIA — 400. Many of the specifics had been reported before, but the article conveyed, as no previous one had, the depth of CIA-press involvement, and its sanction in the executive suites.

PROBABLY THE MOST serious injury was done the New York Times. Bernstein identifies the Times as one of the CIA's most valuable news business connections. He quotes an unnamed CIA source as saying that between 1950 and 1966 the Times provided cover for about 10 CIA people as part of a top-level agreement to cooperate with the agency. Among the journalists he singles out as having close CIA ties was C. L. Sulzberger, foreign affairs columnist of the Times.

When Bernstein and Rolling Stone distributed copies of the article a few weeks before its publication, the Times carried a column-long news story and, a day later, a longer story consisting largely of denials, including strong ones from the Times and Sulzberger.

With the second article, the Times published a letter to the CIA pleading for information on any past or current relationships with the newspaper or its employes.

Noting the allegations in the Bernstein article, the Times told the CIA that its refusal to disclose its dealings with the media "has placed the Times and its employes in an untenable position." It stated a much broader problem than its own when it said:

"THE AMERICAN public is confused and some foreign governments are using this situation as a weapon against the press . . . The work of correspondents has been hindered and, because we have been denied access to our only source of authoritative information, we are unable to present all the facts to the public."

The CIA was unmoved. It said that it would not provide the information and, furthermore, that by its refusal it was not admitting such information existed.

The Times' frustration is understandable, and yet one must wonder what would happen if it unleashed a team of its own top reporters on the story. Bernstein seems to have been able to find talkative CIA sources, despite the official stonewalling.

Publication of the Bernstein article was marked by an entertaining bit of infighting between the author and his old employer, the Washington Post.

AFTER THE TEXT of the article was made available to the press, but several weeks before publication, the Post carried a long takeout on the CIA and the press in general and the Bernstein article in particular.

This article, by Richard Harwood, deputy managing editor of the Post, and Walter Pincus, a Post reporter, was mostly rehash. But it contained an allegation of a serious flaw in the Bernstein piece, tucked discreetly between parentheses. A Senate source was quoted as saying that at least half of 400 CIA summaries of operations involving journalists received by Senate investigators concerned foreign, not American, journalists.

A telling blow if true, but Bernstein got in the last lick. When his article appeared in Rolling Stone it contained a paragraph that hadn't been in the earlier version. It said that a "relatively small number of the summaries described the activities of foreign journalists." And in a dig at the Post for relying on a Senate source rather than on CIA sources, Bernstein added: "Those officials most knowledgeable about the subject say that a figure of 400 American journalists is on the low side of the actual number who maintained covert relationships and undertook clandestines tasks."

Something more should be said about that 400 figure. First of all, just how deeply involved were these journalists? That's a little murky. Bernstein says at one point that the figure "refers only to those who were 'tasked' in their undercover assignments, or had a mutual understanding that they would help the agency or were subject to some form of CIA contractual control." It does not, he says, include the journalists who occasionally traded favors or information with the CIA.

IT IS A PRETTY broad definition and it is not helped by Bernstein's tortured efforts to make his lead-off case, a 1953 trip columnist Joseph Alsop made to the Philippines, qualify as a CIA "assignment."

In any case, the estimate that 400 journalists worked for or with the CIA over 25 years is less startling when one remembers that early last year, after much pruning by the agency, a Senate report found that it still had covert relationships with 50 American journalists and other employes of American media organizations.

Bernstein's article was interesting and useful. He clearly did a lot of dogged legwork. But its value is mostly as history.

Ancient concept to decide fire lawsuits' outcome

by ROBERT SANGEORGE

NEWPORT, Ky. (UPI) — The outcome of more than $1.5 billion in civil suits stemming from the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire may hinge on an ancient doctrine designed to protect the King of England from legal problems.

Descended from English Common Law, "sovereign immunity" meant that in the courts, "The King can do no wrong." In its modern form, the legal concept precludes some types of damage suits against state and local governments.

A special legal team representing relatives of victims of the tragic nightclub fire will ask federal and state court judges Monday to strike down the doctrine as "invidious, inequitable and unconstitutional."

The complex legal debate will occur at a rare federal-state joint court session, called by the U.S. District Court and Kentucky Circuit Court judges presiding over an avalanche of lawsuits filed as a result of the blaze.

THE MAY 28 Southgate, Ky., fire killed 164 persons and injured some 60 others.

Sovereign immunity has been claimed as a defense by lawyers for the commonwealth of Kentucky and the city of Southgate. State and local authorities are accused of negligence in failing to enforce fire and building safety codes.

The Monday hearing will focus on a suit filed by two Cincinnati attorneys, directly challenging the constitutionality of the doctrine. The action is unlike the other fire suits in that it seeks no monetary damages — just an overturning of the doctrine.

"Except for the doctrine of sovereign immunity, there is no doubt that the state, along with others, would be liable to these plaintiffs (victims)," Chesley and Lloyd asserted in their legal brief on the issue.

The attorneys noted that a massive Kentucky State Police investigation of the fire placed blame on state and local employes — fire and building inspectors — as well as the club owners.

Clues are few in hunt for 4 N.J. men

LAWRENCEVILLE, N.J. (UPI) — Friday, July 15, four young men hopped in a pickup truck and left their homes, telling friends they were going on a weekend camping trip.

They never returned. One was found shot to death. The others are missing, along with up to $12,000 police say was collected from neighborhood youngsters to buy marijuana.

Behind the wheel was Kevin Kent, 20, wearing brown corduroy pants and a T-shirt with "Heineken Beer" printed across the chest.

THE OTHERS — Timothy Leary, 22, John Jaeger, 20, and Todd Hoch, 16 — crowded into the small cabin, rolling the windows all the way down to let in the breeze. It was a hot day, the start of a two-week heat wave.

The four stopped at an Exxon service station on Rte. 1 to buy gasoline, and Hoch saw a neighborhood friend working as an attendant.

"Where are you going?" the friend said.

"We're going down to the shore for camping," Hoch replied. He said they would be back by Sunday night.

When they didn't return, detectives questioned their friends. When there was no sign of them two weeks later, police issued a nationwide alert for the orange-and-tan Chevy pickup.

On Aug. 8, Pennsylvania state police found a skeleton off Rte. 272 near Lancaster, Pa. The body, identified through dental charts, was that of Hoch, shot once in the head with a 9-mm gun. Lancaster County Coroner Witlow Shaw placed Hoch's time of death at July 15, the day the four left New Jersey.

THE TRUCK was found Aug. 15 in the parking lot of the Greater Wilmington Airport in New Castle, Del., with one of its doors half open. Police saw traces of blood inside as well as on the bed of the truck outside.

From the beginning, the suspicion in Hoch's murder fell on Leary, a drifter also known as Alex Bernhard, David Cain, Earl Bernhard, Michael Bunta, David Dearborne and others.

Leary, a man with long, disheveled brown hair, a beard and a mustache, came to New Jersey from Indiana, Pa., about 18 months ago. He landed a job with the Nelson-Lebo Lamp Co. in Trenton, using the name of Al Bernhard.

Originally of Edgewood, Md., Leary allegedly broke into the home of his grandparents in Havre de Grace, Md., on Christmas Eve 1973, stole several thousand dollars worth of goods and set the living room on fire.

The evidence that led police to suspect Leary was a 9-mm Smith & Wesson found in a pouch lying near Hoch's body. With the weapon was a receipt for the gun issued in the name of Al Bernhard by a pawn shop in Jacksonville, Fla., on July 5.

THE PAWNBROKER identified Leary in police pictures as the man who bought the gun, and police found various false identification papers, stolen credit cards and a warranty slip for the Smith & Wesson in Leary's abandoned apartment.

Police believe Leary originated the idea of a trip to buy marijuana, either in Pittsburgh or Baltimore. Although police found no evidence the four were in either city, the night before the trip, Kent asked his father how far Pittsburgh is from Trenton.

Police said the four carried between $7,000 and $12,000 in cash raised among themselves or collected from friends.

"We know they were planning to make a buy with the money," the detective said. "But we don't know whether they actually made a buy and, if they did, where. As far as we know, they were never in Pittsburgh or Baltimore."

Hoch was an "odd man out" in the group. Leary, Kent and Jaeger are known to have been close and have made at least two trips together to rock concerts. Hoch had never traveled with the other three and was the least close to Leary.

"If the three are alive, we think at least Kent would have contacted his family by now. He was extremely close to his mother," the detective said.

On the seat and rear bed of the pickup truck were traces of blood of three different types — B, O, and AB.

TYPE B, found in the bed of the truck, was the same type as Hoch's. Jaeger and Kent had type O, the same type found on the driver's side of the seat.

The third type, AB, was found on the passenger side of the seat. Its source remains a mystery, but police say it could be Leary's blood.

Police believe the four may have made contact with a drug dealer somewhere on July 15. The dealer may have tried to "rip them off" and, when they resisted, shot them, planted Leary's gun and his receipt near Hoch's body and made off.

"If that's the case," said the detective, "whoever did it was a pro."

Pennsylvania troopers, with the help of bloodhounds and helicopters, conducted four searches after Hoch's body was found.

"There's wild wilderness out there, miles and miles of trees and nothing else. If the bodies are buried in different places, it'll be damn hard to find them," the detective said.

Police found two bullets fired from the Smith & Wesson, but there were three empty casings inside the cabin of the truck.

One of the bullets was found inside Hoch's skull. The other was in a hollow space between the inside plastic cover and the outside metal door of the truck. But if all four were killed, why were there only three casings inside the cabin?

"We have a lot of theories, but that's all we have at the moment. We don't know what happened to these four and we don't know where they are," the detective said.

Queen eats with Canada premiers

HARRINGTON LAKE, Quebec (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth, showing up a few minutes late from a train excursion, met with Canada's 10 premiers and their wives at lunch Sunday — including Quebec's secessionist Rene Levesque, who kept puffing a cigaret during their meeting.

The luncheon was at Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's country residence, and Trudeau was waiting on the porch when Levesque's limousine pulled up, flying the Quebec Fleur de Lis flag.

Levesque traded asides with reporters as he climbed the porch steps. Did he have anything to say before meeting the Queen? "No. I am too hungry. I'm eager to eat," he replied.

THE PREMIER then failed to notice the waiting Trudeau and walked right by the prime minister.

"You could at least say hello," Trudeau said. A chagrined Levesque spun on his heel, shook hands and offered a belated greeting.

The two then went into the house to await the Queen, who arrived from her 25-mile steam train ride saying, "We're late, but we enjoyed it."

Levesque appeared to be the only one smoking as the Queen entered the living room and he continued to puff away as she moved toward him.

He snatched a final puff instants before they were introduced and held the butt behind his back as they shook hands. During their conversation, Levesque continued to take discreet puffs, blowing the smoke downward like an adolescent who did not want to be caught in the act.

THE CHAIN-SMOKING leader of the secessionist Patri Quebecois had said at a news conference weeks ago he would use the lunch to brief her majesty on the Quebec situation, if she asked.

But at lunch he was seated next to Prince Philip at the opposite end of the table from the Queen.

Earlier in the day, the third in a six-day silver jubilee tour, a cold drizzle fell as the royal couple boarded the steam train in Ottawa for the excursion to the Quebec town of Wakefield. It was their first visit to Quebec since the election last November of the secessionist PQ government.

Bing Crosby returns home today

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Bing Crosby's son Harry, 19, will fly back to the United States with his father's body Monday for funeral services in Los Angeles, American officials said Sunday.

Simple Roman Catholic funeral services are scheduled for St. Paul's Church in Los Angeles on Tuesday. Burial will be at the Holy Cross Cemetery, where his parents and first wife are buried.

Crosby, 73, died unexpectedly of a heart attack after finishing 18 holes at a Madrid golf course on Friday.

THE OFFICIALS said the coffin will be flown to New York Monday aboard a Trans World Airlines flight. It was expected to arrive with six hours to spare before a domestic flight scheduled to arrive in Los Angeles at 9:50 p.m. PDT (12:50 a.m. EDT Tuesday).

"We hope airport authorities can clear (the remains through customs) in time," one official said.

Harry Crosby, one of the crooner's seven children, will fly back to the United States on the same plane. He flew to Madrid Saturday to help arrange the transfer of the body.

The young Crosby told reporters his father died "the way he would have wanted to die" — on a golf course.

CROSBY WAS stricken after he finished a match with three Spanish friends.

Spanish champion Valentin Barrios said the singer showed no signs of fatigue and was happy before he suddenly fell to the ground.

"We had just finished the last hole and were walking toward the clubhouse when Bing had a seizure and fell. We first thought he had tripped," Barrios said.

"Bing was happy and singing as he went around the course. He was teamed up with Manuel Pinero (another Spanish champion) and they beat Cesar Zulueta (president of the Moraleja golf club) and me by winning the 18th hole."

Despite the immediate assistance of a doctor, Crosby was dead when he arrived at a hospital. Doctors said he died of a heart attack. They said a small wound on his forehead suffered when he hit the ground was of no importance.

His remains were embalmed Sunday at the Forensic Institute in the Spanish capital.

HARRY CROSBY, right, Bing Crosby's 19-year-old son, seems to be fighting back tears as he listens to Cesar Zuleueta, president of the Maroleja Golf Club, shortly after his arrival from Madrid. Zuleueta lunched with the elder Crosby just prior to his fatal heart attack.

BING CROSBY, the golden-voiced crooner who sold more than 300 million records is shown in 1945 photo with the Oscar he won for his role as a young priest in "Going My Way," his first venture into serious acting.

Bing's records are big sellers at area stores

Bing Crosby's death Friday has boosted the sales of his records, not by as much as Elvis Presley's Aug. 16, several area record shops reported Sunday.

"I don't know what it is, but whenever somebody dies, people suddenly want their records," said Mike Maxa, assistant manager of the Randhurst Music Center in the Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect.

"It's the same thing as with Elvis, only not on the same scale," he said. "We weren't ready for it at all."

THE DEMAND for Bing Crosby records is not as heavy as the demand for Elvis Presley records was after that singer's death, record shop spokesmen agreed, but that is consistent with the careers of the two performers; Crosby had sold more records than any other singer in history until he was overtaken in the 1950s by Presley.

While his death may boost the sales of his records, Crosby's records need little promoting. He made more than 20 records that sold more than a million copies each. His death shortly before Christmas is expected to boost sales of "White Christmas," Crosby's most popular recording.

Most record stores had few Bing Crosby records on hand Friday, but all they had were sold by Sunday. The record department of Carson Pirie Scott and Wieboldt's stores at Randhurst sold the few copies available, "But I'm sure the record companies will be filling us up with them," one clerk said.

Even record stores specializing in rock music are planning to stock some of Bing's records. "We've got some on order," said a clerk at Sounds Good III in the Schaumburg Plaza. "A record distributor called us about two hours after he (Crosby) passed away. We'll be getting in his 'Greatest Hits' and 'White Christmas.' "

A German-owned company, Polydor records, has announced it will issue Crosby's recording titled "Seasons," which consists of songs recorded in London during his last concert there.

Crosby's death may spawn biographies and picture books about him, but they won't be like those that followed the death of Presley, according to Tom Lucich, an assistant manager at Kroch and Brentano's at Randhurst. "I think Elvis was an entirely different case," he said. "That was a sort of scandal, but I don't think anyone's going to do that to old Bing."

Crosby didn't forget Spokane: friend

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Harry Lillis Crosby never forgot this city where he grew up or the college he attended, and residents recalled Sunday not only his loyalty but how he got his nickname — Bing.

Crosby, who moved to Spokane in 1910 at the age of 6 from his birthplace of Tacoma, Wash., was nicknamed Bing by his family after a character named Bingo in "The Bingville Bugle," a comic strip of the day old acquaintances said.

"My family began calling me Bingo, and then just Bing," the entertainer, who died Friday, once recalled.

Crosby attended Gonzaga High School in Spokane and worked to within five weeks of a law degree at Gonzaga University, a small Catholic college, to which he contributed an estimated $1 million throughout his life.

The Rev. Arthur Dussault, now vice president of Gonzaga, went through college with Crosby, remained friends with him over the years and recalled:

"THE CROSBY I knew back in the 20s, I still knew today. He was really kind of a modest guy."

Dussault remembered that Crosby, who came to Spokane when his father took a job in a pickle factory, lived only a block from the university and was a normal, mischievous boy.

Young Bing was "always ready for fun. He wasn't the kind of guy who'd lead a gang on some window-breaking, but if someone stole a cake, he'd eat some," Dussault said.

Although Crosby weighed only 150 pounds in high school, Dussault said he was a tough football player as well as an expert diver.

Crosby, who later was a stockholder in the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team and a lifelong sportsman, played semi-pro baseball for the Spokane Ideal Laundry Team.

His musical career began when he played in bands at Gonzaga University, breaking in as a drummer.

A 1975 FILE photo shows Bing Crosby on the 16th green of the Cypress course at Pebble Beach, Calif. — home of the annual Crosby Tournament — the same hole he once aced.

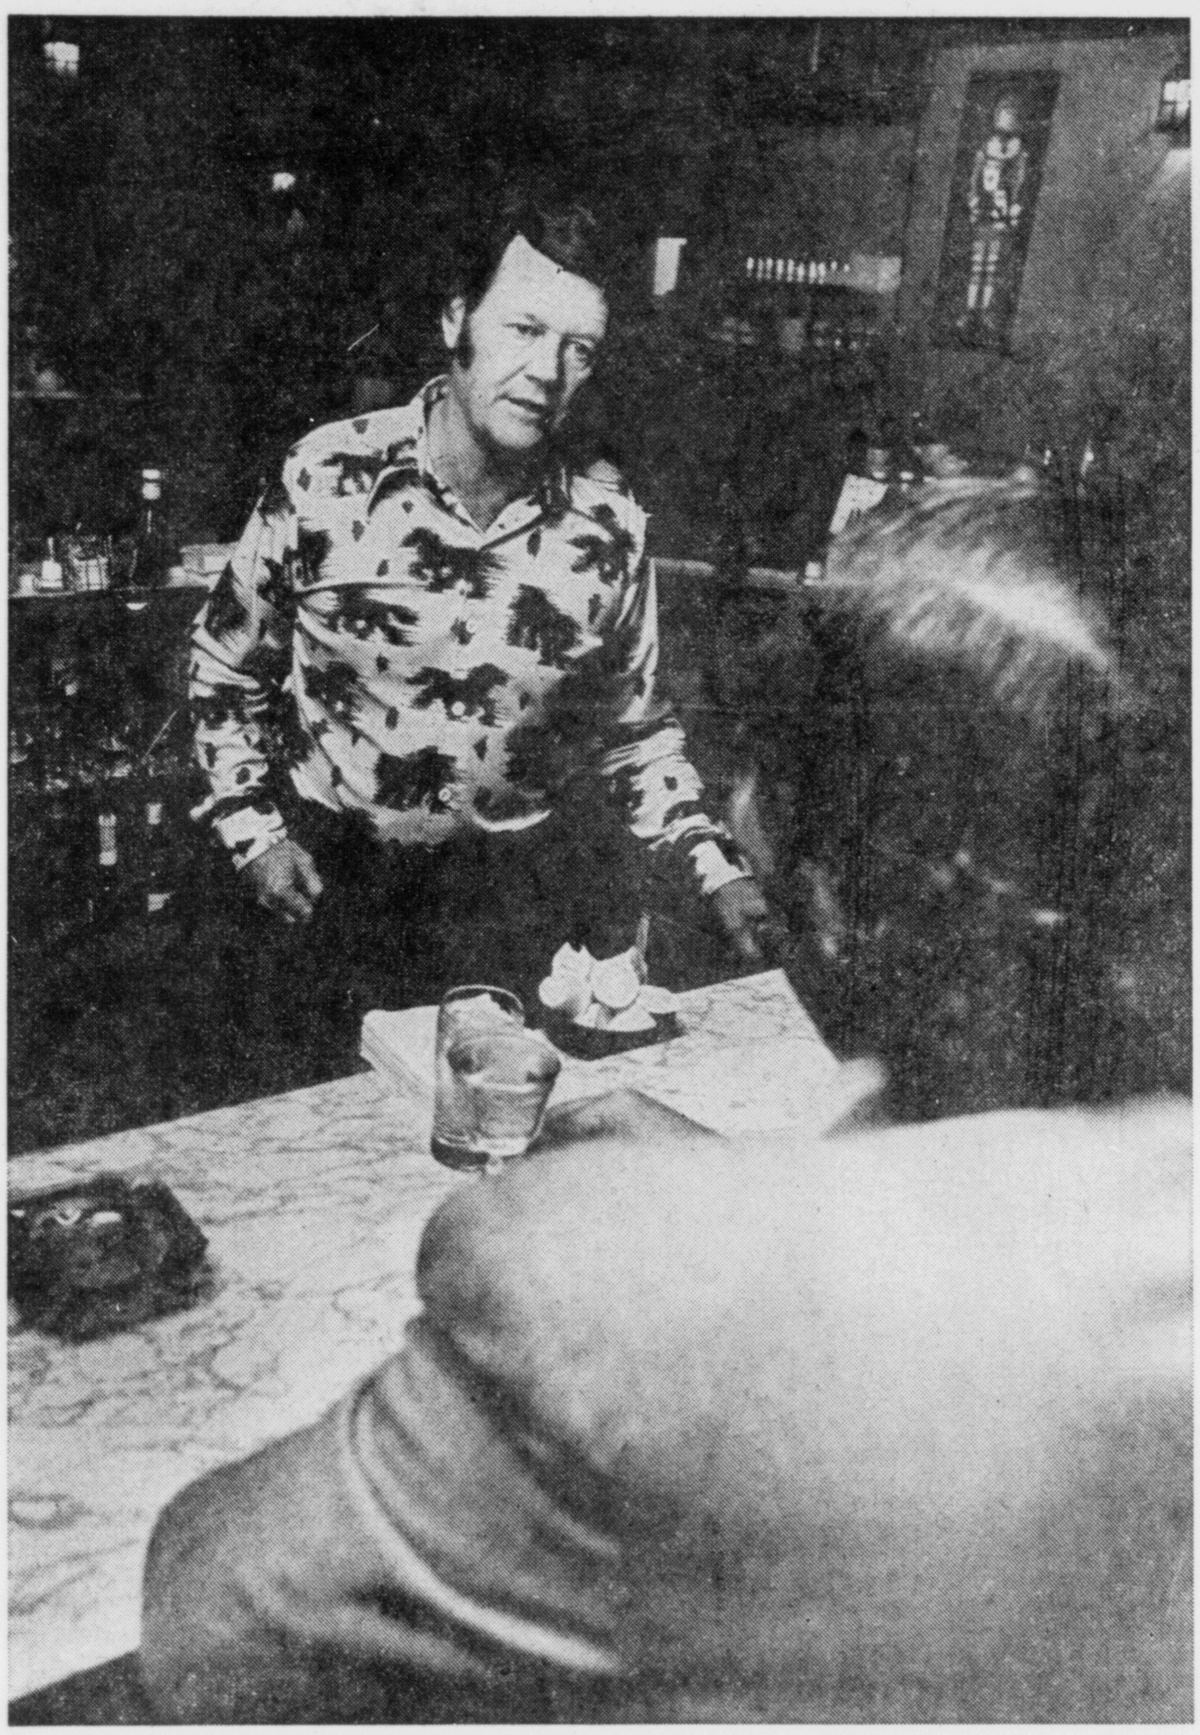
Pro Mary Frances goes on with show

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mary Frances Crosby, Bing's daughter, carried on the family tradition and went on with the show Saturday night.

An apprentice actress with the American Conservatory Theater, she appeared in a minor role when the troupe's season opened at the Geary Theater with Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" a day after the entertainer died in Spain.

Her mother, Kathryn Crosby, attended the opening and said Mary Frances, who often sang with her father, wanted to perform.

"Why not? Might as well," said Mrs. Crosby as she stood with other first-nighters in a cafeteria line. "I just can't believe he's dead. The way I feel, he'll probably come walking home on Thursday."



AN OPEN EAR — that's what many go to taverns for. Bartender Bill Marquette Sr. says he does much more than just pour drinks: "Sometimes you have to keep a guy from going down the drain."

Serving behind bars not a solitary time

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Where does the typical American go when he has a problem, when he's lonely and depressed or when he just needs somene to talk to?

Occasionally he'll seek professional help, but traditionally he doesn't go any farther than the nearest tavern. His tavern is his clinic. He prefers a barstool to a couch, and the ever-friendly barkeep is much cheaper than a psychiatrist.

So while the bartenders pour the liquor, their customers pour their hearts out. And most bartenders have found that if they want to keep a steady business, they have to do more than just plop down drinks and walk away.

"MAKING THE drinks is the easiest part of bartending. Dealing with the people is the hardest. Believe me, it's a herculean task," says Bill Marquette Sr., 51, owner and bartender at The Knights Pub in Des Plaines.

"You've got to be a priest, rabbi and minister, a psychiatrist, a marriage counselor, sports critic and fan. Sometimes it helps if you're a pugilist or bouncer. Possibly even a lawyer. A lot of people go to a bartender for legal advice. I had it even today. 'Where can I go to get a good will made out?' — I referred him to a lawyer.

"We get a couple people in here who are mentally ill," says Marquette.

"I remember one incident. It was a real nice calm winter night. We were about three-quarters full, and it was snowing out, a fine, soft snow. A woman came to the door, she had her hair up in curlers . . .

"She came up behind these two guys, started slapping the younger one, real quick, back and forth on each side of his head 10 or 15 times."

BEFORE MARQUETTE knew what was happening, the woman stopped slapping the man — who turned out to be her fiance — and dashed outside, followed by the older man (her father). The family brawl briefly continued in the parking lot, and Marquette never did learn what it was all about.

"Well, the result was they never did get married."

The point to Marquette's story is that there is only so much a bartender can do in his role as amateur psychologist. Often he is more caretaker than counselor.

"The bartender can listen to you and give advice, but he can't solve the problem. You've got to solve it yourself."

AND ALTHOUGH Marquette makes his living selling liquor, he admits it is no elixir of sanity.

"Sometimes the reason they've got the problem is they spend too much time in a saloon. It's a place to go to relax, to get away from their troubles, but it's a place that can start them, too."

Occasionally the friendly bartender, because of his close relationship with his regulars, even can aggravate the problem.

"One day I was working at a bowling alley, and a guy came in with this lady, and I said, 'How are ya, Joe! Say, this isn't the usual woman you show up here with . . .' "

The woman, as it turned out, was Joe's wife.

"There is one thing a bartender has to know. How and when to keep his mouth shut," Marquette says.

LIKE MARQUETTE, most bartenders haven't had any formal training either in hom to mix drinks or in psychology. But there are a number of programs around today that recognize bartenders often are put in the position of personal counselor, and try to teach them when and how to get involved.

In El Cajon, Calif., a suburb of San Diego, a federally financed program to train the local bartenders and hairdressers in human relations has just been completed.

"This was not training in therapy," Andy Thompson, the program director, told a wire service reporter.

The course was designed to provide training in communication and to alert the students to the community resources that are available. The idea is to recognize a problem and steer the customer to help without intruding. The program reportedly has been quite successful.

THE BARTENDING schools of St. Petersburg, Fla., spend many class hours teaching how to help the lonely and depressed of the town, a large percentage of whom are elderly widows and widowers.

Not everyone agrees the bartender should get involved in personal problems. Some believe that becoming too familiar wih the clientele actually hurts business.

The handbook of the Professional Bartenders School in Schaumburg tells students to steer clear of everything but small talk:

"DON'T BECOME involved in anything controversial. Politics, religion and social issues should never be discussed in a bar," the handbook states.

"Even though you may be discussing a point that you and the customer may agree upon, many other

Nun hopes to join political order

by JO-ANNE BYRNE

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — What's a nice girl like Jackie Slater doing in politics?

For one thing, she's learning it from the precinct up to the state level while experimenting with a different lifestyle than that usually enjoyed by a Roman Catholic nun.

Ms. Slater, 43, defeated incumbent alderman Earl Netwal in the 6th Ward primary race for the Minneapolis City Council and is confident of victory in the November election.

"I'm not making plans with the idea of not winning," she said in an interview after the primary.

MS. SLATER SAID Democratic Farm Labor party leaders asked her last December to run for alderman. At first she refused but finally agreed and her decision was backed by her religious order.

"I didn't feel that the 6th Ward was being represented," she said. "The ward is filled with the poor, the elderly, the handicapped and nursing homes, and housing is the worst of any place in the city. There are also more renters in this ward."

Before the primary, Netwal was acquitted of a perjury charge in connection with a liquor licensing scandal and Slater made a point not to use his trial as a campaign issue. She defeated Netwal by 267 votes and faces Kym Yorkuff, an independent Republican, Nov. 8.

APPARENTLY THE ONLY thing her opponents could use against her, she said, was her membership in the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondolet, a teaching and nursing order that branched out and revised its rule of life in recent years. She knows of at least one other nun in the order who has entered politics, Sister Claire Dunn of the Arizona House of Representatives.

Ms. Slater said she noted in the campaign that being a nun didn't seem to make much difference to non-Catholics, but it did to traditional Catholics.

Among those who opposed her candidacy, she said, were "those people who were upset with changes in the church, who wanted nuns to wear habits, who wanted a return to the Latin Mass and things they remembered from their youth.

"SOMETIMES I FELT it was almost like a prejudice that they felt, 'this is your role, don't exceed it.' "

Ms. Slater holds a master's degree in science education from the University of Wisconsin at Superior. Included in her 13 years of teaching were three years with inner city youth at St. Stephen's in Minneapolis, an experience she said "helps you to be very real."

"These people are not impressed with name importance," she said, "you have to prove yourself."

MS. SLATER ESTIMATED she met a third of the 35,000 residents of the 6th Ward and spent $3,000 to $4,000 in the primary campaign. She expects to spend about $1,000 more before November and has limited individual contributions to $100.

She sees herself as a feminist, supports the Equal Rights Amendment and fully expects a woman to be governor of Minnesota or president of the United States some day.

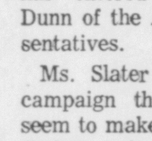
"Someone will come along and, if the time is right, it will happen," she said. "It all depends on what the people see as your capabilities."

SUPPORTERS RALLY around Jackie Slater (dark blouse) after she upset the incumbent alderman in the Minneapolis primary election last month. If elected in November, she will represent a district of poor and elderly constituents.

Take care in hemming imitation suede

Eunice Farmer

Sew simple



Dear Eunice Farmer: I recently bought a dress made of imitation suede. It has two rows of stitching at the hem. The dress is too long and I have to shorten it, but don't know how to sew. Can the hem be finished by hand? — Irma S.

Dear Irma: Imitation suede garments are hemmed one of two ways — machine stitched or fused into place. While both methods are correct, I would never suggest hand-sewing the hem in place.

If you want to fuse the hem in position, decide the new length and leave an extra inch to an inch and a half for the hem. Press the hem carefully from the wrong side, then slip a slightly narrower strip of fusible webbing into the hem and press permanently according to instructions.

The other solution would be to ask a friend who sews well to simply machine-stitch the two rows of stitching on your dress. This isn't difficult, but must be accurate.

Be sure you never use glue on imitation suede. Since the fabric is synthetic, glue can actually eat it away.

Dear Eunice Farmer: What could possibly make a wool skirt cost $100? I recently moved from a small town to a large city and I'm aghast at the prices of better ready-to-wear garments. — Mrs. M. C.

Dear Mrs. M. C.: Most skirts that retail for around $100 cost the manufacturer less than $15 for the fabric. The rest of the cost depends on the designer's name and the number produced.

If you purchase a good-quality wool (from $10 to $15 per yard), the finest skirt you could make would cost less than $30. This shows how you can have the joy of wearing the loveliest of fabrics by sewing them yourself for less money than you could purchase the cheapest readymades.

This week's winner of the gold blazer buttons is Mrs. W. Halberstadt, 105 Eleventh Ave., Crystal City, Mo., 63019. Her tip:

"When I have difficulty in making a divided collar lay flat on the back of a dress (usually next to the zipper), I sew a small circle of Velcro to the wrong side of each side of the collar and to a corresponding spot on the dress. It really does the trick!"

Dear Eunice Farmer: Recently I backed a jacket with fusible woven press-on interfacing, but it caused the fabric to draw up and I had to make a new front for my suit. What did I do wrong? — Mrs. D. P.

Dear Mrs. D. P.: Any time you apply a woven-type interfacing to a large area of a garment, the interfacing must be pre-shrunk. In fact, the minute you purchase woven interfacing, pre-shrink it and you won't have to worry any longer.

You, too, could win a set of engraved blazer buttons. Send your sewing tips to Eunice Farmer, Box 4994, Des Moines, Iowa 50306. If she publishes your idea, Mrs. Farmer will send you a set.

For your copy of the Sew Simple booklet "Super Caftan," send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer at the address given above.

The doctor says

One blood reading is not sufficient

I am 56 years old and feel just great. However, I was in a department store last week and had my blood pressure taken for a dollar. The attendant said it was just a little high. I live on a pension and cannot afford to go to a doctor all the time to have this problem checked.

Can you tell me what I can do daily to keep my blood pressure down as this might be a problem as I get older.

A single blood pressure measurement is not a very good index of what your pressure usually is. That is why doctors often take several determinations if the reading is high. So don't put too much faith in that one reading which was "just a little high." For mildly elevated blood pressure the best treatment is often weight control, exercise and limiting salt intake. That may solve the problem for many.

I have my cholesterol down from 325 to 225, but I have been told that I have bad circulation in my legs and they ache every morning. Is there anything I can do to reduce the hardening in my arteries?

Your description of your legs aching in the morning bothers me. Leg pains from poor circulation are more apt to occur with exertion, although it is true that in some disorders of circulation muscle cramps can occur without exertion. If you can walk and exert yourself normally I would think that it is less likely that your aching legs are due to poor circulation.

I am not disagreeing with your doctor's statement that you have poor circulation but perhaps your interpretation that this causes your morning leg aches is not correct. You might ask him if you can see a specialist in orthopedics to evaluate your leg discomfort.

It sounds like you are on the right track in decreasing your tendency to atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries). It is important to keep your cholesterol level down. That is usually accomplished by diet and exercise. There are medicines that will help in some cases if this fails to do the trick.

KEEP YOUR weight down, don't smoke, stick to a proper low-fat, low chlesterol diet and, if your legs permit, try to build up your exercise program through walking.

If you do not already exercise a bit start walking every day until you can walk about three miles a day — which need not be all at one time. The more you can build up your exercise the better off you will be — assuming you are not planning on becoming a marathon runner or plan to go to extremes.

Get rid of any fat that you have under your skin. Your exercise will help there. And cut down or eliinate salt. If you have to have it you will do well with Morton's Lite-Salt preparation since it contains only half as much sodium, but don't go overboard on it either.

I presume you don't smoke but if you do stop at once.

Raisins, peanuts, fruit great snacks for kids

Dear Roberta: What sort of foods are you and Mrs. Bush thinking of when you write about healthful trick-or-treats on Halloween? Also, I thought raisins, which were recommended, were full of sugar. Am I wrong about this?—Helen Oliveri

You're right that raisins have lots of sugars (sucrose and fructose are present in dried fruits), but on the other hand they're a good source of iron as well as energy. How about peanuts in the shell, which supply lots of protein, minerals and B vitamins? The "true" nuts are fine sources of these nutrients also. Consider oranges, high in vitamin C and good in vitamin A. Bananas, too, are fine for snacking and provide essential minerals and vitamin A. Remember that these are good snacking foods also because they do not have too much salt, questionable additives or refined sugars and grains.

Dear Roberta: Before dyeing a garment, baste a few rows of plain white threat into the inside of the hemp or in some other unseen part of the item. You can leave the thread there, or remove it when dry and wind on a spool. You'll have a perfectly matched thread for hemming or mending the garment at a later date.—Mrs. Arlene Hopkins

Dear Roberta: Figuring out which socks belonged to which child when the laundry was done used to be a major nuisance. Now the children wear the same "tube socks" — which don't come in sizes. All I have to do is divide them up equally—Claire Ford

Dear Roberta: In place of salt, I season rice with instant beef or chicken broth powder and either onion powder or freeze-dried chives. Sure sparks up the flavor.—Joy Howard

Weddings

Laura Andersen—Charles Burton

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Burton

Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights, was the setting for the Sept. 3 wedding of Laura Jean Andersen of Arlington Heights and Charles R. Burton of Harvard, Ill. A buffet dinner for 175 at the Arlington Elks Club followed the 6:15 p m. candlelight ceremony.

Laura is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Andersen and Charlie the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Burton.

Donna Jo Smith, Bloomington, was her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaids were Debra Shakon, Mount Prospect, and Carolyn Halminiak, Arlington Heights.

STEVE BELL, Harvard, was best man and the couple's brothers, Ronald Burton and Donald Andersen, along with Louis Ballo, Chicago, were ushers.

After a week's honeymoon at Walt Disney World in Florida, the couple is now settled in a new house in Arlington Heights.

Laura, a '76 graduate of Arlington High School, is employed by Fahey Medical Center, Des Plaines, and Charlie races thoroughbred horses in the Chicago area.

Janet Ruthen—Bruce Shaw

A coral and apricot color-scheme was chosen by Janet Ruthen, daughter of John J. Ruthen, Cincinnati, Ohio, for her wedding to Bruce Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Shaw, Palatine. The 5 p.m. double-ring ceremony took place Sept. 4 at Carthage United Church of Christ, Cincinnati.

Ardith Ward, Prairie View, was maid of honor, with Ellen Dougherty, Mundelein, and Janet's cousin, Susan Ruthen, Cincinnati, serving as bridesmaids. Bruce's brother, Robert, served as best man. Others in the groom's party were Edward Meyer, Palatine, and Linden Glaser, London Mills, Ill.

McIntosh's Restaurant in Cincinati was the scene of the dinner-dance reception following the wedding.

Both Janet and Bruce were students at Knox College, Galesburg, Bruce graduating in 1974. He is also a graduate of Palatine High School, 1970, They now live in Dallas, Texas, where Bruce is working for National Starch and Chemicals.

Jane C. Watson—William R. Hartmann

Two Mount Prospect families were united in the Sept. 10 marriage of Jane Catherine Watson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Nolan Watson, and William Robert Hartmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hartmann. The 3 p.m. double-ring ceremony took place by candlelight at St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, in an apricot and camel color scheme.

Jane's sister, Peggy Jacoby, San Jose, Calif., served as matron of honor, with Charlene Anton, Valparaiso, Ind.; Debra Hoover, Lowell, Ind.; and Betsy Hartmann, the groom's cousin of Huntley, Ill., as bridesmaids.

The groom chose Larry Mohr, Tinley Park, as best man. Groomsmen were Rich Jante, Burlington, Wis.; Ken Johnson, Schaumburg; and Richard Hartmann, the groom's brother. Jeff Seager, Wauwatosa, Wis., and William's cousin, Gary Aho, Minneapolis, served as ushers.

GUESTS CONGRATULATED the couple at a reception at the Embers Restaurant before the newlyweds left for a week's honeymoon in Wisconsin and northern Minnesota. They will be residing in the new home they are building in Huntley.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Prospect High School, she in '73 and he in '72, and of Valparaiso University, '77 and '76. William has been employed at Underwriters Laboratories, Northbrook.

UNICEF Day cartons available

UNICEF Day collection cartons for individuals or groups wishing to "Trick or Treat" for UNICEF are still available at the Chicago UNICEF Office, 5 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

The cartons are mailed free of charge, and there is still time to plan a fund-raising party or just collect individually. Trick or Treat collections have raised $3 million for children in developing countries, and funds were used to purchase food and health and educational supplies.

The Chicago UNICEF, 372-5359, may be called for the cartons, or for information on where they may be picked up in the suburbs.

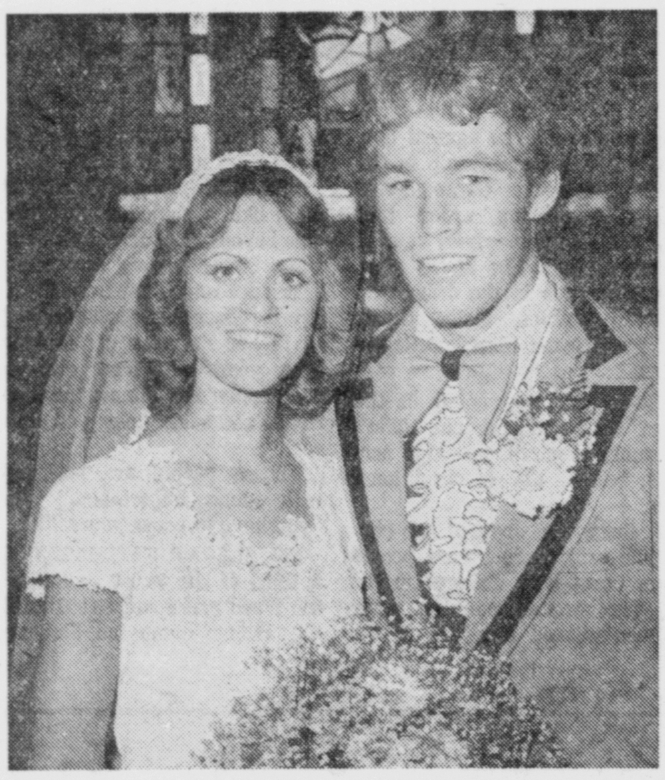
Woman's clubs to sell cards

As the ways and means project for the year all federated women's clubs in Seventh District Illinois Federation of Woman's Clubs will be selling note cards depicting two Chicago landmarks, the Water Tower and Jane Addams Hull House. Boxes of eight cards, with covers designed by Mrs. Roy B. Sove, district president, sell for $1.50.

District clubs will hold their fall meeting Wednesday at Trinity Lutheran Church, Des Plaines with Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights and the Woman's Club of Rolling Meadows among the hostess clubs. The morning session begins at 10 and will include arts, education, health, home life and treasurer workshops. Mrs. Robert W. MacGregor, IFWC treasurer, will be guest speaker.

FOLLOWING LUNCHEON, Mrs. Gordon T. Beckley of Arlington Heights, first vice president of the Illinois Federation, will talk on state projects with emphasis on brain research.

Concluding the meeting will be a slide presentation by Mrs. Naomi Walter, past president of Streamwood Junior Woman's Club, on the LaSalle II expedition, a project of the Illinois Federation.



Mr. and Mrs. Kent D. Lewis

Cindy Sue Lewis—Kent Douglas Lewis

Two Lewis families were united Sept. 17 when Cindy Sue Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lewis of Hobart, Ind., and Kent Douglas Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rexford Lewis of Buffalo Grove, were united in marriage.

The couple, both '77 graduates of Illinois State University, repeated vows in Augustana Lutheran Church in Hobart, and they now are residing in a Wheeling apartment.

Cindy, who majored in textiles and clothing is employed by Carson's Randhurst store, and Kent teaches and coaches at New Trier East High in Winnetka. Kent is also a graduate of Wheeling High.

FOR THE 3 P.M. service Cindy chose a peau de chine gown trimmed in Guipure lace. Matching lace trimmed her fingertip veil, and she carried baby's breath with white flowers.

Matron of honor was Jenny Rowe, Munster, Ind., and maid of honor was Sue Roy, Hobart. Bridesmaids were the bride's cousin, Cheryl Lewis, Hobart, Lisa Brewer, Knightstown, Ind., and the groom's sister, Kelly.

Mike Millay, Arlington Heights, was best man, and groomsmen were the bride's brother, Bill, the groom's brother, Kirt, and Rich Porter and Jeff Bond, Hammond, Ind. Ushers were the groom's brothers, Dan and Kevin, customers sitting at the bar may overhear you and disagree. You can easily cause hard feelings or make enemies without even knowing it. The world's best bartenders keep their mouths shut and their opinions to themselves."

Serving behind bars is no solitary confinement

Bob Larlee, director of the school, says, "We tell them not to get involved. It would be bad for business . . . You listen, but you don't talk."

Larlee's school turns out bartenders for the larger, fancier joints, the Hyatts and Hiltons. Medium-sized bars like Bill Marquette's Knights Pub train their own bartenders. And the fast-fading neighborhood bar never seeks help from a school.

"We don't deal with neighborhood bars," Larlee says.

A TALKY BARTENDER may be out of place at the Marriott, but at the typical neighborhood bar it's an entirely different story.

Take the Schaum-Rose Inn, a tavern in Schaumburg that has been around since prohibition, before there was even a village. This is the kind of place where the only difference between the bartender and his clients is which side of the bar they're on.

At 10 o'clock on a weekday morning several old geezers sit huddled over the bar, looking as if they haven't moved in 20 years. In the back a few younger are playing pool.

WAYNE NEBEL, a heavy-set man with short curly hair, stands at the far end of the bar, talking with friends. His phrases have a way of exploding at the beginning with sort of a laugh, after which they trail off to nothing.

Nebel, 47, has been bartender and owner of the Schaum-Rose for the past 18 years. He smiles when asked whether part of his job is to act as an amateur psychologist. It seems like an odd question for someone who is more friend than bartender to his customers.

Nebel doesn't deny that his customers, most of them men, often talk about their problems at the bar. He just doesn't think it's his place to give advice.

"YOU'VE ALWAYS got somebody with problems," he says. "I don't think you're actually helping anybody, if it gets to be that serious of a problem."

Nebel admits that he often gets involved in all sorts of conservations at the bar. He wouldn't want to be the kind of bartender who just dispenses drinks.

"It gets to be an awful boring, long day. If you're going to cold-shoulder everyone who comes in, you're not going to have anyone around. Everyone enjoys a little attention."

SOMETIMES THAT'S all a person needs. Someone to talk to, to make them feel less alone. Just talking about a problem often makes it easier to deal with; it puts it in perspective. In dealing with these problems, most neighborhood bartenders have developed a style as subtle as a Freudian psychiatrist's: just sit back and let the patient talk.

That's what Don Jones does. Jones, 42, tends bar at Boomers, a small tavern in a sleepy section of Des Plaines. "The meeting place of nice people," the sign reads outside.

"All I do is listen," Jones says. "Very seldom does anyone ask your opinion, they just want someone to listen. They want to get something off their chest."

Weddings

Janice Lee Turner–William E. Sandford III

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Sandford III

Following a honeymoon in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, Janice Lee Turner and William E. Sandford III are making their home in an Elk Grove Village apartment. Both also are employed in Elk Grove, Janice at the public library and William at Field Container.

Janice, daughter of Mrs. Eleanor Turner, Elk Grove, and Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Turner, Elk Grove, and William, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sandford, Des Plaines, were married Sept. 10 in Elk Grove Presbyterian Church. The 1 p.m. double-ring service was followed by a reception for 100 guests.

AN EMPIRE knit gown with lace trim and long train was Janice's choice in wedding gown. She carried roses and mums in melon and white. Melon also was chosen for her attendants: her cousin Mrs. Jean Blackwell, Charlottesville, Va., matron of honor; and Becky Stram, Niles, Mich., and Cathy Bell, Schaumburg, bridesmaids. They carried melon roses and daisies.

Michael Dziedzic, Des Plaines, was the groom's best man, and ushers were the groom's brother, Ken, and Mike Osburn, Park Ridge.

A '72 graduate of Elk Grove High, Janice attended Elmhurst College. Her bridegroom is a '71 graduate of Maine West High.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Krysiak

Patricia Stocker–Robert P. Krysiak

Grayslake, Ill., is the new home for Patricia Ann Stocker and Robert Paul Krysiak, wed Sept. 10. Pat, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Wille, Mundelein, and Bob, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Krysiak, Arlington Heights, were married in Long Grove House of Christ.

The 11 a.m. service was both candlelight and double-ring, followed by a reception for 100 guests at Corrado's in Arlington Heights.

For her marriage Pat chose an ivory knit gown with Venise lace trim. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a Camelot headpiece with matching lace and pearls, and she carried red roses with white mums, baby's breath and greens.

HER SISTER, Mrs. Carol Anderson, Arlington Heights, was her only attendant. Carol was in wine chiffon, and she carried red roses with pink carnations and baby's breath. Attending the groom was his brother, Michael, and ushering were the bride's nephew, Peter Meier, Crystal Lake, and the groom's brother, Mark.

Following a honeymoon at Lake of the Ozarks, Pat returned to her job at The Eagle Restaurant in Arlington Heights and Bob to Culligan Water Conditioning, Wheeling. Pat is a graduate of Ela Vernon High and Bob of Prospect High and Creighton University.

Penny Howe–Kevin Lawyer

The garden of Plentywood Farm in Bensenville was the setting for the noon wedding Sept. 17 uniting Penny Howe and Kevin Lawyer. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres were served following the ceremony.

Penny is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Howe, Arlington Heights, and Kevin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Lawyer, Industry, Ill.

For the double-ring ceremony, the bride chose a sleeveless polyester dress trimmed in Venise lace. Her pleated headpiece complemented an elbow-length veil, also trimmed in Venise lace. She carried white orchids and stephanotis.

Karen Meyer, Arlington Heights, was maid of honor in a cocoa printed sheer dress with matching capelet. She carried lilies, Woburn Abbey roses and stephanotis. Bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, Cheri and Robin, who wore dresses indentical to the maid of honor's and carried similar flowers.

HOWARD RIEBLING, Macomb, was best man and groomsmen were Steve Matejka, Trenton, N.J., and Mike Sayers, Industry. Rick Howe, brother of the bride, and Randy Eccles, Glenwood, a nephew of the groom, were ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Lawyer

After a week's honeymoon on Kiawah Island, South Carolina, the newlyweds are back to work, Penny for the Bank of Lisle and Kevin for Burroughs Corp., Hickory Hills.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Hersey High School and attended Western Illinois University for two years. Kevin graduated from Western Illinois this year.

Kristine VanSteenburg–James W. Johnston Jr.

Now comfortably settled in their condominium in Normal, Ill., after a three-week honeymoon in Mazatlan, Mexico, are the former Kristine Ann VanSteenburg, daughter of the Dale VanSteenburgs of Wheeling, and James William Johnston Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Johnston, Park Forest.

They were married at 1 p.m. Sept. 17 at St. Irenaeus Church in Park Forest. Kristine wore a full-length ivory gown for the double-ring ceremony and carried a bouquet of rosebuds and baby's breath.

Miad of honor was Jane Rideout, Mount Prospect. The groom's sisters, Mary and Joan, served as bridesmaids, as well as Jane Doyle of Normal. The girls were attired in flower-print dresses, two of them in peach-tones, two in ivory.

JAMES CHOSE Mark Ryza, Chicago, as best man. Groomsmen were his brother, Denis; Phil Snave, Quincy, Ill.; and Chris Keane, Chicago. Mark Hendrickson, New York, and Mike Leis, Normal, served as ushers.

A dinner reception at Savoia's Restaurant for 125 guests was followed by an after-reception party at the Johnston home.

Kristine is a 1969 graduate of Wheeling High and earned a degree in elementary education at Illinois State University in 1974. She is employed by Planned Parenthood in Bloomington. James was awarded a degree in psychology from Illinois State in 1974. He is employed by Heavy & Road Construction, Bloomington-Normal.

Linda Guastaferri–Michael Gallalee

While honeymooning in Europe for a month following their Sept. 10 wedding, the former Linda Guastaferri and her bridegroom, Michael Gallalee, attended the Octoberfest in Munich, Germany.

Linda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lou Guastaferri, Des Plaines, and Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Gallalee, Norfolk, Va., were married in the Chapel of St. Ignatius Catholic Church, Chicago, at 2:30 p.m.

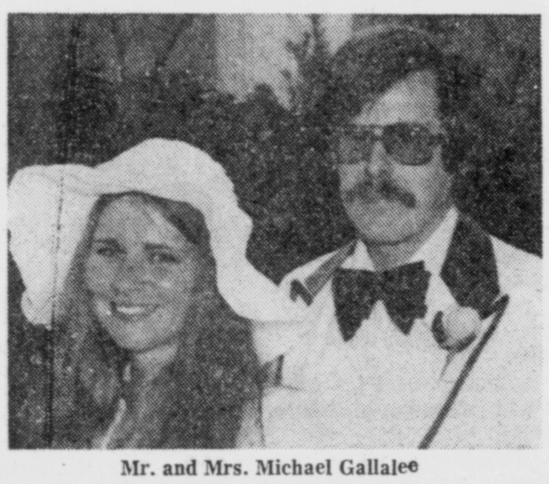
They said their vows in a double-ring service that was followed by a reception for immediate family and friends at the Margarita Club, Evanston.

FOR HER MARRIAGE Linda wore a chiffon and silk gown she designed herself. Sewn by a friend of her parents, it was trimmed with 18 yards of tiny pastel daisies. With it she wore a picture hat, its crown completely covered with the daisy trim, and carried pink and yellow rosebuds with daisies and ivy.

As maid of honor she had the bridegroom's sister Kitty, Chicago. Bridesmaids were Deborah Vettler, Princeton, Ill.; Janet Cole, Lafayette, Ind., and Kathy Schwegel, Chicago.

Their multi-colored floral print gowns were complemented by picture hats and tray-type baskets of ivy and daisies.

JAMES SCHWEGEL served as best man and ushers were Mark Miller and Fred Wagner, both of Chicago, and Doug Cole, Lafayette.



Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gallalee

Linda's 13-year-old brother, Ron, escorted their parents to their pews. Janet and Doug Cole sang a song written by the bride and groom, during the ceremony and readings were given by the groom's sister Susan and Linda's brother Tom.

Both graduates of Knox College, Galesburg, where they met, the newlyweds are living in Rogers Park. The bride works for Shand, Morahand & Co., Evanston, and the groom for Time-Life, Chicago. She also graduated from Elk Grove High School.

Assorted type sales get under way in suburbs

Several area groups are asking friends and neighbors to look around the house for castoffs or if they have a hobby or talent that needs a showcase, to participate in benefit sales scheduled for early November.

Proceeds from all the sales will go toward each group's special philanthropy.

Have an overcrowded bookcase or need to clear out already-read books before housecleaning or moving day?

THERE IS A GIANT used book sale set for No. 4, 5 and 6 at Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect. Ten area clubs request all types of hard-covers and paperbacks: novels, texts, manuals, foreign language books, encyclopedias, dictionaries, National Geographics, Reader's Digests and children's books.

Sheet music and records are also welcome.

Information on donations is available from the following: Arlington Heights AAUW, 259-6378; Arlington Heights Woman's Club, 253-3210; Far Acres ORT, 392-7797 mornings (tax letter upon request); Plum Grove ORT, 634-0522; Arlington Heights Instrumental Band Boosters, 253-8809; Prospect Heights Junior Woman's Club, 394-0804; Aviva Pioneer Women, 259-5969; One Plus One Mothers of Twins, 289-3484.

Northwest Suburban Homemaker Service and the Silver Liners also are taking part in the sale.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Nurses Club is collecting items for the annual "Rags to Riches" boutique, bake and rummage sale Nov. 4 at Pioneer Park. Donations will be accepted at 392-3456.

Area craftsmen and artisans are invited to reserve space at Palatine Newcomers Club third annual country fair. The date is Nov. 10. Booth space may be obtained by calling 991-2752.

The Sisterhood of Congregation Beth Judea, Long Grove, is seeking hobbyists, craftsmen and exhibitors of other new items for its holiday bazaar Nov. 13 at Buffalo Grove High School cafeteria. Booth information is available at 541-0515 or 537-3734.

'Can-Can' is fall show for local troupe

"Can-Can," a musical written by Cole Porter depicting Paris in the Gay Nineties, is the fall production of Best Off Broadway Players. Performances are scheduled Oct. 28-29 and Nov. 4-5 at Buffalo Grove High School.

The female lead role will be played by Paula Unell of Glenview and the male lead by Ken Wells, Chicago. Angelo Karas is director.

The chorus and supporting cast include Judy Gabl, Jack Kenney and Deborah Zeedyk, Arlington Heights; Earl Carlson, Ray DiCosala, Cathleen Lewis, Michelle Robinson and Tom Ryan, Mount Prospect; Burt Kuhr, Jim Groat and Mat Bois, Elk Grove Village.

ALSO, FROM THE area: Susan Zieman and Linda Yokubinas, Palatine; Jan DiCosala, Wheeling; Larry Peterson, Des Plaines; and Jeff Villareal, Streamwood.

Tickets are available from Natalie Ferguson, 885-4499 or 439-7200. Season subscriber tickets also are on sale for preferred seating to all 1977-78 performances. Carmela Gabl, 392-4875, has further details on this arrangement.

Bibles to war documents on display at area library

Old family Bibles, Civil War documents, ancestry charts and old birth and marriage certificates are among artifacts displayed this month in the foyer of the Mount Prospect Public Library. The items have been collected during research studies by members of Northwest Suburban Council of Genealogists.

Speaking to the club at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the library will be Joseph Downey, who will discuss "How to Organize Your Materials." He also will answer questions regarding research in Kentucky.

The genealogists, organized last year, had 65 members in June at the close of its first year. The public is invited to Thursday's meeting and for those interested in membership, dues are $5 for an individual; $7 for a family; and $2 for students. Research forms and other supplies are available for nominal prices at the meetings.

AAUW on the moon

A moon landing survival game in which participants will have to learn to work together or perish will help explore the meaning of group dynamics Tuesday evening for Schaumburg Branch of the American Assn. of University Women.

Through the survival game, members will analyze group process, how people work together, what makes a group work well or poorly, each individual's role in the group and how to help a group reach goals it has set.

"Group Dynamics" is one of the series of skills the branch will explore this year while studying the AAUW topic, "Women as Agents of Change."

The 7:30 p.m. meeting will be held in Talman Federal Savings and Loan, Schaumburg. Those wishing further information may call 885-0175 or 358-1541.

Mabley talks to GOP

Jack Mabley, Chicago Tribune columnist, will address the Wheeling Township Women's Republican Club at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Wheeling Township Community Service Center, 1616 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Mabley, who is also president of Skokie Valley Hospital, will discuss "Translating the Dream of National Health Care into Reality." Distributed at the meeting will be an analysis of several health care bills now before Congress. The report, researched by members to acquaint members with alternatives in health care legislation, includes a review of the health care law now in effect in West Germany.

FRANKENSTEIN AND FRIENDS (Jim Sipchen, Betty Osman and Jan Lindell) will be at Thursday's meeting of Buffalo Grove Jaycee-ettes to conjure up new demons and ogres for this year's haunted house at Ranch Mart Center. Proceeds from this annual Halloween event by the Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes support Buffalo Grove Days, the Youth Center and other community projects. Craig loves capturing the city's life

Scott Craig is a very lucky man.

He walks in the shadows of the city every day, looking into strangers' faces and observing the life that embraces the old stone buildings and busy streets of Chicago.

And, he let's his imagination run free. He thinks about how he can pick the brain and touch the heart of the beast; how he can capture one of the city's stories on film.

"THAT'S WHAT LIFE is like for WBBM's producer of prime time documentaries. People become the actors, the city becomes the setting and Craig goes to work.

The Columbus, Ohio, native has always worked in the area of documentaries, although he concentrated on speech and drama at the College of Wooster in Ohio and went on to obtain a masters degree in theater and a Ph.D. in theater history from the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana.

"I wanted to make some money to help pay the bills when I was working on my doctorate degree, and I had always been interested in radio and television, so I got a job at a commercial station in Champaign," he said.

"The station had a large film capacity and they asked me to produce and write 40 half-hour documentaries. Well, there's just no better way to learn. I failed at some, succeeded at others, and discovered where my true love lay," Craig said.

HE HAS BEEN working on documentaries ever since — first with an independent production company, next at WMAQ-TV, Channel 5, and eventually with WBBM. As far as Craig is concerned, the timing could not be better.

"The audiences have been greater than I had ever anticipated for many of my most recent documentaries. We are able to deal with more controversial, meaningful topics and able to make a frank and open statement in documentaries that we couldn't do years ago," Craig said. "Maybe having a good track record helps, but I think locally-produced documentaries are finally coming of age."

Chicago is an uncommonly competitive city for locally-produced programming, which sets a frantic pace for projects like Craig's documentaries. But some take as much as one year to complete.

His award-winning work has spanned everything from "Alone in the Midst of the Land," which dealt with the pollution of Lake Michigan, to his most recent documentary, "Once a Priest," which told the stories of success and failure in a class of seminary school graduates.

FOR THE SECOND year in a row, Craig has decided to try something different and produce Chicago's Joseph Jefferson Awards for theater. The Jeff awards will be televised live from Drury Lane Theatre in McCormick Place tonight at 9 p.m. on Channel 2.

The equivalent of Broadway's "Tony" awards, now in its ninth year in Chicago, the show will be hosted by actress Marlo Thomas and will feature presenters such as Lynn Redgrave, Lee Grant, Susan Blakely, Janet Blair and Mickey Rooney.

Craig says he will blend filmed segments of Chicago theatre presentations during the past year and state artists at work with live, on-stage performances during the ceremonies.

SCOTT CRAIG

But, the Jefferson Awards are merely one aspect of Craig's on-going work. He has an in depth, hour-long documentary which will be broadcast early next year which he isn't saying much about and another documentary scheduled for January that will look at street basketball in Chicago.

"THE BASKETBALL show is pretty indicative of what I like to do. We'll have Warner Saunders, host of Channel 2's "Common Ground" and a former Harlem Globetrotter, Mickey Johnson of the Chicago Bulls and Sonny Parker of the (Golden State) Warriors in the back lots of the city where young boys shoot baskets and dream of making it into big time basketball someday," he said.

"That's the kind of stuff you can't show nationally. But it's getting to the heart of a city and its people, and it's something special to them," Craig said. "That's what I think it's all about."

TV NOTES:

Harry Reasoner will spend the week away from ABC's anchor desk and good buddy Barbara Walters doing an exclusive interview with South African prime minister John Vorster, who has not talked to the television press in ages. The program will be aired today at 5:30 p.m. on Channel 7. It's all part of Roone Arledge's continuing effort to get his anchorpersons out of the studio and on the streets of the world with other reporters.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- "Logan's Run" switches to Mondays at 7 p.m. on Channel 2 beginning tonight, replacing "Young Dan'l Boone."
- The king of the swashbucklers, Errol Flynn, portrays the legendary lover "Don Juan" in the 7 p.m. movie on Channel 32.
- The Cincinnati Bengals meet the Steelers at Pittsburgh in live NFL Football at 8 p.m on Channel 7.
- Cuban ballerina Alicia Alonso guests on "Dick Cavett" at 10 p.m. on Channel 11.

King Tut's role in Exodus still is buried in mystery

Arnold Brackman, whose latest book is 'The Search for the Gold of Tutankhamen," was a former Christian Science Monitor correspondent in Southeast Asia.

by ARNOLD C. BRACKMAN

Was Tutankhamen the pharaoh of Exodus?

As in 1922, when the tomb and treasures of Tutankhamen were discovered, this question has surfaced in the year since the opening of the Tutakhamen exhibition at the National Gallery in Washington. Currently, the collection is on display at the New Orleans Museum of Art.

After a half-century of debate, the question still is unresolved.

Despite the endless inquiry into Tutankhamen's tomb since Howard Carter's discovery, the world today knows as much about the young paraoh, his life, and times, as it did the day Carter unwrapped the august mummy — that is, virtually nothing.

WHEN AND where Tutankhamen was born is a blank. The identity of his parents is not known. When and where he died is unknown, too.

This ignorance points up the biggest disappointment in Carter's work, despite his incredible triumph: the failure to recover from the tomb so much as a shred of papyrus. Thus, the tomb's discovery neither added to nor subtracted from knowledge about Tutankhamen except in one detail, confirmation — long suspected — he represented the transition from Egyptian worship of Aton, the monotheistic conception of a single God under the heretic pharaoh Akhenaton, to a return to the worship of Amon and the former pantheon of Egyptian deities.

The late Samuel Mercer, Egyptologist and Biblical scholar, who taught in Canada, mirrored the dismay of the scholars at the time of the discovery. "Not one inscription of any value has been found," he lamented. "Not a single papyrus has come to light."

Nonetheless, ever since the discovery a volatile debate has raged among Biblical scholars, archaeologists and historians. The core issue is the relationship, if any, between Tutankhamen and Exodus.

A traditional school rests its case on two principal pieces of evidence. In Exodus, the Israelites are reported to have built the treasure city of Ramses II during their sojourn in Egypt. This suggests the Iraelites were in bondage during the 19th dynasty.

AND AROUND the turn of this century a British Egyptologist found the victory stele of the pharaoh Merneptah on which the name "Israel" was mentioned for the first time in Egyptian annals. Merneptah was the successor of Ramses II, circa 1236-1223 B.C.

"Unless we deny the historical accuracy of Exodus," Oxford scholar A. H. Sayce concluded, "the date of Exodus is definitely fixed."

But the Bible's date, as accepted by many authorities, including the "Jewish Encyclopaedia," leads to perplexity.

Tutankhamen, whose funerary mask now is on display in American museums, and the heretic Akhenaton, whom Tutankhamen followed to the throne, belonged to the 18th dynasty. If the Old Testmanet is accurate, Egyptian monotheism apparently was the prescursor of Moses, the law-giver of the Israelites.

Out of this traditional school arises a second school who believes Akhenaton paved the way for Moses. One exponent of this school, Arthur Weigall, also a British Egyptologist, takes the extreme position. He linked Akhenaton's heresy with Exodus. He concluded the Israelites were driven from Egypt at the end of Tutankhamen's reign. He argued the Israelites were not only impliacted in Akhenaton's heresy, but may have caused it.

Cartouche-shaped box

The Goddess Selket

When the old pharaonic religion, consisting of many gods, was restored during Tutankhamen's rule, as shown by the art objects on display at the National Gallery, the Israelites, who believed in one God, were persecuted and ultimately "thrust out of Egypt," Weigall theorized.

SIGMUND FREUD was impressed by this argument. In 1939, in his last work, he described himself as thinking the unthinkable. Moses, the liberator of the Israelites, Freud speculated, was an Egyptian. With Akhenaton's death and the restoration of the old gods under Tutankhamen, the priesthood at Thebes vented its fury on the heretic's memory. Belief in one God was proscribed.

Freud believed Moses had looked to Akhenaton for inspiration. Disappointed by the turn of events, Moses addressed himself to the repressed minority living in Egypt, the Israelites. Through them he sought compensation for what he had lost when Akhenaton died. "Moses chose them for his people and tried to realize his own ideals through them," Freud suggested.

Thus, Freud believed Exodus occurred during Tutakhamen's rule and not during the 19th dynasty as recorded in scripture.

Since 1922, another school has argued Exodus began around 1445 B.C., and, therefore, before the birth of Akhenaton (1379-1362 B.C.) and his successor, Tutakhamen (1361-1352 B.C.). This conclusion suggests Moses was the precursor, rather than the follower, of Akhenaton. But pending new archaeological evidence, this ground is weak.

Some Biblical scholars and Egyptologists have sought to meld the three contending schools into one. They conclude that Exodus took place over a long period of time, perhaps as much as two centuries, as the movement of peoples in antiquity often did. The Israelites left Egypt as the opportunity arose, the main body departing during the reigns of Ramses and Merneptah.

As an exponent of this view, Mr. Mercer concluded "there is, therefore a general sense in which it may be that Tutankhamen was a pharaoh of an exodus of Hebrews from Egypt."

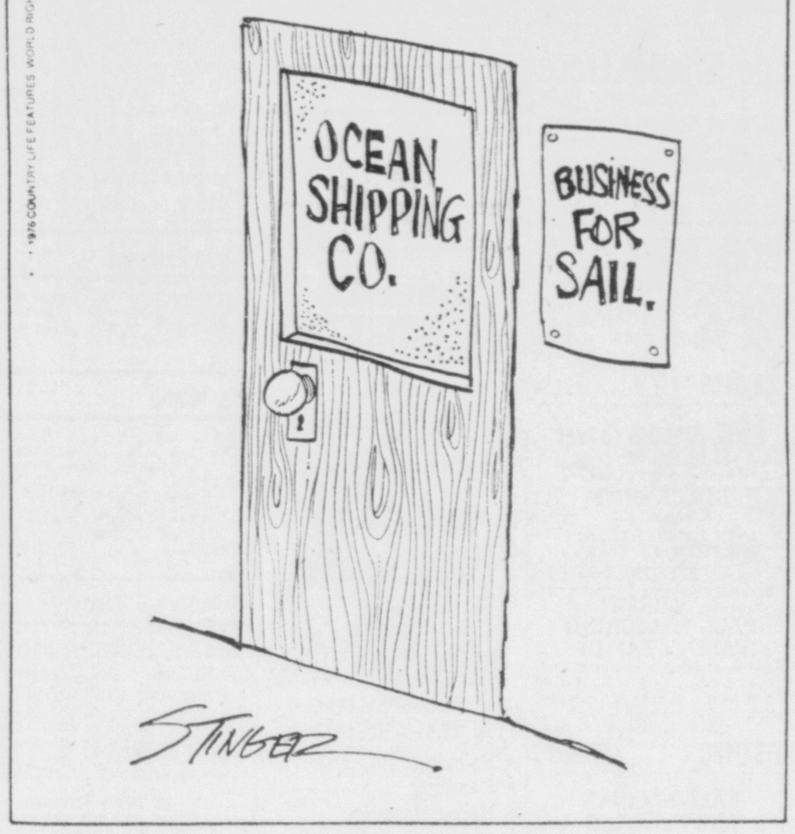
BIG BUSINESS



Sony chairman optimistic about videorecorder sales

Editor's note: Competition from Japan has forced companies such as Zenith and several steel firms to lay off hundreds of workers. One of the earliest Japanese firms to enter the U. S. marketplace was Sony Corp., led by its remarkable chairman Akio Morita. A Christian Science Monitor correspondent in Tokyo recently conducted the following interview with Morita.

Akio Morita bustled into the sleek reception room and apologized for being late: He had been trapped by an unconscionably long telephone call. Plunking himself down on a sofa opposite his guest, he said, "Now, what can I do for you?"

Morita's hair is silver-white, but for a man who spends at least one-third of his time as the chairman of Sony Corp. jetting to Paris or New York to oversee his company's world-girdling operations, he is remarkably fit. His eye is bright, his back straight and he wastes no time getting to his current favorite topic — the mass market he foresees for the video tape recorder, a device Sony first manufactured for home use in 1964 and has been refining ever since.

"TELEVISION," Morita said, "is a marvelous instrument for bringing entertainment and information into the home. Its great disadvantage is that the viewer has to be physically present at the time the program he wants to watch is being transmitted.

"Video tape gives the viewer choice. With it, he can treat television as he does his daily newspaper. He doesn't have to begin with the front page. He can plunge into sports first, if that's what he likes, or business or whatever."

Morita acknowledged that there are skeptics who think the market for an instrument as complex and expensive as the videotape recorder always will be limited. But his own experiences from the earliest days of the company he helped found convince him that he will be proved right.

"From the very beginning our philosophy has been to create a technically superior machine that is at the same time easy to use; not a cheap product, but one that meets some real need. And then, having created it, we educate the customer. We tell him why we made a particular product, how we want him to use it, how it will help him," he said.

ONE OF Sony's earliest products was a music and voice tape recorder, the first in Japan. Morita personally took it around to friends' parties, recording their songs and jokes. More important, he pioneered the concept of audio-visual education, showing schools how tape recorders could be used in the classroom.

Today, as chairman of a multinational company with more than 20,000 employes, Morita still wears a simple navy blue company jacket with the same kind of nameplate used by all other Sony employes.

He is proud that Sony was the first Japanese company to be listed on the New York Stock Exchange and equally proud that today it also is listed on stock exchanges in London, Paris, Vancouver, Hong Kong and 10 other cities. Nearly half of Sony's shares are owned by non-Japanese. Of net sales of $1.57 billion in 1976, domestic sales accounted for $650 million (41.2 per cent) and overseas for 926 million (58.8 per cent).

At the same time, Morita is conscious that, as he put it, "I wear the Rising Sun flag on my chest. We are a Japanese company and we have a responsibility to behave in a manner that will be seen as fair, as well as businesslike, wherever we operate."

LAST NOVEMBER, when trade relations between Japan and Western European countries deteriorated because of the huge surplus the former was building up in its balance of trade with Western Europe (the situation today is, if anything, worse), Morita ing European newspapers asking, "Do you have a product for the Japanese market?" (He already had done the same in the United States four years previously).

"Because we ourselves export all over the world, we know how difficult it is to sell abroad," Morita said. "So we could sympathize with the problems of companies trying to seel their products in Japan. My idea was to put our know-how of the Japanese market at the disposal of enterprising manufacturers abroad."

Today Sony has contracts with more than 100 American and European companies to market their products in Japan.

"Our market is growing," Morita said.

SONY ALSO manufactures color television sets in San Diego, California and Bridgend, Wwales. Earlier this year it completed a magnetic tape factory in Dothan, Alabama. Morita said he is particularly satisifed with results achieved in the British plant in view of the complaints generally heard about the poor work habits of British workers.

"A Japanese employee's loyalty is to his company," he said. "But I find that the loyalty of British workers is to their own work. In this regard, I feel that sometimes they have a greater sense of responsibility than our own workers here in Japan."

How long will it take Sony to become a multinational company in terms of management as well as in products and sales? Morita smiled.

"We're working on it," he said.

A young Harvard Business School graduate who speaks Japanese is a trainee in the company headquarters here in Tokyo. A Swiss citizen is general manager of Sony in West Germany. A Dutch citizen is an executive with Sony Canada. The assistant general manager of Sony's San Diego plant is an Englishman.

Business briefs

State income gain down, study says

The growth of income earned by Illinois residents has slowed somewhat, the Illinois Business Review reports. A survey of income published in the Review's current issue shows the state's total personal income in 1975 was $75.7 billion, an increase of 8.1 per cent from 1974. "That gain represented a slowing in the rate of advance from 8.8 per cent in 1974 and 11.4 per cent in 1973," said the Review, a publication of the Bureau of Economic and Business Research in the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

United seeks more Japan flights

United Airlines says there is a need for new competitive air service between the Pacific Northwest and Japan and that it should be the carrier selected to provide the service. In a brief filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board, United says the lack of competition on the route between Seattle/Portland and Japan has resuled in deficient service, fares and rates that are too high and denial to many passengers and shippers of the shorter and more convenient route from this country to the Orient.

UOP gets U.S. gas contract

UOP Inc.'s international engineering and construction subsidiary, Procon, Inc., has been awarded a $7.5 million contract by the Energy Research and Development Administration, Washington, D.C., to prepare a conceptual design and an economic evaluation for a commercial plant that would produce 250 million standard cubic feet per day of synthetic gas.

North Central Air earlings up

North Central Airlines earned $2.65 million or 21 cents per share, in August, 31 per cent more than the same month one year ago, reported Bernard Sweet, president and chief executive officer. For the first eight months, net earnings increased 87 per cent to $9.45 million and already has exceeded the company's all-time annual earnings record of $8.2 million set in 1974.

Northrup gets Air Force jobs

Northrop Corp.'s Rolling Meadows facility has been awarded contracts totaling $5.6 million by the U.S. Air Force to enhance the capabilities of electronic countermeasures systems for F-15 and B-52 aircraft.

Tandy reports high earnings

Tandy Corp., parent company of the Radio Shack electronics store chain, has announced their 15th consecutive year of increased earnings and records sales. For their 1977 fiscal year, ended June 30. Tandy reported sales of $949,267,000 and income from continuing operations of $71,819,000, up 28 per cent and 12 per cent respectively, over fiscal 1976 sales of $741,722,000 and net income of $64,281,000. Net earnings per average common share were $4.17 with 16,542,000 shares outstanding, as compared to earnings of $3.73 last year with 18,103,000 shares outstanding.

Bussman to build car fuse

Littelfuse, Inc., Des Plaines, has licensed Bussman Manufacturing of St. Louis, Mo., to manufacture its Autofuse, a new concept in fuse design that the company introduced last year following extensive research for General Motors. The Autofuse manufactured by Littelfuse, Inc. replaced traditional glass-type cartridge fuses in all 1978 GM intermediate and full-size cars and on 1978 American Motors Concords, AMX's and Gremlins.

Borg-Warner dividend hiked

Borg-Warner Corp.'s board of directors has voted a 12½ per cent increase in the quarterly cash dividend on its common stock to 45 cents per share, or an indicated $1.80 annually, up from the current rate of $1.60. The increased dividend of 45 cents per share will be payable Nov. 15 to shareholders of record on Oct. 21, 1977.

Beware of those 'hush-hush' loans

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — What is it worth to you to get a fast loan, no collateral, no personal interview, confidentiality guaranteed? How about 14 to 23 per cent? That's the going price range for hush-hush loans, made through the mails to people with better-than-average incomes.

If you're a teacher, civil servant, businessman, lawyer, doctor or other professional, you'll probably qualify. All you need is a minimum income of $15,000 to $25,000 (depending on lender), and a passable credit rating.

Some lenders are small, independent operators. Others are subsidiaries of major financial institutions, like Citibank, Bank of America and the Commercial Credit Corp. They advertise discreetly in professional publications, or through the mails to lists of likely borrowers.

"NEED MONEY?", one of these ads is likely to start. "We would like to send you up to $10,000 (or $25,000) on the basis of your signature alone!" There's no catch — that's just what they'll do. And you may have your money within a week. Some companies include credit life insurance, so the loan will be paid in full if you die.

Who would borrow at those high rates, if he or she has enough income to get red-carpet treatment from a conventional lender? Here's who:

- People who want to free up collateral for other uses. If they've pledged some stock to a bank, for example, they could take one of these loans, repay the bank and get the stock back. That makes it easy to sell the stock. Or they could use it as collateral for another loan.
- People who want unsecured loans for longer periods than banks will g i v e. Mail-order loans may be stretched over five years or more, while more conventional lenders may want repayment in three years.
- People who don't want to discuss their personal finances with a bank officer. Confidential loans are handled by mail, with only a routine credit check. You just fill in a financial statement and mail it to the lender. These loans are often granted to people whose financial condition is too overloaded to be acceptable to banks.
- People who want to keep the loan, or the purpose of the loan, a secret. It's a fact that some borrowers use these loans to finance a gambling or woman habit, or make other expenditures they'd rather no one knew about. Confidential loan services don't ask the purpose of the loan. And they're happy to address borrowers at their offices rather than at home.

THE LOAN probably won't even show up on your record at the credit bureau. Many of these lenders don't report to regular credit bureaus. If they do, it's apt to be one in their geographical area, which may be far from where you live. If someone from the East or West Coasts, for example, borrowed from a lender in the Midwest the loan might be reported only to a Midwestern credit bureau — and even there it would soon be dropped, because you aren't a local resident. (Most of these lenders do, however, exchange information about deadbeats among themselves.)

James Mullins, of Commercial Credit Services Corp., told my associate, Anne Colamosca, that people who use these loans are not in bad shape financially — "If they were, we wouldn't be interested in them." But many are overextended enough that they feel it would be embarrassing (or futile) to approach a financial institution that charges less interest.

The existence of the hush-hush loan business is proof that there's nothing easier than getting over your head in debt. Some groups of people may have to fight for the right to credit; others have to fight off offers of more credit than they reasonably can handle.

Confidential loans are worth more in credit than the loan itself. Yes, the borrower gets instant money. But he doesn't have to use collateral — so whatever collateral he has can be used for yet more loans. And because the loan isn't on his credit record, other lenders may not realize that he's overextended. So it's easier to open charge accounts or get other lines of credit.

If you ever get to the point where you have to seek a hush-hush loan, take it as a warning sign. You're pushing your income too far.

Import rollback helpful to steelmakers: magazine

NEW YORK (UPI) — If sttel imports are rolled back, the domestic steel industry will get a double lift, since the seeds for a dramatic turnaround are present even without a rollback, Iron Age magazine reports.

Iron Age says one positive factor is the fact that the steel market is growing. Steel volume will be up six or seven million tons this year, it says. "This is critical because steel operations have been hovering around break-even profits that are now very high."

Any added volume wuld be high-profit tons, it says. "Even if the import volume is only stabilized, U. S. Mills should eventually benefit from market growth."

Another indication of better days to come is the fact that steel has been selling at "bargain basement prices" that inevitably must firm. It points out that the average price of imported steel in August, when imports accounted for an estimated 20 per cent of the domestic market, was $283 a ton, down from a high of $386 a ton in March 1975.

IN ADDITION to a softening of domestic prices to compete with imports, "There has been a lively price competition between foreign steel producers in the U.S. market," in a push to hold their position.

"There is no question a firming of steel prices would provide a measurable profit increase," it says.

If imports are rolled back, Iron Age says, "domestic producers will get a double lift.

"First the foreign reduction would give U. S. steelmakers a significant volume boost. Secondly, an import cut would relieve price pressures in the U.S. market."

While mill officials do not think their profits will be turning around in the next few months, there are "hopes that early 1978 will see happier days for the steel industry."

Dodgers pick up their bats and clobber Yankees, 10-4

by FRED McMANE

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Los Angeles Dodgers got a pre-game pep talk from their manager, Tom Lasorda, Sunday then turned from pussy cats to tigers and crushed the New York Yankees 10-4 behind the home-run power of Steve Yeager and Reggie Smith to remain alive in the World Series.

After batting only .190 while losing three of the first four games, the Dodgers rapped out 13 hits off left-hander Don Gullett and three relievers to send the Series back to New York at Yankee Stadium for the sixth game Tuesday night.

Burt Hooton, the winner of the second game, will try to get the Dodgers even while Ed Figueroa will make his first appearance of the Series as the starting pitcher for the Yankees.

THE DODGERS had been lethargic in the last two games of the Series but they made it clear from the first inning that they weren't going to be embarrassed in a five-game Series the way they were four years ago by Oakland.

There's no doubt that Lasorda's pre-game meeting was the catalyst.

"I told them how proud I was of them and how I wouldn't trade them for any club in baseball," said Lasorda. "I told them they had beaten a great club in Cincinnati to win the division pennant and had beaten a club (Philadelphia) to win the National League pennant that no one thought we could beat.

"I just told them to go out there and do the job they're supposed to do. We went out and got it and I'm proud of them."

That was the gist of it. No Knute Rockne "Win one for the Gipper." No tears. No dramatic speech. And it worked perfectly.

DAVE LOPES started the rout by smashing a leadoff triple off the left field bullpen and Bill Russell followed with a single to make it 1-0.

While Gullett had performed well in the Series opener, it was apparent by the way he was laboring that this was not going to be his day. He struggled through the next two innings and the Dodgers finally got to him in the fourth.

Steve Garvey started the fourth inning uprising with a double to right center, then scored when Dusty Baker lined a single to left field.

Then the Yankees' defense collapsed for the first time in the Series. Baker reached second when left fielder Lou Piniella bobbled his hit in left and he held there when the sure-handed Graig Nettles booted Lee Lacy's grounder to third for another error. They were the Yankees' first two miscues of the Series and they proved fatal when Yeager followed with a long home run into the left field stands.

"THAT WAS THE turning point," said Yankee Manager Billy Martin. "Up until then we thought we could come back and catch them."

It was the second homer of the series for Yeager, who hit 16 during the regular season. The Dodgers finally kayoed Gullett in the sixth when Smith walked and Garvey lined a one-out single to right. Ken Clay relieved and was greeted by successive run-scoring singles by Baker and Lacy before Yeager capped the three-run rally with a sacrifice fly.

Martin brought in one of his ace relievers, Dick Tidrow, in the sixth but even he wasn't spared the Dodgers' wrath. Russell singled with one out and Smith cracked his second homer of the series over the right-center field wall.

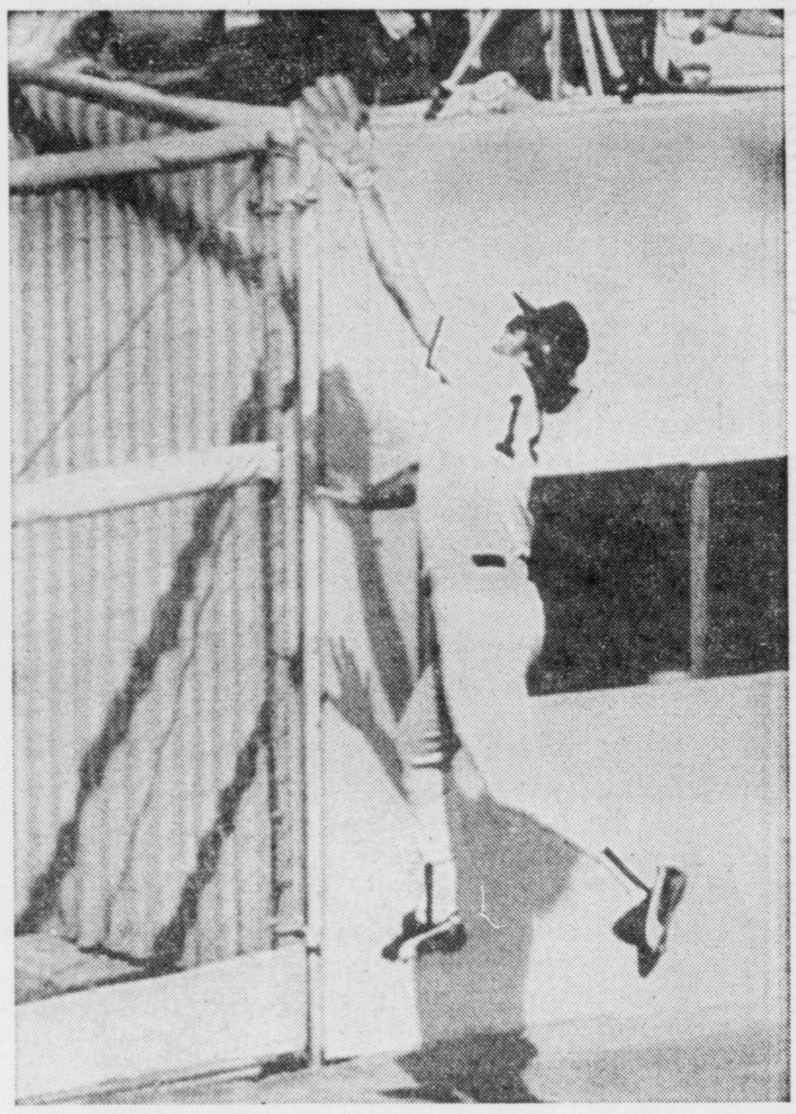
It was the fourth career series homer for Smith, who played for the Boston Red Sox in the 1967 classic, and it was the eighth for the Dodgers in this series.

IT APPEARED for a while that Don Sutton would have no trouble at all with the Yankees. He gave up only three hits over the first six innings, but then was tagged for two runs in the seventh when Jackson and Chambliss led off with singles.

Nettles then dropped a double down the left-field line to score Jackson, but Sutton bore down to retire the next three batters in order with Chambliss scoring the second run on Bucky Dent's infield out.

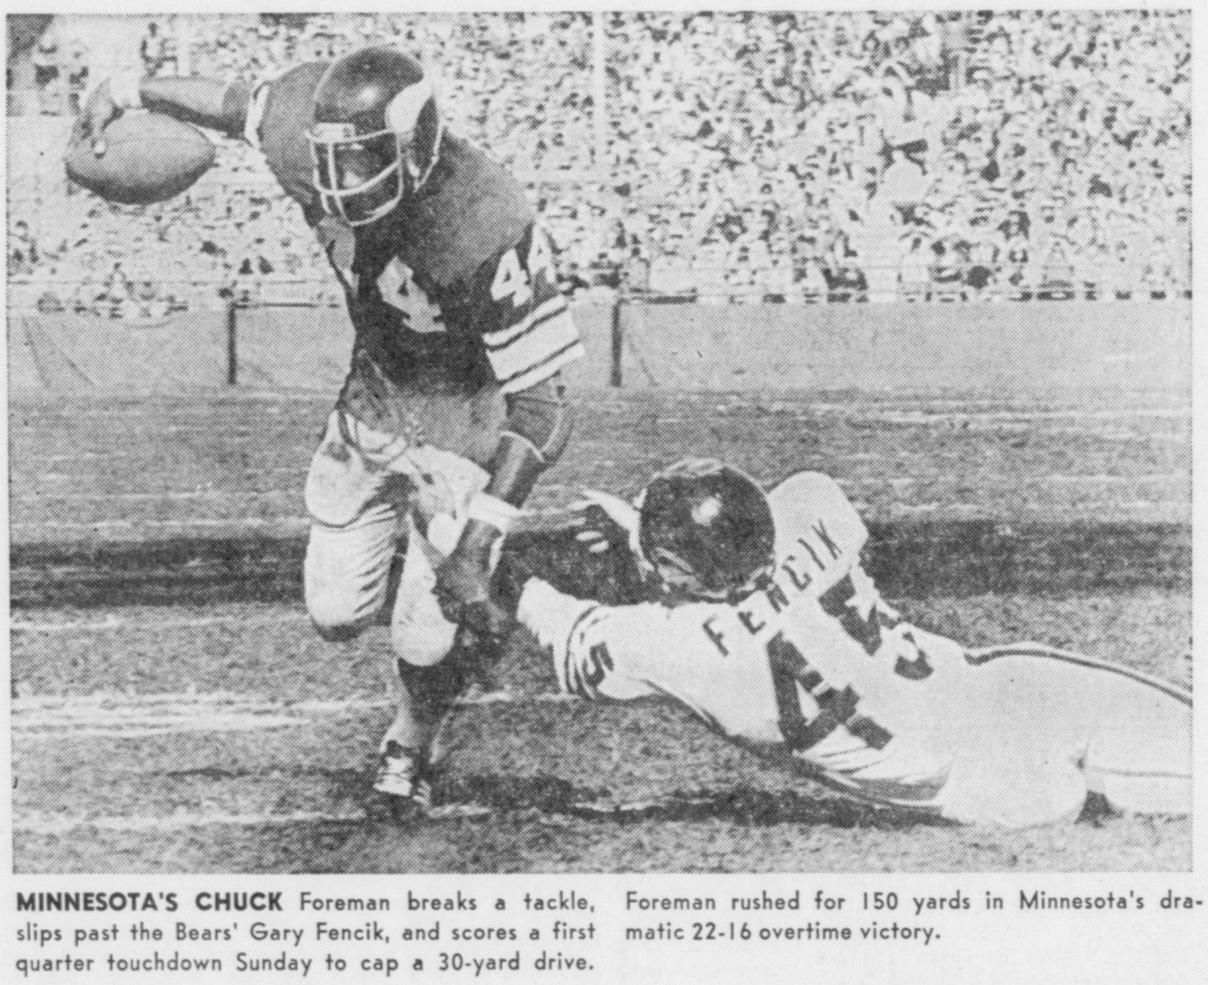
Sutton showed signs of tiring in the eighth when Munson and Jackson homered but he settled down after that and finished up to maintain his image of one of baseball's top "money pitchers."

The Dodgers thus kept their chances alive for becoming baseball's fourth team to rally from a 3-1 deficit and go on to win the Series. It was done by the 1925 Pittsburgh Pirates, 1958 Yankees and 1968 Detroit Tigers.



LOU PINIELLA of the Yankees climbs the wall in an effort to grab fly ball off the bat of Dodgers' Davey Lopes in World Series action Sunday. The ball hit inches below the rail and Lopes got in with a triple. Los Angeles rocked New York, 10-4, at Dodger Stadium.

Pardee sees Vikings beat Bears in OT, 22-16



MINNESOTA'S CHUCK Foreman breaks a tackle, slips past the Bears' Gary Fencik, and scores a first quarter touchdown Sunday to cap a 30-yard drive. Foreman rushed for 150 yards in Minnesota's dramatic 22-16 overtime victory.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Coach Bud Grant hauled out a trick play the Minnesota Vikings had practiced for 10 years, but had never used to beat the Bears 22-16 Sunday in a sudden-death overtime.

The Vikings, starting from their own 20, moved to within 11 yards of the Chicago goal and on first down, Grant sent in kicker Fred Cox, with Paul Krause assigned to hold the ball.

Krause took the snap from center, jumped up, ran to his right and passed to Stu Voigt on the 1-yard line. Voigt crossed the goal for a touchdown.

IT WAS THE first time in history the Bears have been involved in an overtime game. The loss put Chicago in third place in the NFC Central Division and put Chicago coach Jack Pardee at a loss for words.

"The Vikings beat us in typical fashion — with a blocked kick and a trick play," said Pardee.

The blocked kick he referred to was Alan Page's block of Bob Thomas' 31-yard field goal attempt late in the fourth quarter which would have given the Bears a 19-16 victory without need for an overtime.

Talking about the field goal fake, Pardee said "it was good enough to win — just like their other scramble plays.

"THOSE ARE the things the Vikings had going for them," he said. "But I'm proud of our team. We fought back when we were down. We are growing up and this was just one game."

Young Bear quarterback Bob Avellini, who completed 14 passes in 22 attempts for 155 yards, sat dejected in front of his locker after the game looking at his bleeding fingers and said, "Oh, man, it was a real tough loss."

The old veteran Fran Tarkenton completed 16 of 30 passes for 201 yards.

Chuck Foreman of Minnesota and Walter Payton both had big days running. Foreman gained 150 yards and Payton 122.

THE VICTORY gave the Vikings a 4-1 record and strengthened their hold on first place in the NFC Central Division before a crowd of 47,708 in cool, sunny weather.

Chicago had come from behind to take a 16-13 lead with a 51-yard touchdown drive late in the third quarter. Avellini passed to Greg Latta in the right corner of the end zone for the last two yards and the score, with Thomas converting.

But Cox tied it up at 16-16 early in the fourth quarter with a 21-yard field goal after a Minnesota drive had stalled four yards short of the Bears' goal.

Minnesota took advantage of a pair of Chicago fumbles to score a touchdown and a field goal for a 10-0 lead late in the first quarter. Foreman ran around right end for two yards and a touchdown ending a 30-yard drive. The score was set up when Avellini fumbled and Jeff Siemon recovered on the Minnesota 30. Cox converted.

CHICAGO'S ART Best fumbled on the next kickoff and Joe Blahak recovered for Minnesota on Chicago's 20. Four plays later, Cox kicked a 30-yard field goal for a 10-0 lead.

Minnesota got another break late in the second quarter when a punt by Chicago's Bob Parsons bounced backward about 20 yards to the Vikings' 38. Minnesota moved to the Chicago 21 and Cox kicked a 38-yard field goal.

Chicago marched 68 yards for a touchdown with a minute left in the half with Avellini passing nine yards to Bo Rather for the score. Thomas' conversion attempt was blocked by Matt Blair and Minnesota led at halftime 13-6.

Thomas kicked a 38-yard field goal for Chicago early in the third quarter after Foreman fumbled and the Bears' Waymond Bryant recovered to set it up. The Bears then scored their go-ahead touchdown and Cox's field goal tied it up, forcing the overtime.

Hawks beat Buffalo, 2-0, in 1st win

BUFFALO — Firsts by goalie Mike Veisor and defenseman Doug Wilson helped the Black Hawks to a 2-0 victory here Sunday night, their first win of the young National Hockey League season.

Veisor, who played only three games last season for the Hawks, got the starting nod from Coach Bobby Pulford and responded by turning away 34 Sabres' shots to post his first shutout since the 1973-74 season.

Doug Wilson, the Hawks' top draft pick, scored the second Hawk goal for his first NHL point, while Pierre Plante, another newcomer to the Hawks, scored the other tally. Plate was acquired from St. Louis in an off-season trade.

THE VICTORY evened the Hawks' record at 1-1-1 for three points, all of them coming over the weekend. The Hawks came from behind to tie the Colorado Rockies 3-3 in their home opener Saturday night.

Pulford gave Tony Esposito the game off after the regular Hawks'goalie worked the season opener Thursday at Philadelphia and Saturday's game at the Stadium. The new Hawks' coach may use that tactic whenever the Hawks are faced with Saturday-Sunday games in different cities.

The Hawks, who earned less points on the road than any other NHL team except Detroit last year, had not won a game in Buffalo since Dec. 9, 1971. They had lost their last six matches there over three years.

Part of the Hawks' success Sunday could be credited to Pulford, who shrewdly managed to shadow Sabres' high-scoring Gilbert Perrault all game. Pit Martin was sent to the ice whenever Perrault was skating, prompting several heated exchanges between Buffalo coach Marcel Pronovost and the referee over the late line changes of Pulford.

PLANTE OPENED the scoring when both teams were a man short at 9:16 of the first period. Dave Logan took a shot from just inside the Sabres' blue line which went wide of the goal. Martin dug the puck out of the corner and centered to Plante.

With only nine seconds remaining in the second period Wilson scored unassisted on a 50-foot slap shot that caught Buffalo unaware. The Sabres, including goalie Gerry Desjardins, thought a penalty had been whistled moments before Wilson's shot and eased their play.

Wilson was not the only Hawk who picked up his first NHL goal over the weekend. Jean Savard, the No. 2 draft pick behind Wilson, scored his first against the Rockies Saturday.

The Hawks were outshot 34-17 by the Sabres. They also collected more penalty minutes than Buffalo, 24-18. The Hawks host Buffalo at the Stadium Wednesday in their next game.

In other NHL action Sunday Philadelphia beat St. Louis 7-0.

Meadows archers 1st in state meet

by DOROTHY O'SULLIVAN

Mid-Suburban League girl archers were on target this weekend at Eastern Illinois University as Rolling Meadows captured the state title and MSL shooters took five of the 10 individual medals awarded.

Leading by 44 points at the close of Friday's competition, the Mustangs fell back slightly early Saturday as the meet was moved indoors because of inclement weather.

"We lost 17 of the 44 points," said Meadows' coach Ken Bates. "the lighting was not adequate for shooting and there were no shadows like outdoors. The girls had to quickly adapt to spotters to tell them where the arrows were going."

APPARENTLY BATES' girls are good at adapting, for they wound up the two-day meet with a 5,100-point total, 70 ahead of defending champion Freeburg.

Michelle Frank of Hersey breezed to top honors in the individual competition with 1,333 points, shooting three perfect ends at 20 yards. She also set a new tournament record with a first-day score of 685.

"She did just a superb job," said Hersey coach Cheryl Wilcox. "Before the meet we told her to just do her best, no matter where she came in."

A perfect end at 30 yards and a two-day total of 1,312 points won second place for Arlington's Jenny Krock, while Cheri Bates of Rolling Meadows finished a close third with 1,310.

Krock and Bates also exceeded the old first-day record of 660 with totals of 663 and 664, respectively.

OTHER MSL individual medalists were Meadows' Rhonda Ragan, who took fourth with 1,296 points, and Patty Johnsen of Elk Grove, the sixth place finisher at 1,278. Debbie Bartes of Glenbrook North won the fifth spot with 1,279 and Freeburg shooters placed seventh and eighth.

Maureen Frank, Michelle's sister, was the only freshman in the meet, finishing 19th. Wilcox said it's an exceptional achievement for a freshman to qualify for the state tournament.

In team competition, Glenbrook North came in third with 4,976 points. Waterloo chalked up 4,886 to place fourth and Maine West was fifth with 4,750.

"What thoroughly impressed me, though, was the difference in abilities (of the girls) from last year," Bates said. "A 618 last year was good enough to win a medal, while a girl had to shoot in the 630's this year to be in contention. The coaching is so much better."

Vikings fake field goal produces very real TD

by BOB GALLAS

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — It was a play the Vikings practice "only once or twice a week."

It was a play that saw the first and second primary receivers covered.

It was a completed pass by a one time quarterback who hadn't completed a pass "since high school."

IT WAS A play that beat the Bears.

"We call it a fake field goal right," explained 38-year-old kicker Fred Cox. "We have two tight ends and a middle linebacker trying to catch the ball and we're obviously trying to fool someone."

Indeed the Vikings did fool someone as holder Paul Krause, a safety who hadn't thrown a pass since his high school quarterback days, tossed to Stu Voigt off a field goal formation for an 11-yard touchdown that gave Minnesota a 22-16 win in overtime Sunday.

Though Cox had the wind at his back and the Vikings had a first down they used the fake field goal to do in the Bears, who had fought back from a 13-0 deficit early in the second quarter.

"It wasn't a high risk play," said Krause. "If I don't pass I probably could have run it to the five. They (Bears) just weren't coming. Even if I get sacked, it's still second down at the 15.

"WE TALKED about running it right at the beginning (of the overtime period)," Krause said. "We thought about doing it if we got a first down at about the 10 or 12."

The play, which came with 8:15 left in the overtime, was almost stopped by the Bears, who had the first two receivers, middle linebacker Jeff Seimon and tight end Steve Craig, covered.

But they didn't get the third receiver, Voigt.

"There's really little chance that I'll get the ball on that play," explained Voigt. "The play goes to the right and I line up on the left.

"I JUST CROSSED over to the right so if the other two were covered, I would be the outlet."

"I saw Stu coming across wide open," said Krause. "It surprised me that the Bears weren't coming any harder.

The play started in confusion, when Cox ran out on to the field with the field goal team after the Vikings had made a first down at the Bears 11-yard line. Quarterback Fran Tarkenton appeared confused as to what was going on and called a time out.

"We only had eight seconds left on the 30-second clock at the time and I knew they wouldn't get the play off in time," said Tarkenton, who had marched his team down the field on a drive that started on the Vikings' own 20. "I called the time out to save us from losing five yards on the penalty.

"Maybe Krause will have another career now when he's done at safety — a rollout quarterback."

Star Nadia older, but still shining

The little Romanian girl of 15 has grown a bit since those summer days of 1976 when she thrilled the world with her Olympic performances.

She looks a little older and her hair is styled differently, but Nadia Comaneci hasn't lost a thing when it comes to gymnastics.

For the first time, Nadia and her Romanian teammates performed in Chicago Sunday and she didn't disappoint the thousands of people who anticipated her every move.

THERE WOULD be no competition on this day between the Romanian and United States gymnasts who mingled around the Stadium floor, warming up for the show they were about to put on. It was merely an afternoon to sit back and enjoy the beauty and grace of the sport.

Don Friske

Byline report

Almost everyone in the audience could easily shift their minds back to the '76 Olympics when, for five nights, persons all over the country adjusted their own hectic schedules around the television performances of Nadia. Nobody wanted to miss the creation of a superstar.

Television had a big part in making Nadia a name everybody was talking about back then. But it was her own outstanding display of gymnastics expertise that provided a lasting effect, one that carried over to Sunday's show.

As the means of the other gymnasts on the floor were being announced, it was obvious that Nadia's would be the last. People from all corners of the Stadium got their automatic cameras ready to capture her introduction.

WHEN IT was time for the spotlight to rest at her feet, the Stadium looked like an electrical storm with flash bulbs going off in a spray of intermittent light, accompanied by a thunderous ovation.

The show opened with the Romanian girls twirling and dancing like fragile puppets on the middle of the Stadium floor. It was followed by side horse vaulting as the cameras continued to capture anything that Nadia did.

About 30 minutes later, Nadia went through her routine on the balance beam. She missed a few steps and lost her balance, but stayed on the four-inch strip of wood to end the first half of the show.

During the break, young children and their mothers climbed onto the floor to get closer to one of the youngest legends ever produced. When the crowd got out of hand, the ushers quickly forced the hundreds of persons back to their seats.

WHEN "NADIA'S Theme" was played over the public address system a few minutes later, those who were purchasing items at the concession stands rushed back to their seats.

The second half opened with Nadia performing on the uneven parallel bars. She slipped and fell once, but finished the routine with the type of effort that earned her seven perfect scores in Olympic competition.

As the other girls went through their routines, many of the eyes were still focused on Nadia. They watched as she took off her warmups. Or adjusted the mats around the balance beam. Or put chalk on her hands.

It was like studying a pitcher palming a rosin bag or a quarterback putting sweat bands around his wrists. But meaningless or not, the actions belonged to Nadia and that alone provided reason enough to watch.

Nadia's individual performance ended with her floor exercise routine, the most beautiful of events in women's gymnastics. Her effort was flawless, leaving the crowd with one more memory from the girl who has done everything possible to win the hearts of millions.

Broncos snap Oakland win streak

NFL report

Riley Odoms, Jim Turner and Louis Wright converted four of seven pass interceptions off Ken Stabler into 23 points Sunday in leading the unbeaten Denver Broncos to a 30-7 upset of Oakland that ended the world champion Raiders' winning streak at 17 games in the National Football League.

The victory gave the Broncos, 10-point underdogs, a 5-0 record and a one-game lead over the Raiders in the AFC West. The win also extended Denver's winning streak to seveen games, a club record.

In other NFL games Sunday Buffalo nipped Atlanta 3-0, Detroit edged Green Bay 10-6, Miami got by the New York Jets 21-17, St. Louis stopped Philadelphia 21-17, Baltimore pummeled Kansas City 17-6, Cleveland slipped past Houston 24-23, Dallas bombed Washington 34-16, New England stopped San Diego 24-20, Los Angeles turned back New Orleans 14-7 and Seattle felled Tampa Bay 30-23.

NEIL O'DONOGHUE kicked a 30-yard field goal and Buffalo's defense stopped Atlanta on a controversial 4th-and-1 call on the Bills' 4-yard line late in the game to eke out its first win since Oct. 3, 1976.

O. J. Simpson ran 23 times for 138 yards to pass the 10,000 career yard mark — making him only the second NFL player in history to do so. It was Simpson's 41st career 100-yard game.

Don Cockroft became the second leading scorer in Browns' history with three extra-point kicks and he hit a 30-yard field goal on the game's final play in an upset of the Oilers.

Jim Hart passed 38 yards for one touchdown and Terry Metcalf and Jerry Latin scored on runs of 10 and two yards and then the Cardinals fought off a last-minute surge by the Eagles to end their slump.

Greg Landry's 9-yard touchdown toss to Ray Jarvis in the corner of the end zone with 11:59 remaining gave the lethargic Lions a victory over the Packers.

BOB GRIESE guided Miami to a three-touchdown lead and the Dolphin defense survived a second-half New York rally led by Richard Todd to nudge the Jets.

Roger Staubach caught Washington in a maximum blitz and burned the Redskins with a 59-yard touchdown pass to Drew Pearson early in the last period to wrap up a Cowboys' win in a brutal battle that sent one player to the hospital and a half-dozen more to the sidelines.

Lawrence McCutcheon scored the tie-breaking TD in the Ram victory over the Saints and the Giants tallied 17 points in the second quarter en route to their triumph over the winless 49ers.

Steve Myer passed for four touchdowns as the Seahawks won their first game. Meanwhile in Kansas City the Colt victory was never in doubt after a devastating first quarter. Sam Cunningham rushed for 142 yards to help the Patriots top the Chargers.

Second quarter explosion propels St. Viator to win

by J. ANDREW KEHE

The St. Viator Lions handed Holy Cross High School its first East Suburban Conference defeat of the season with a 19-point second quarter surge and ruined the Crusaders' Homecoming 19-11.

The Lions completely dominated first half action with John Josten, the highly regarded senior quarterback, leading the way with his pinpoint passing and powerful sweeps.

Josten hit on seven of nine passes in the first half, including two touchdown passes to Dan Bucaro.

He also carried the ball 11 times for 44 yards.

Holy Cross produced only 41 total yards in the first half but they had to get along without front line quarterback Conrad Hirth for most of the half and the final two periods.

THE LIONS took the opening kickoff and drove to midfield but on third and eight Josten failed to get the first down on an end sweep, electing not to throw against a gusty wind. Following a two-yard shanked punt, the Crusaders started a drive that ended with a 23-yard field goal by John Broderick. The drive went 43 yards to the Lions' six in seven plays.

The Lions again failed to move the ball into Crusader territory and another short punt gave Holy Cross the ball on their own 37. The day ended for Hirth on the second play of the drive after a crushing sack.

Hirth, who reportedly injured himself slightly during warmups, coughed up the ball and Lion middle guard Larry Leibforth pounced on the ball on the Holy Cross 32. Eight plays later John Thompson hurdled over from the one-yard line as the second quarter got under way. Chris Selvig added the point after.

The Crusaders, now facing the wind and with a back-up quarterback, could not move the ball and a 15-yard punt gave the Lions the ball on the Holy Cross 36. Josten rolled to his right on first down and threw back across the field connecting with Bucaro, who broke three tackles down the side line and romped 36 yards for the second score.

Again the Holy Cross offense failed and the Lions took over on the Crusader 31. Defensive Captain Tim Enright along with his front four of Leibforth, Tim Plantz, Mark Zurawski and Ken Gillen had yielded little yardage and put tremendous pressure on reserve quarterback Tom Lanciotti.

JOSTEN COMPLETED passes to Bucaro for 14 yards and Bobruk for 11 to set up Viator's third touchdown of the quarter. Again it was Bucaro on the receiving end of a bullet in between two defenders to cap a 31-yard drive in five plays.

Play in the third quarter was sluggish and full of mistakes. The Lions intercepted two passes, including Josten's 5th of the year. But the Crusaders' defense perked up with three quarterback sacks and a fumble recovery which halted a Lion drive.

Lion coach Jim Lyne assessed the Lions' performance this way: "I wouldn't call it a letdown. Holy Cross just played good football. We made some mistakes but they were stunting on defense and everything I seemed to call didn't work. I didn't want to throw the ball against the wind on first down so on third and long they would just tee off on our line."

St. Viator's troubles continued into the fourth quarter but the defense continued to play well. The Crusaders, led by third string QB Tim Roe, drove to the Lion three but fumbled the ball away. However, Josten quickly fumbled the ball back to Holy Cross. Glenn Cardeli punched it over from the three and with a two point conversion the Crusaders pulled within eight at 19-11.

Holy Cross got as far as the Lion 43 on its last possession, but the Lions ran out the clock on three first downs, driving deep into Crusader territory.

Hoffman girls run to title in Palatine CC invitational

Palatine High School's first girls cross country invitational did not produce any major surprises Saturday.

Pre-meet favorites Hoffman Estates, Rich South, Palatine, Crown Point (Ind.) and Downers Grove North proved they deserved that designation.

Hoffman was the meet champion with 78 points followed by Rich South's 99, Palatine's 113, Crown Point's 115, and Downers Grove North's 122.

OTHER TEAM scores were Rolling Meadows 168, York 181, Lake Forest 188, Munster (Ind.) 213, Glenbrook South 213, Naperville Central 230 and Naperville North's 286.

Although Downers Grove North's Karen Campbell won the individual championship with an 11:24 timing over the two-mile, Union 76 Field course in Schaumburg, three Mid Suburban League athletes finished among the top 10 runners.

They were Joan Kelly of Palatine and Tara Lieby and Charlene Warring of Hoffman Estates. Kelly ran an 11:48 race for third place, Lieby 11:49 for fourth and Warring 12:00 for seventh.

The meet was the second time this year Hoffman Estates beat Rich South for an invitational meet championship. Hoffman finished first and Rich South second in the Woodstock Invitational Oct. 2.

Arlington wins 7th MSL net title in row

by VIC NOVAK

Arlington and Barrington did nothing to disappoint their followers while Prospect surprised their fans in the Mid-Suburban League Girls Conference Tennis Meet at Rolling Meadows High School Saturday.

The Cardinals of Arlington won their seventh consecutive MSL girls tennis championship, but not before Barrington and Prospect gave them a tough battle.

Final meet totals showed Arlington with 19 points, followed by Barrington with 17, and Prospect with nine.

THE FINAL conference standings had Arlington in first place team with Barrington and Prospect tied for second.

Arlington coach Mary Lou Hundt credited her team's success to strong balance.

"The reason we won is that it was a total team effort," said Hundt. "Our whole season has been that way. When someone's been down, there's been someone else to pick us up."

So, when Arlington lost the third singles, and second and third doubles championship matches, the Cardinal girls still had enough to win other conference titles.

AT SECOND singles, Arlington's Kris Richey beat Barrington's Ann Huber 6-1, 6-1. The first doubles title went to Arlington seniors Laura Sanders and Kim Broderick, who defeated Barrington's Tina Stephan and Sue Gregory 7-5, 6-3.

Arlington also won the fourth doubles championship as Suzanne Johnson and Dona Weber topped Barrington's Lisa Young and Bev Bey 5-7, 7-6, 7-5.

The Fillies of Barrington enjoyed a successful first year in the Mid-Suburban League winning the second and third doubles championships.

At second doubles, Barrington's Jana Pope and Diane Owens stopped Arlington's Beth Klawitter and Nancy DiCola 6-3, 5-3.

THE STORY WAS the same at third doubles. Lisa Thompson and Julie Paul of Barrington upended Nancy Carter and Mary Weber of Arlington 3-6, 6-3, 6-0.

Barrington coach Lynda Scranton was pleased with her team's performance.

"They played well and I have nothing to complain about," she said. "I think we've done well this season, considering we lost seven starters."

Prospect's Jean Walker also thought her team performed well despite some losses. Three Prospect players switched to volleyball and four others graduated.

"THE SEASON was a pleasant surprise to me because most of our players had little experience." Walker said, "I never expected to come out as good as we did this year."

Prospect's Vicki Moore and Buffalo Grove's Lisa Smart also captured conference titles.

Moore's 6-1, 6-1 win against Arlington's Sherry Weber made her the third singles champ while Smart's 6-0, 7-6 victory over Kate Swaya of Hoffman Estates supplied her with the first singles title.

Smart's championship was her third straight first singles title. She is only a junior.

District play, which begins this weekend, is the next step in the girls tennis season.

CARDINAL CLASS. Returning a shot in doubles competition Saturday at the Mid-Suburban League meet is Arlington High School's Suzanne Johnson. The Cardinal sophomore teamed up with Dona Weber to win the No. 4 doubles title as Arlington took over-all honors.

Harper's string of 3 shutout wins stumps happy coach

by DON FRISKE

In the last three games, the Harper College football team has fallen into a pattern that coach John Eliasik does not totally understand, but you won't hear him complaining about it.

The result has been three straight shutout victories, the most recent a 20-0 job against Triton Saturday. For three contests, the Hawks have defended their goal line as if nothing less than life in junior college competition depended on it.

As a unit, the Hawk defensive players have blended together for an awesome attack that seems to grow stronger as the power of pride builds with each shot at holding the opponent scoreless.

"IT'S ONE of those intangibles that just has to come," Eliasik said. "And it's working with our defense."

The closest Eliasik can get to describing what has transformed is that the Hawks have "a blending of players and talent" on defense.

The offense is not to be left out in this story of developing characters. It, too, has played a role in the Hawks' continuing success.

But, too often for Eliasik's liking, the offensive players coast along with little trouble before they forget the punch line. And that, in simple football terms, means scoring a touchdown.

"AGAIN, I was not pleased with the scoring," Eliasik said after the Triton victory. "We should have had two more touchdowns than we got."
more touchdown than we got."

On Harper's last possession of the opening half, a 62-yard drive ended on the three-yard line with a fumble that was recovered by the Trojans. Another was halted at the seven when the Hawks had to settle for a Pete Passaglia field goal from 25 yards.

Those were the two Eliasik probably was talking about, but there were others. Two Hawk possessions inside the Triton 30 were canceled by interceptions. Passaglia's 45-yard field goal was the final result of another.

Even with all this, Eliasik can remain in good spirits as long as his offense scores more points than the defense allows. That has been a humble request in the last three games, thanks to the Hawk defense.

BEFORE THE defensive players put together the three consecutive shutouts, which they call their "triple crown," the Hawks were being embarrased by Illinois Valley and Rock Valley.

They lost to those teams by a combined score of 49-10, but since then they have outscored their opponents, 45-0, to go with an advantage of 783-420 in total yardage.

Jim Collins

Ricky Williams

In the second half against Triton, the Trojans never got beyond their own 46. The Hawks faced their biggest challenge to the shutout bid in the first quarter when the Trojans marched 80 yards only to have a touchdown called back on an illegal procedure penalty. Their next possession ended with a field goal attempt that fell short, and that was it for good scoring opportunities.

Meanwhile, the Hawks took advantage of a bad Triton pitchout after Harper's Jim Collins fell on the loose ball at the Triton four-yard line. Three plays later, Hawk quarterback Jim Atkinson powered his way into the end zone from the goal line.

A 57-YARD run by Ricky Williams was wasted on the next Hawk possession, which ended with a fumble.

Williams was able to score his first touchdown of the season in the fourth quarter when he pierced the goal line from three yards out. The touchdown was set up on a 42-yard pass from Gaydon Brandt to Neil Schmidt.

That drive capped a solid afternoon for the Hawks, a team that seems to be following a script in the ways it achieves victory.

"Those are nice instant replays," Eliasik said, referring to the Hawks' pattern, "and I hope we keep seeing them."

It won't be easy this Saturday, when the Hawks travel to Joliet to face a team that was No. 1 in the nation among junior colleges before being upset by Wright, 19-14.

Unusual typifies Arlington wins

by CHRIS THOMAS

Like its mascot, the Arlington Cardinals football team used the air to travel to two touchdowns in the last five minutes of the game, upsetting host Buffalo Grove Saturday 12-9.

The Cardinals were victims of their mistakes throughout most of the game, although Buffalo Grove failed many times to capitalize on the miscues.

"We should have had it won in the first half," Buffalo Grove Coach Grant Blaney said. "We failed to take advantage of our opporutnities."

On the second play of the game, the Bison recovered a fumble on the Cardinal 34-yard line. After being stalled on the drive, Buffalo Grove's Greg Walther kicked a 32-yard field goal with the aid of a strong wind at his back.

ARLINGTON AGAIN turned over the ball on its next possession when Bison Bob More picked off an errant pass. After a penalty walkoff on the play, the Bison had possession on the Cardinal 37. Striking quickly, quarterback Craig Groot hit end Bob Volkman with a perfect pass over the middle. Volkman legged it the entire 37 yards into the end zone for the score. The point-after-touchdown attempt was wide to the right, but it really didn't matter. With only seven minutes gone in the game, the Bison were ahead 9-0.

Buffalo Grove didn't know it then, but they were not to put any more points on the board the rest of the afternoon, despite the fact that they started their next three drives from the Arlington 23, 32 and 26.

The Arlington defense began giving up yardage very grudgingly. "Our defense played a super ball game," Cardinal coach Chuck Haines said. "We were fortuanate that Buffalo Grove did not put more points up than they did."

The third quarted saw neither team get close to scoring, which in itself was a moral victory for the Cardinal defense, which had played the entire first half deep in their own territory.

THE FOURTH quarter held the promise of more of the same back and forth football, and it was beginning to look as if time were running out on any hopes that the Cardinals might have for a victory. Buffalo Grove ate up most of the fourth quarter with a drive that ended on the Cardinal 7. Arlington took over on downs with slightly more than six minutes remaining in the game.

Taking into account that the Cardinals had only recorded one first down the entire game and had visited Bison turf only twice, the situation looked hopeless. But, as Arlington's Haines said. "Football is not a game for passive individuals." The Cardinals proved they were not passive.

After completing two pass plays, the Cardinals found themselves with a fourth-and-two situation on their own 29.

Quarterback Chuck Klein staggered a long count on the play and drew the Bison defense offside. The first down enabled the Cardinals to continue what was to be a spectacular finish. The play also gave the crowd some inkling that the fortunes of Arlington were changing.

On the next play, the inkling became reality. Klein took the snap from center, and under pressure from the Bison defense, threw a strike to end Chuck Gilman.

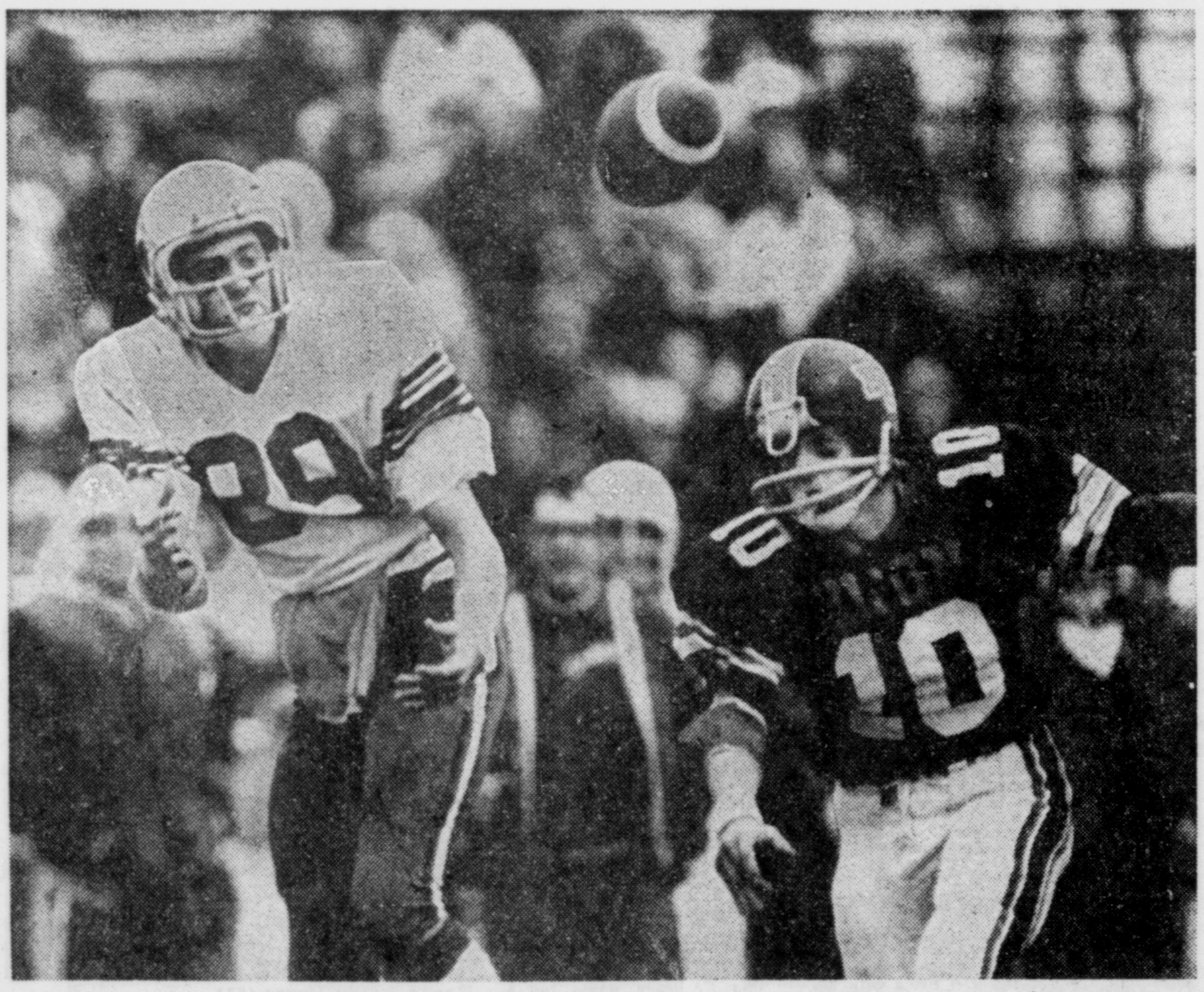
Gilman gathered the ball in near midfield and won a foot race to the flag. The play covered 66 yards and stunned the homecoming crowd into silence. The point-after attempt failed with 5:21 showing on the clock.

ARLINGTON RECOVERED the onside kick but an interception seemed to end any chances that they might have had. There was still 1:06 showing on the clock when they got the ball back on the 44 of the Bisons after a punt.

In three plays, the Cardinals moved the ball 13 yards and still had 0:49 seconds left to play.

Klein again passed to Gilman, this time on a 31-yarder that Gilman hauled in on the one-foot line, in spite of the two Bison defenders hanging on him. Klein went the last foot for the score, and with 36 seconds left, the Cardinals had the lead 12-9.

By all rights, that should have been the end of more scoring threats. But this was a very unusual game. On the first play after the kickoff, Buffalo Grove's Greg Bazany went 60 yards for the apparent score, but a holding call nullified the run and finally sealed the victory for the Cardinals.



DEFLECTING A PASS intended for Arlington's Chuck Gilman, left, is Buffalo Grove's Bob More in Mid-Suburban League football action Saturday afternoon. Arlington posted a tense 12-9 victory over the host Bison. (Photo by Craig Camp)

FUELED FEUD. While the feud between New York Yankee manager Billy Martin and his star outfielder Reggie Jackson continues to be fueled by the media, the two strike an uncharasteristic pose prior to the fifth World Series game in Los Angeles. Jackson has reportedly told Yankee management he will not play for them next year if Martin is back.

Irwin tops Barber to win Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — Millionaire Hale Irwin fired a 67 Sunday for a 14-under par 266 and his third victory of the year in the $150,000 Texas Open golf tournament.

The $30,000 first prize moved Irwin to fourth place on the year's money list with $221,455 and marked the third straight year he has surpassed $200,000. His career earnings increased to $1,234,230.

Irwin fired birdies of 3, 6, 9, 29 and 12 feet in his two-stroke victory over Miller Barber on the 6,525-yard Oak Hills Country Club course. Barber won $17,100 for second with a 12-under-par 268, his second straight Texas Open runnerup finish. Barber lost in a playoff last year to Butch Baird.

Tom Kite, who was tied with Irwin for the third round lead, faltered to a one-over 71 Sunday and finished third at 270.

Adding drama to the finish was second-year pro Carlton White, who came into the Texas Open needing to win $6,066 to keep his PGA card. White had to finish fifth and despite a double bogey on No. 17 and finishing the round two-over, he gained a fourth-place tie with veteran George Archer. His eight-under 272 earned him $6,660 — just $524 more than he needed.

Jackson denies rift with Martin

LOS ANGELES— A potential new Yankee controversy, fueled by a Time magazine report that Reggie Jackson would not play next season if Manager Billy Martin remained, was dampened Sunday by both the outfielder and manager in a clubhouse interview following the Dodgers' 10-4 victory over the Yankees, who still lead the World Series three games to two.

In the magazine story, it was reported that Jackson met recently with Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner, claiming he would not play for the Yankees next season if Martin stayed.

"It's a lie," Jackson said. "That's not true. I have purposely stayed away from the owner because I knew some weak story like this would be stirred up to create controversy."

Borg captures Madrid net tourney

MADRID — Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden Sunday won his first tournament since injuring his shoulder at Forest Hills, beating Jaime Fillol of Chile, 6-3, 6-0, 6-7, 7-6 in the final of the $100,000 Madrid Grand Prix tennis tournament.

The victory netted the 21-year-old Swede $14,000 and Fillol $7,000.

Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia won the women's singles by defeating Mariana Simionescu of Rumania, 6-4, 7-5.

In a three-hour match, Borg breezed through an erratic Fillol almost effortlessly in the first two sets, passing him time and again as the Chilean desperately rushed the net. He scored a total of eight aces in Saturday's semi-finals and Sunday's final.

Bradshaw likely Steeler starter

PITTSBURGH — It's down to the 11th hour now and Pittsburgh Steelers Coach Chuck Noll says he still doesn't know who he'll start at quarterback in Monday night's crucial AFC Central Division clash with Cincinnati.

Don't kid yourself.

If at all possible, he will have Terry Bradshaw — broken wrist, plastic cast and all — in the driver's seat. He has never said as much but when the subject of quarterbacks pops up, Noll has Bradshaw center stage and says he will just have to "wait and see" what happens if his star can't play.

Noll said Friday that Bradshaw had experienced some swelling in the wrist (his left one, he throws with his right) resulting from practice the previous day but was doing "fairly well." Bradshaw was having some pain taking snaps and making handoffs.

"He'll start Monday if his situation doesn't get any worse — or I should say he'll only start if it gets better," Noll said. Then he laughed. "Good thing he's not lefthanded, huh? Then, we'd really have problems."

Marsh is Lancome Trophy winner

SAINT - NOM - LA - BRETCHE, France — World match play champion Graham Marsh of Australia beat Severiano Ballesteros of Spain on the first hole of sudden-death playoff Sunday to win the $40,000 Lancome Trophy golf tournament.

The tournament went into a playoff when both men covered 72 holes with totals of 273 strokes, Marsh returning a six under par 66 and Ballesteros scoring 68, four under par.

It was all over for Ballesteros on the first hole of the playoff when Marsh sank a four-foot putt for a birdie 3 and the Spaniard could only manage a par four.

American veteran Gene Littler had a final round of two under par 70 for a total of 281 to take third place.

Palatine runners run to big win

by ART MUGALIAN

Rankings in cross country don't mean much, especially to Palatine coach Joe Johnson, whose Pirate runners came home with a victory at the Mattoon Invitational Saturday.

The victory, with a total of 94 points, may have been a slight shock considering that Palatine beat third-ranked Glenbard West (146), the team that a lot of observers were tabbing the heir apparent to Deerfield.

BUT PALATINE had beaten second-ranked Fremd in a dual meet just ast Thursday — and nobody mentioned at that time that the Pirates were ranked only seventh, down from fourth.

"The rankings don't indicate much of anything," said Johnson. "Especially once you get to the state meet. You never want to count your chickens before they hatch. It doesn't help to be ranked. Last year we were ranked third and we finished 11th in the state meet. It might be a jinx on our team to be ranked."

So Johnson will settle for the satisfaction of another big win, paced by senior Tom Johnson who ran second just six seconds behind winner Jim Spivey of Fenton, last year's state runnerup.

Johnson's teammate, Chuck Elliott, was 10th, followed by fellow Pirates Kevin Nikolai (12th), Jon Dahlgren (31st), and Jon Laegeler (39th).

"A LOT of people think we're not a good big-meet team," said the Palatine coach. "I suppose they think so because we don't have much depth. But I think we'll be competitive in the state meet. Naturally, Deerfield has to be the favorite, though."

Johnson called Mattoon one of the state's toughest meets, pointing out that his team beat not only Glenbard West, but other rated teams such as Riverside-Brookfield, Danville, Loyola and Lebanon.

Hersey, led by a fifth-place finish from junior Steve Johnson, took third over-all with 158 points. Huskie junior Rich Rieger was 15th.

St. Viator's Dave Efken was fourth individually, although his team finished far down in the roster of entries.

Spivey's time was 13:24 for a meet record.

ANOTHER WINNER from the area was Prospect, also neglected in the rankings. The Knights, as a matter of fact, were unranked before they journeyed to the Addison Trail Invite.

Prospect's victory at Addison Trail's nine-team invite was led, as usual, by Mark Smith and Ken Wetendorf. Smith finished third in 15:48 while Wetendorf, a junior, was fifth in 16:06. Scott Satko was ninth, sophomore Den Deli was 14th and Dave Hayes 17th to round out the scoring for the winning Knights.

The performance was heartening for head coach Joe Wanner, whose Knights are South Division champs in the MSL but go into next week's conference meet as decided underdogs to Fremd and Palatine.

"I really think our kids can run with Fremd," said Wanner, whose team has taken two of the last three South titles.

FOREST VIEW, led by Mike Yaccino's seventh-place finish, took sixth over-all at Addison Trail. Elk Grove was ninth.

At Sterling, Schaumburg finished eighth and Conant was 19th in a big invitational won by DeKalb and DeKalb standout Tom Wuchte.

Schaumburg's Tom Placek, a junior, took eighth place in 14:54, thirty-nine seconds behind Wuchte. Saxons Keith Mazikowski (49th), Jack Breen (52nd), and Mike Danese (66th) trailed.

Conant's best finisher was Ben Applebeck in 48th place.

WHEELING PULLED off a mild upset with a dual-meet victory over Maine West, 23-32, led by Ben Sanchez, who was a winner in 15:15. Dennis Kelly and Kevin Lucas ran third and fourth for the Wildcats. Morris Danielson finished second for Maine West.

Prospect's sophomores were third at Addison Trail, highlighted by a second-place effort from freshman Jim Ailshie and a sixth from Bernard Doyle.

Maine West suffers 22-0 setback

by DAVE HESS

The emotion was there.

They didn't look that bad.

"We didn't fold up our tents," said Maine West football coach Dan Mortier.

The Warriors went after the Indians Saturday and got their ears lowered by Niles West's wishbone attack, 22-0.

Jim DiBasilio was chief among the scalpers for Niles West, running for two touchdowns and snaring a pass for another. Leading the Indians over Maine West, DiBasillio rushed for 179 yards and wound up with 198 yards of total offense for the day.

MAINE WEST was thrust in a hole in its first possession when an Indian punt rolled out of bounds at the one-yard line. Trying to punt their way out of trouble only delayed Niles West. Taking over on the 35, DiBasilio took off on the first play down the right side and raced into the end zone unscathed.

Maine West seemed ready to march right back, taking over after the kickoff at their own 35. With Bob Aslan and Dave Jackson reeling off yardage in short bursts, the Warriors sustained a drive inside the Indian 20.

"There are no alibis," said Mortier. "We had our chances but mental breakdowns and mistakes killed us."

The penalties were against Maine too.

An illegal procedure penalty stalled the first drive and Maine West came up two yards short on fourth down at the nine-yard line.

A SECOND-period drive was thwarted after going 52 yards and effectively controlling the ball. Inside the Indian 20 again, a broken play saw Maine West quarterback Ron Rausch sacked for a loss, and a fourth down pass graze off the fingertips of Wally Pasternak.

Niles West was in a hole of their own midway through the second period.

With a first down on their own three-yard line, the Indians' Rick Zera pierced the middle for 18 yards, and five plays later Niles West was in the end zone again. DiBasillio provided the score with a 50 yard sweep around the left side. Indian quarterback John Coursey scored two points on a keeper and Niles West led at the half, 16-0.

Both teams moved the ball in the third quarter, but neither could score. Trading coffin-corner punts kept them both in a hole. Maine West's Ron Rausch had one of his punts travel 35 yards and roll out at the eight yard line but the Indians were able to get out of trouble and Louis Grujanac booted one to the Warrier 11.

THE HITTING was very hard as the fourth quarter started, and the Warrior bid for a score was nullified by a holding penalty. A 30 yard screen pass from Rausch to Aslan was called back and instead of being inside the opponents 20 and first down, they had a secoond and 23 at their own 32.

Niles West's final score came at the end of a 77 yard drive, J. Coursey hitting his third of three passes for a 19 yard touchdown. Coursey highlighted the drive with a 14 yard scamper, and DiBassilio end Chris Wheeler provided the other yardage.

Maine West's next game comes Friday night when they host Glenbrook South.

Rolling Meadows

The Rolling Meadows Park District Men's Touch-Football League has completed it's third round of games.

The Dirigibles gained their first victory, 2-0, by nailing Arlington CC. for a safety.

One of the undefeated teams, Giacamino Transportation, lost their first game. Hot Dog Riches handed them the loss.

International Village, which was also undefeated before this week games, suffered their first defeat at the hands of the Bad News Bears. The game was tied when time ran out so it had to go into overtime, where the Bad News Bears won it by penetration.

Presently there are four teams; Hot Dog Riches, Bad News Bears, Giacamino Transporatation, and the International Village, that are tied for first place with 2-1 records. In second place is the Dirigibles with a record 1-2, followed by Arlington County Club which is 0-3.

The games are played Sunday mornings at 9, 10, and 11 at McKenzie field, behind the Rolling Meadows Sport Complex.

Conant golfers second at Fenton

The Conant golf team, which has been strong the last few weeks, geared up for its Tuesday sectional by finishing second in the Fenton Invitational Saturday.

The Cougars were led by Randy Severinsen, who tied for first place with a 75. He lost a playoff to Roy Biancalana of East Leyden, which finished first in the Invite, two strokes ahead of Conant, 313-315.

Severinsen was followed on the Cougars by Dan Pfeiffer (78), Brian Dumler (80), Ron Lewis (82) and Mike Hagan (83).

Forest View shot a 327 to finish seventh for the day. The Falcons were paced by Steve Ford's 78.

Prospect slowed by Hoffman, but survives, 7-0

by KEITH REINHARD

The scenario appeared ready-made for a musical comedy: Slaughter on Higgins Avenue.

Here were the hard-charging Prospect Knights bringing their impressive 5-0 slate into Hoffman Estates to run roughshod over the 0-4 Hawks.

Rompsville, right?

Wrong. Playing every bit the role of a championship contender and answering when opportunity knocked — which was frequently — Hoffman battled their guests right down to the wire Saturday before the Knights escaped with a narrow 7-0 victory.

"We looked terrible," groaned Prospect skipper Gary Grouwinkle. "Hoffman Estates came ready to play today — we obviously did not."

THERE WAS NO doubt that the Knights had at least one eye gazing beyond the Hawks to their crucial confrontation with Elk Grove next weekend. There was also scant doubt about Prospect's superiority since they outgained their hosts 316-90 in yardage and 16-5 in first downs.

But there was definitely doubt about who would come away the victor, thanks to the aggressive and alert defensive unit fielded by Hawk coach Bill Gourley. The Knights bobbled the ball seven times and Hoffman was eager enough to snap up five of them.

The miscues, coupled with a Hoffman Estates interception, left the visitors with few scoring opportunities on which to follow through. It was only because of the efforts of a staunch Prospect defense keyed by Paul Izban and Dick Paulus that Hoffman was unable to capitalize on all the Knight benevolence.

THE LONE SCORE of the contest came with just 58 seconds remaining before halftime. Quarterback Andy Loos found receiver Dave Lacosse open in the end zone and fired an 8-yard strike up the middle to cap a 53-yard advance.

Mark Dahle converted the extra point kick and the scoreboard operator could have taken the rest of the afternoon off.

Prospect's first march penetrated to the enemy 6, where Hawk Fred Stevens snuffed the attack by intercepting a Loos pass in the end zone.

Dave Lacosse

Fred Stevens

The next time the Knights had the ball they moved 69 yards in 10 plays, only to fumble at the 1, Mike Reilly recovered for the hosts.

Prospect had a third scoring thrust peter out at the Hoffman 6-yard stripe before finally hitting paydirt on the fourth try.

THE SECOND HALF brought more of the same kind of action. Mark Matheson and Stevens pounced on third quarter Knight bobbles. Prospect lost possession early in the fourth stanza by misfielding a punt and later the guests had a 43-yard field goal attempt fall short.

Even with the final seconds ticking away and the Knights only needing to run out the clock for the victory, they turned the ball over to Jim Mock on a fumble, allowing the Hawks a final retaliatory shot.

Lacosse intercepted a Hawk bomb on the final play of the game.

Grouwinkle did salvage some optimism from the victory. "Our defense played well today and we did have an opportunity to test our passing game. I was pleased with what I saw there."

Loos connected on a dozen of 19 aerials and Lacosse, his primary target, hauled in five of them for more than 100 yards.

Broncos nearly perfect at Palatine

by ART MUGALIAN

As tuneups go, Barrington's 41-7 romp over Palatine Saturday afternoon was like changing sparkplugs on a tank. You already know the Broncos can score points.

Coach Bill Graham's outfit put six touchdowns on the board in little more than 31 minutes of playing time against the Pirates, who, unfortunately, were trying to celebrate Homecoming with their first win over Barrington since 1957.

So much for tuneups.

WHEN BARRINGTON takes its 6-0 record, including a spotless 4-0 mark in the MSL North, against undefeated league rival Fremd next week, the Broncos will present a nicely calibrated, smooth running, well-oiled machine.

That machine is led, incidentally, by a 6-foot-1, 170-pound All-State candidate at quarterback by the name of Bruce Henricksen and his primary receiver, Eric Shellenback.

Shellenback gets open using his 4.5 speed and his break-neck moves, as he did seven times for 102 yards against Palatine. Shellenback is a deep threat, which he demonstrated by beating Pirate standout Gary Batke on a 55-yard TD pass play. He is also a danger around the line of scrimmage with his excellent hands, his good moves and his quickness.

"How can they defend Shellenback?" asked Graham after the game. "How can they stop him if they don't have anyone who can run with him? And how can they stop us if we have a quarterback who can put the ball on the money?"

GRAHAM'S QUESTIONS were school room stuff after the Broncos had burned Palatine for 232 yards passing in the first half. Henricksen completed his first 10 attempts, including the TD strike to Shellenback and a 34-yard scoring play to Ken Blackburn. Later, after a potential TD toss was dropped in the end zone, Henricksen came back with a five-yard touchdown throw to Kevin Noreen.

Barrington tailback Steve Edwards scored three touchdowns on runs of three, one and 18 yards, and twice he was set up by Henricksen passes to Shellenback. Another time, Edwards set himself up with his own 34-yard run to the Palatine five-yard-line on a perfectly executed sprint draw play.

Edwards picked up a total of 125 yards on just 13 carries and added 19 yards by grabbing one of Henricksen's aerials.

"Edwards is no slouch," said Graham. "I think he's one of the best. You know, he's never played tailback before this year — and he was fullback until now. It's taken him a little while to get adjusted."

PALATINE TOOK SOME time to get adjusted to what Barrington was throwiing at them, quite literally, from the game's beginning. The Broncos moved the ball deep into Pirate territory on the initial series, but a fumble by Krik Kissner after a 29-yard pass from Henricksen turned the ball over at the Palatine 10.

Barrington got the ball right back, however, forcing a 17-yard punt after just three plays. Henricksen was sacked on the first play of the series all the way back to the Pirate 39, but three plays later Edwards lugged it across the goal line from the three.

Ron Rozner added the extra point and Barrington ed, 7-0, with 6:38 to play in the first quarter.

Barrington scored four more touchdowns before halftime as Henricksen located receivers 13 of 16 times. Twice, Bronco penalties nullified touchdowns, apparently stalling drives, but both times Barrington recovered to score.

PALATINE'S OFFENSE was hampered by an injury to fullback Jim Luzinski, who broke a bone in his hand of the first offensive series but came back in the second half to play despite the pain.

The Pirates finally got on the scoreboard in the fourth quarter when reserve QB Tom Petersen ran 35 yards for an option TD against Barrington's second-string defense. Petersen was Palatine's leading ground-gainer with 62 yards in seven carries.

"Next week's the big one for us," said Graham, referring to Barrington's homecoming clash with Fremd.

Graham indicated that he didn't worry so much about his team's ability to score if they could only get their hands on the ball.

"THE ONE THING I'm afraid of is that Fremd will control the ball on us like Hersey did," Graham said. "I'm afraid that we won't get our hands on the ball."

Fremd's only worry would seem to be what happens if Bruce Henricksen gets his hands on the ball.

Kris Krueger advances to state net meet

Kris Krueger was the only Harper College athlete to qualify for this weekend's state junior college tennis meet at Valley Hills Tennis Club in Elgin.

She earned her qualification by placing second among 20 entries in the singles competition of last weekend's Region IV Girls Junior College Tennis Meet hosted by Harper. The meet featured Oakton, Elgin, Morton, College of DuPage and the host school.

Kris defeated Elgin's Holtz 6-3, 6-4 and DuPage's Boldenbuck 6-1, 7-5. Her only loss came to the eventual singles champion, DuPage's Bolster 6-3, 6-0.

"I thought she did extremely well," said Harper coach Martha Lynn Bolt.

In other singles competition, Harper's Kevin O'Malley felled Morton's White 6-3, 6-2, but lost to Elgin's Vick 6-1, 6-2.

Teammates Sharon Kirkwood and Sandy Morton also suffered defeats. Oakton's Bondon upended Kirkwood 6-0, 6-0 while another Oakton player, Steinhilper won against Morton 6-1, 6-1.

Stevenson romps 32-0 over Grant

Stevenson High School is guaranteed a share of the Northwest Suburban Conference football championship.

The Patriots of coach Tom Baumann pushed their record to 5-1 with a 32-0 romp past previously unbeaten Grant Saturday afternoon.

Stevenson scored two touchdowns in each of the second and third periods and punched over a final tally in the fourth quarter.

TODD SCHMITKE paced the offensive attack with 143 yards in 18 carries as the Patriots piled up 291 yards on the ground. Stevenson had 18 first downs and 346 total yards.

The Patriots scored their first touchdown in the second period on a 13-yard return of an intercepted pass by Tony Baca. Stevenson had driven deep in Grant territory before yielding, but Baca's theft came on the third play following another interception.

Ken Kriske scored from the seven for the second touchdown after Stevenson covered a fumble by the Grant punter. Ron Greenberg recovered on the Grant 27, and it took five plays for Kriske to punch it over.

Chip Gato crashed in from the two to cap a six-play, 63-yard drive in the third quarter. Todd Schmitke helped set it up with a 17-yard run, and Gatto also contributed a big 26-yarder.

Gatto went over again from the two after Mike Howard covered another Grant fumble.

DAVE KELLER picked off a Grant pass and returned it to the 33. In eight plays the Patriots scored again with a fake punt and pass by Jordan Stone to Scott Barnett a key maneuver. Kriske hit Clayton from the 20 for the touchdown.

Kriske went to the air five times and completed two for 33 yards. Stone's one completion gave Stevenson 55 passing for the afternoon.

Grant was limited to 143 total yards wit a breakdown of 76 rushing and 67 passing.

Stevenson will journey to Dundee Friday night.

Win at bridge

Simple bidding fares best

Oswald: "How about some articles on hands from match point duplicate?"

Jim: "Here's a hand where South has almost enough for an opening bid. If he does open North and South are almost sure to get to game and go down. If he passes, North will open with one diamond."

Oswald: "North opens one diamond rather than one club because he wants to indicate a lead in case the opponents buy the contract."

Jim: "South should respond with one heart only. It is very bad tactics to jump merely because you have passed eleven high-card points. A jump by a passed hand should only be made with a very good hand and support for partner's bid suit." Oswald: "Now it is North's turn to make a good bid. He should pass and let his partner play one heart."

Jim: "South will make four hearts if the defense slips. He takes his ace of clubs and queen of diamonds. Then he leads a spade to dummy, discards two clubs and a spade on good diamonds, ruffs a club and leads the queen of spades to force the opponent with the king win. West does win and must play ace and a low trump in order to hold South to nine tricks."

Ask Andy

Duplicators make a habit of copying

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Wendell Smith, 9, of St. Louis, Mo., for his question:

HOW DOES A COPYING MACHINE WORK?

With more than a dozen different types of copying machines available, an office manager will usually have to try out a number of them until he finds just the right one to fill his needs.

Among the most popular types of duplicators in use today are the electrostatic copiers that use a number of different processes all involving the use of static electricity. Perhaps the most widely used in this classification is the one which employs a process called xerography. The word is pronounced by giving the "x" a "z" sound.

Xerography uses a plate that is coated with a material called selenium. It conducts electricity when exposed to light. First the plate is given an electrostatic charge. Then the material to be copied is projected through a lens and a positively charged image is formed on the plate. Next the plate is dusted with negatively charged powder which sticks to the image. Paper is then placed on the plate and it gets a positive charge. This charge attracts the powder image to the paper which is heated very briefly to melt the powder and form a copy.

This xerographic method of making copies actually uses the principles of photography as do a number of other duplicating methods. Some of the other types are called projection copying or contact copying.

Mimeographed duplication is another popular way to make copies. Typing on a coated tissue called a stencil master cuts out each word to be copied. When placed on the roller of a mimeograph machine, ink from a cylinder will be squeezed through the cuttings on the master and will be transferred to blank paper to make a copy.

The offset duplicator is gaining in popularity. This duplicator requires that a grease-based image be put on a master sheet by typing, printing or drawing. Water and a grease-based ink are applied with ink sticking to the image, transferred to a rubber blanket and then duplicated on the copy paper.

Still another type of copying machine is the spirit duplicator. This is a simple, inexpensive machine that requires you to place your typing on a piece of paper that is baked with a special waxy, dye-impregnated substance. When the master is placed face down on the duplicator's drum, an alcohol-base fluid is used to dissolve a portion of the dye in the image and transfer it to the copy paper. The machine's name comes from the alcohol used in the fluid.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Teddy Waskawich, 11, of Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada, for his question:

WHAT IS ASTIGMATISM?

Almost everyone has some astigmatism that is caused by abnormalities in the curve of the eye's cornea. The condition makes objects appear blurred, and it happens because rays of light from different parts of the object being viewed do not all focus equally on the retina of the eye.

Astigmatism can give a person both eyestrain and headaches.

The condition of astigmatism can be corrected by eyeglasses or contact lenses. In some extreme cases, correction has been made by corneal transplantation. This is an operation in which the scarred cornea is replaced by clear corneal tissue from another person.

If you have any eye problems, discuss the problem with your family doctor.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to boys and girls 7 to 17.
